Corn Tax Adopted. London, April 23.-The debate on the proposed tax on corn was conducte' in a perfunctory way in the commons, yesterday, without a sign of animation. The discussion was upon whom the tax would really fall. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, argued that the tax was not really a violation of free trade doctrines, while it was absurd to maintain that the working classes HOUSE were unable to pay the slight increases, considering their increased consumption of alcohol. Dilke's Views.

New York, April 23.-Sir Charles Dilke, one of the most laborious best-informed members of the house of commons, asked whether he thinks that peace will be restored in South Africa before the coronation, replied, according to a Tribune despatch from London, as follows :

"I have not the slightest doubt on the subject. Peace will be made, if it has not been done virtually already. have not had any doubt respecting the result since the conference with the Boer leaders began. Their departure to confer with the burghers confirms my opinion."

Sir Charles Dilke added that he did not believe that the European Boer agents had been dealt with by the government, but that they might have been consulted by the delegates attending the conference in Africa.
