LIBERALS UP AND DOING ARE RALLYING ROUND ROSS AND PENSE.

Great Enthusiasm Shown at the Young Liberal Smoker Last Evening—Some Spirited Addresses—A Good Programme Furnished—The Rooms Overflowed.

The attendance at the young liberals' smoking concert, in the reform committee rooms on Princess street, last evening, was remarkable. That the young men are with the Ross government and its local candidate, no one who saw the crowd last night could think of denying. The government has aimed to build up Ontario, especially New Ontario, so that young Canadians would not any longer have to go into a foreign country to find employment. They appreciate this, and are in hearty accord with such a patriotic and progressive administration. This was convincingly shown last night, when the large rooms would not begin to hold the large number of young liberals who sought admission. They kept continually coming and going, but all the time an enthusiastic crowd overflowed the hall.

Alderman J. M. Farrell, president of the young liberal club, presided, and after an overture by Crosby and Thornton's orchestra, he delivered a stirring address. Such a splendid oration has never been shown in Kingston, taken that there was life and enthusiasm in the old liberal party. "It is time for a change," the conservative says. "Let us see when it is time for a change. In 1898, when the conservatives were in power at Ottawa, they were torn and rent asunder. They called each other 'a nest of traitors.' One leader was knifing another so that he might obtain a place of preference. Surely, then, it was time for a change. Do we find any such condition of things in Ontario to-day? Mr. Farrell asked. No. The government is still vigorous. Hon. G. W. Ross is developing the resources of New Ontario as only a progressive leader can do. He has a united party behind him. The discussion is in the opposition ranks. In the closing days of the last session, one of their most prominent leaders, who was once at the head of the party, voted against them. Alderman Farrell closed with a resume of what the government had done for New Ontario, and a call to support that government and its worthy candidate, Mr. Pense. It was a splendid address, and was received with great applause.

J. Graham rendered two solos in good voice, after which R. F. Elliott was called upon for an address. In responding Mr. Elliott said that this large gathering, if it counted for anything, counted for victory for Ross and Pense. "We are going to win," he declared. "We are going to fight this battle on any issue the opposition desires to fight it on, whether it be on local lines or on larger and broader lines (cheers). The young men of Kingston are going to support Mr. Pense; they are with him (hear, hear)."

After a couple of good songs by Edward Summerby, Mr. Pense entered the hall, and was given an enthusiastic reception. Ald. Farrell called for three cheers for the liberal candidate, which were given with great enthusiasm. In addressing the large audience he said:

"I thank you for the reception to-night. I am receiving many pledges of support from all sections of Kingston, and I am certain that victory will be ours. Those who know anything of me, know that I had not received one of the heaviest and kindest of nominations (cheers). I am glad to see my efforts have been so well endorsed, and I do not fear to prosecute my canvass to the end. My efforts will ever be on behalf of Kingston."

"I can say on behalf of the Ross government that it is a pride for a young member to come back and seek the support of that government. Nothing like it in comparison can be meted between the two sides of the house. We have had nothing but criticism after criticism from the opposition."

"Let our victory be such," continued Mr. Pense, "that it will have a permanent effect, like it did in the last election. In endorsing the Ross government—as you will do—you will endorse a government that is going back to Power (cries of hear, hear). The assurance comes from every member of that government that the liberals will be triumphantly returned. Kingston, for her own interests, will be in line again, because no government could have a greater influence for good and have been a truer friend to Kingston. Young men, I ask you to support the older heads. We do not start out with banners of 'victory, victory, victory,' but we generally have the victory in the end. Your joy on the 29th of May will, I trust, be equal to my own." Mr. Pense was warmly applauded when he resumed his seat.

John McKelvey, president of the reform association, was the next speaker. He invited his listeners to compare the government with the opposition. No one ever heard of Mr. Ross following trying to get rid of him, as Whitney's followers did of him. This showed that the conservatives did not think very much of their leader. He trusted that it would be a great success for the government from now until May 29th, and if they did, there was not the slightest doubt but that Mr. Pense would be the next member for Kingston.

"It is remarkable what interest the News has in Liberals of Kingston," continued Mr. McKelvey. "It is a lie to state that Mr. Pense has never been nominated. No candidate ever received a more flattering nomination (applause and cries of hear, hear). The most influential deputation I ever saw waited upon him, and asked him to accept the nomination. There was not one dissenting voice among them. I am surprised that a paper that calls itself respectable, should make such a statement. Some of the conservatives say that Mr. Shaw had all the young men on his side, because he is a sporting man. He has never done as much for sport as Mr. Pense has (applause). No one except Mr. Pense knows the sacrifices he has made to

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY.

Notes About the Various Sporting Fields.

Clifton Springs, N.Y., baseball team wants to play the Ponies here in July. Ambrose, who pitched in the North-west New York League last year, will be with the Ponies this summer. It is said that Washington has the strongest pitching staff in the American league, and Cleveland the weakest.

Fielding, base-running and possibly hitting, the Toronto as a team, are superior to last year's aggregation. McEathern and McFarland have been matched for a twenty-five-mile motor-race for $1,000 a side, at Pittsburg, Pa., May 30th. Whitney's Volodyovski continues to be the favorite in the betting for the English Derby, and is also tipped to win the valuable city and suburban stake.

Next Monday, manager Georgehan of the Ponies, will attend a meeting in Gananoque of representatives of river port towns with a view to forming a baseball league. The National sporting club, of London, has offered a $15,000 purse for a twenty-round bout between Fitzsimmons and Jeffries. The club desires to have the contest on June 2nd. Maj. Alexander Boyd, whose death from fever, is reported from South Africa, was on the forward line of the old Toronto rugby football club for several seasons when that team was at the height of its reputation. Later he was best known in sports as a teamman.

The Duke of Argyll, who is a keen sportsman, is introducing a large variety of wild geese once abundant along the shores of Loch Fyne, though this is not now the case, and his grace is making the experiment of acclimatizing wild turkeys and game from the dominion. Cyclists all over Canada are requested to assist the C. W. A. in erecting a suitable memorial to A. S. Perry, the Bradford amateur bicyclist killed in South Africa. Subscriptions can be forwarded to secretary-treasurer H. B. Howson, 110 Wellington Place, or 28 Scott street, Toronto, or to any member of the C. W. A. executive.

THE MILITARY PARADE Will be in the Afternoon of Victoria Day.

The Victoria day celebration committee are progressing well in their preparations for the observance of this royal May day. Col. Drury, Lieut. Ogilvie and officers of the batteries and 14th regiment have kindly consented to give their assistance in the military demonstration. A change is to be made in this portion of the programme. Heretofore the military events were in the morning. This year the parade will move at one o'clock through the street to the fair grounds, where the march past will take place. Then will follow the sports which will consist of seven military events, including a musical race, two horse races (2.50 and 2.25 classes) and a basketball match. Lieut. Col. Reade, commandant of the Royal military college, will be invited to co-operate, and to allow the cadets to give a gymnastic exhibition on the platform at the fair grounds.

In the morning it is proposed to have two baseball matches on the cricket field, the winners to play off at the fair ground in the afternoon. No night performance has yet been suggested, it being thought that there will have been enough in the afternoon. However, a band concert may be given.

To Represent Queen's. J. J. Harpell, editor of Queen's College Journal, last to-day for Ottawa to attend a union graduates' dinner there to-morrow night. He will represent Queen's at this event, where representatives from all the universities in the district will be present.

The Late Mrs. McIlgorm. On April 22nd the angel of death visited one of Kingston's most respected citizens in the person of Mrs. K. McIlgorm. The deceased lady was of Irish birth and came to this country when quite young, settling in Brewers' Mills, where she resided for many years and where she made for herself a host of friends. Later on she came to Kingston, where she has since lived. She was a member of St. Mary's congregation and always took an active part in the workings of that body. Five daughters mourn her loss, three in the United States and two, Mrs. C. Welsh and Mrs. J. Lawler, in this city. Her many friends deplore her demise.

St. George's Day. This is England's national day, and many there were who honored it. Flags floated over the city buildings, and other prominent places, and the rose adorned the coat of arms of many an Englishman in this country. Merrie England. And there were others, too, who wore the emblem in honor of England's glory. To-night, the Sons of England hold a dance in the city hall.

People who look for it may find a few things about politics in the newspapers for the next few weeks. Love's Y-Z (Vice Road) Disinfectant Soap is a boon to any home. It disinfects and cleans at the same time. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" show is coming to town. Seems as if we have heard that name somewhere before.

The railway committee reported the bill allowing the extension of the Bay of Quinte railway, from Deseronto to Picton. Non-jury sittings of the division court will be held at the court house on the 29th inst., under judge Wilkison, of Napanee.

Every young man twenty-one years of age, a British subject, resident in Ontario twelve months and in Kingston three months can get his name on the voters list through registration. Come and see our wall papers. A large variety from which to select. Ingrains, embossed and all latest designs. Orders for wallpaper, painting and paper hanging receive prompt attention at W. N. A local merchant was charged, before the magistrate this morning, with obstructing the sidewalk with boxes on Sunday. The 13th inst. He merely stated the boxes in a gateway, but a neighbor rolled them on to the walk. No fine was inflicted, but the man paid the costs and departed.

Ald. Craig did move the resolution awarding the contract for the watering carts to the London firm, but he did more than that. He moved that Mr. Latourney be offered the contract at the London figures. It was that simple. The contract was accepted. Ald. Craig did more than that, but the objection of a conservative alderman, prevented further action in seeking to keep the water in the city from a conservative majority in the council that gave the contract to the London firm.

MARINE NOTES. Getting Ready For Opening Of Navigation. The steamship Alberta cleared for bay ports. The "steamer" India and consort will likely clear to-day for upper lake ports.

Within a week the passenger and freight steamers will be on the Hamilton-Montreal route. To-day the steamer New York was hauled onto the M. T. company marine railway for repairs.

M. T. company elevator, SS. Bannockburn, arrives this evening from Pictou, with wheat, sleep medicine from Wolfe Island, with oats.

The Country Girl.—To-night. The Ottawa Theatre of Tuesday says: "At the Russell theatre last evening Miss Kathryn Kidder and company presented 'The Country Girl.' This is the English comedy from which Dolly Varden was adapted, and it gave quite as much pleasure, as the very enjoyable musical version would lead theatre-goers to expect. The story of the comedy is an adaptation of David Garrick's, needs no repeating. It is brimful of humor, bright as to dialogue and attractive in its setting. The situations in themselves are provocative of mirth. Peggy's adventures with that hitherto unknown quantity, man, being very laughable. The flavor of past days appeals to the theatre-goer sufficed with the stage offerings of the present period."

Injured In The Bush. Melville Lemmon, the little son of John Lemmon, King street, underwent an operation yesterday. While visiting in the country during the Easter holidays, he was playing with an axe in the bush, when he cut his left leg, just below the knee. The wound did not heal, and yesterday the flesh had to be laid open and the bone scraped. A number of stitches were required to bring the flesh to gether again. It is to be hoped the young lad will recover the free use of his leg.

MEMORIES OF BY-GONES.

ROBERT VAIR CAME TO KINGSTON IN 1832.

He Heard the Proclamation of Queen Victoria's Accession Read—Saw Rebels of 1837 Hanged—His Remarkable Memory.

Among the oldest of Kingston's settlers, who are now alive, is Robert Vair, who resides at 28 Alfred street. A reporter had a chat with him Monday afternoon, and learned from him many interesting things about Kingston in the third decade of the past century. Mr. Vair came here from Eastport, Erriewickshire, Scotland, in July, 1832, nearly seventy years ago. One of his companions was Edwin Chown, and in the same year the late Capt. Taylor also landed in Kingston from England.

Mr. Vair has a wonderful memory, and when asked about the extent of the city seventy years ago, he could give the most minute information, naming a whole line of buildings from one end of the old town to the other. Kingston's limits in those early days were from the water's edge to Barrie street northward and to the present site of the city park westward. There were no wharves along the harbor front at that early period. Garrett, the distiller, built the first wharf at the foot of Johnston street. Two shipyards were at the foot of Earl street. Mr. Vair stated that the Toronto jail, near the Don, was built at Kingston, and also four rebels in the old jail on the present customs house site.

Of the incidents of the rebellion of 1837, Mr. Vair has distinct recollection. All the militia from the district were here then, he said, and the town was walled in with double planks. He saw general von Schomberg at Barrfield, and also four rebels in the old jail on the present customs house site.

Asked if he remembered anything about the proclamation concerning Queen Victoria's accession, Mr. Vair replied that he certainly did. "Why I marked that was in 1838," Col. Markland and sheriff Bullock, in a carriage, preceded by a bugler on horseback, drove to the present corner of Barrack and Wellington streets, and the sheriff stood up and read the proclamation. Very few people heard it, but I chanced to be there at the time."
