ADDRESSES IN QUEEN STREET METHODIST CHURCH.

The Statements Made By Mrs. Mc. Callum, Dr. Lake and Rev Should Support the Referen-

The meeting held in the lecture half of Queen street Methodist church last evening was of a high order, and the addresses which were both interesting and instructive were listened to with great attention. The pastor of the church, Rev. J. C. Antliff, D.D. presided, and after devotional exercises he read the paragraphs from the of his friends raid the contract house discipline of the church, relating to of the bride's father by night. temperance. In view of the action of the provincial government in arranging for a referendum re its liquor bill, he urged that friends of temperance needed to bestir themselves. Dr. Lake then addressed the meeting dealing especially with the influence of heredity. He gave instances of the awful effects of the drinking habits of parents on their offspring. He believed that personal responsibility was not duly recognized, nor the power of example. He urged that the custom of "treating" should be discountenanced and abolished; and that chrispeople should not compromise with evil; but at all risks dare to do

SPANISH AGITATION

Over Suspected Attempt to Assassinate King.

Madrid, April 24 .- The entire city is in a state of agitation to-day over what is believed to have been an attempt to assassinate king Alfonzo. An unknown man was caught trying to penetrate the inner palace. He was arrested, and when questioned stated that his name was Pierre Maury and that he was a Frenchman. He had no passport and gave a contradictory account of himself. The government has appealed to the French embassy for aid in identifying the prisoner. It is stated that he was armed when caught. The police refuse to give any information. They display unusual agitation.

Not A Case Of Smallpox.

This morning there was a rumor that a Frenchman aboard one of the M. T. company's barges had smallpox. Medical health office Fee notified Mr. McIntyre, K.C., chairman of the board of health, who investigated with that alacrity which a year ago won for him the warmest praise on a similar occasion. Mr. McIntyre had two doctors examine the suspected man, but they both declared that he nice long talk. had no small-pox. This assurance satisfied Mr. McIntyre, who dill not deem it necessary to take any further action. The Frenchman left the city

Several Stories Afloat About the Affair-The News Comes to Victoria, B.C., by the Last Mail Steamer.

Victoria, B.C., April 24.-There are several stories floating around the Orient, according to mail advices re crived here, of the kidnapping of the rainh of Patani by a Siamese official which is alleged to have occurred in February, but which, on account the refusal of the government to ac cept dispatches regarding it at its relegraph offices, was kep quiet un til a short time ago. One story is to the effect that the kidnapping was brought about by Mr. Annadale, a British explorer, who was desirous of seizing Patani for the British and ultimately by fomenting rebellion in all of the Malay states. On the other hand it is said that the rajah was arrested for intriguing with the Brit ish for the same purpose. The Malays are said to be frantic and serious trouble is looked for.

THE BEAVER IN WINTER. His Curious Method of Breathing Under the Ice.

"The beaver is really a sort of portable pulp mill, grinding up most any kind of wood that comes his way. I once measured a white birch tree, twenty-two inches through, cut down by a beaver. A single beaver generally, if not always, amputates the tree, and when it comes down the whole family falls to and has a regular frolic with the bark and branches. A big beaver will bring down a fair sized sapling-say, three inches through-in about two minutes and a large tree in about an hour. "One of the queerest facts about the beaver is the rapidity with which his long, chisel shaped teeth recover from an injury. I have known beavers to break their teeth in biting a trap, and when I caught them again ten days afterward you couldn't see a sign of the break-the teeth had grown out to their former perfection in that short period.

"As compared with the otter or mink, the beaver is a very slow swimmer. His front legs hang by his side, and he uses only his webbed hind feet for purposes of swimming. It is easy to capture one in a canoe if you can find him in shoal water. He is a most determined fighter, but clumsy and easy to handle. If he could get hold of you with his teeth, he would almost take a leg off; so you want to watch him sharply. The place to grab him is by the tail.

"The ability of a beaver to remain under water for a long time is really not so tough a problem as it looks. When the lake or pond is frozen over, a beaver will come to the under surface of the ice and expel his breath, so that it will form a wide, flat bubble. The air, coming in contact with the ice and water, is purified, and the beaver breathes it again. This operation he can repeat several times. The otter and muskrat do the same thing. "It almost takes a burglar proof safe to hold a newly eaptured beaver. I once caught an old one and two kittens up the north branch of the Sou-west, put them in a barrel and brought them down to Miramichi lake. That night she gnawed a hole through the barrel and cleared out. leaving her kittens. They were so young that I had no hope of feeding them, so I released them in the hope that the mother might find them. Soon after that I caught a big male beaver. I made a large log pen for him of dry spruce, but the second night he cut a log and disap-

"Beavers, when alarmed, generally make up stream, so I went to the brook where a little branch came in, and I thought would go up that a little way, and I hadn't gone more than ten rods before came across my lad sitting up in the bed of the brook having a lunch on a stick he had cut. He actually looked as if he knew he was playing truant when he caught sight of me out of the side of his

"I picked him up by the tail, brought him back, put him in the pen, supplied him with plenty of fresh poplar and he seemed as tame as possible and never gave me any more trouble. I brought him out to Stanley, where he lived a long time. Turnbull had a mongrel dog which was jealous of the beaver, and one day attacked him. He did that only once, for the beaver nipped the dog's tail off quickern'n a cat would catch a mouse."

Memories of the Tan.

up now and then and dust the stalls, and now and then a horse's hoof would beat against the side of the ring with a heavy thud, All this is gone. There are no brazen discords now, no heavy thuds, no flying aromatic tan, and no stables. It used to be a rapture to go through the stables in the interval-down the long, sloping passages, with gas jets in wire cagesand find oneself between the tails of countless piebald horses extending as far as the eye could reach. Here and there a Ottawa, April 24.-The discussion of glimpse might be caught of an acrobat or a clown or, more exquisite sight, of a fair equestrienne. The friendly, warm scent of those stables I can recall at this moment. Now it is no more. It used to puff out into the street and act as a more attractive invitation to the passerby than any prismatic poster. And with it came muffled strains of the band and the crack of a whip, all combining in the late comer to work his anticipation to intensity .-

Quoted the Bible.

Several years ago a Baptist minister who was anxious to be appointed to a vacancy in a Georgia church went to one of the old residents and asked him what he should preach about in his trial sermon. He was informed that a good topic would be the proper rearing of children, who in that section were greatly neglected. When the would be pastor arose to preach the next morning, he started ou

The Stone Tree. There is a tree which grows in Mexico called the "chijol," or stone tree. It is of enormous proportions, both in circumference and height. It has a number of branches spreading out widely and carrying leaves of a yellowish green color. The wood is extremely tine and easily worked in a green state. It is not given to either warping or splitting. The wonderful part about it is that after being cut the wood gets gradually harder, and in the course of a few years it is absolutely petrified, whether left in the open air or buried in the ground. From this timber houses can be built that would in a few years become completely fireproof and would last as though built of stone.

Too Brave to Be Killed. The Atlanta Journal is authority for the statement that General Stonewall Jackson saved the life of William Me-Kinley. "At the battle of Antietam," it says, "one of General Jackson's men raised his gun to fire at the Union soldier, who stood just opposite the creek. As he was about to fire General Jackson said: Stop! Lower your gun. I have watched that boy all day. He is too brave to be killed.' The boy in blue was our late president, then only seventeen years of
