Effect of Lord Dufferin's Mission. Lord Dufferin's mission to Canada was distinguished by the inculcation of respect and admiration for Canada by Canadians. His Excellency fitted the public mind with an idea of this country both as to its present greatness and to its splendid future that until his arrival had not been entertained. Along with this valuable leadership Canada received from him a new view of the Imperial relations. He showed that servility and independence were not our part in the union, but on the contrary, we were destined to be an independent associate nation, claiming and enjoying equal rights with other British com-munities. Lord Dufferin spent six and a half years with us and traversed Canada from end to end, delighting the people with his genius and inspiring them by his oratory. His farewell speech was delivered at the Industrial Exhibition grounds in Toronto on September 24, 1878. The parting words were a consideration of the duty of Canadians to their heritage. "Love your country," he said; "believe in her, hanor her, work for her, live for her, die for her." On October 19 he sailed from history was closed.
