

NEW BOOKS

"Forty Modern Fables," by George Ade, 70c. "Mr. Dooley's Opinions," 70c. "Lazarre," by Mary Hartwell Catherwood, 70c. "Greater Love," by Jos. Hocking, 70c. "One of My Sons," by Anna Katharine Green, author of "The Leavenworth Case," 70c. "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," by Alice Hegan (cloth), 75c. "The House With the Green Shutters," 70c. "Commonwealth or Empire," by Goldwin Smith (cloth), 80c.

R. UGLOW & CO., Bookellers, 141 Princess Street.

LOOK, 1st MAY, YOU WANT

TACKS, HAMMERS, KALSOMINE, FURNITURE STAIN VARNISH, FLOOR PAINT AND SCREEN WIRE.

Mitchell has them all and the nicest assortment in town and the lowest prices.

MITCHELL'S HARDWARE.

FANCY BOXES OF CANDY. NEW MONTREAL CONFECTIONERY store next door to Opera House.

No Matter

What it is You Buy From Us You Most Certainly Obtain Better Value Than Can Be Obtained Elsewhere.

NOTTINGHAM LACE CURTAINS finished with the new Colbert Edge, fine designs. Extra values at $1.50, $2.50, $3.

SWISS NET CURTAINS in Cream and White, Light, Lacy Designs, $3.50, $4, $5, $6, $7.

IRISH POINT CURTAINS, a magnificent range of these desirable goods at $6, $7, $8.

PLAIN NET CURTAINS, with fancy borders, 3 1/2 yards long, 3 yards wide, only $4.50, $5, $6 (pair).

PLAIN SPOT NET for Sash Nets, White only; 30 inches wide 25c., 36 inches wide 35c., 45 inches wide 45c. yard.

THE 5 P.M. EDITION. SECOND EDITION NEWS ALSO ON PAGE FIVE.

Her Side Of It. "I wonder why the humorists do not write any jokes about the son-in-law," observed the curious person.

COMMERCIAL MATTERS.

What is Going on in the Business World—The Market News.

In Toronto: the hop trade is quiet, with prices steady at 13c; yearlings at 8c. Earnings of U. S. steel corporations for April are estimated at $11,500,000 for the same month of last year.

The Grand Trunk railway company has just received an order for 17,000 barrels of petroleum stock to be used upon a four foot gauge.

The Boston Post says that a deal in which the Pennsylvania railroad will absorb the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company is practically completed.

The Grand Trunk railway company has made so much progress during the past two or three years that its long deferred second preference stock is now upon a four foot gauge.

Henry Glew, N. Y. banker, reports, April 28th: "Conditions are favorable to an active stock market for some time. The most important restraint upon speculation is a scarcity of money—is being gradually removed, and the various oil and operators who have been waiting months for favorable opportunities are now doing their utmost to break and strengthen the market. Crop reports are not so reassuring as they might be, but the drought has at last been broken, and with favorable weather for a reasonable time considerable of the loss of confidence can be regained. Good crops make good markets."

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

WHAT THE CHILDREN TELL. SAY THE LAD NEVER SPOKE TO THE GIRL.

But After the Hat Was Knocked Off, He Drew the Revolver and Fired—The Inquest is Now Proceeding.

The coroner's inquest into the death of Beatrice Holland, the little girl shot at Frontenac school yesterday by Eric Sharp, opened in the police court chamber at 2 p.m. Dr. Mundell, coroner, presided, and the following jury was impaneled: John Smith, Thomas D. Minnes, J. M. Strange, D. G. Laidlaw, Archibald Abernethy, D. E. Starr, Hugh C. Nickle, J. M. Elliott, Oscar V. Bartells, R. S. Waldron, Harry Angrove and N. C. Polson.

The coroner stated that it was a very important and an essential part of the inquest that the body should be viewed. Without that action being taken, the inquest would be null and void. When they were in the presence of the body, the members of the jury would be sworn in, and elect the foreman.

The coroner and jury then entered a van and were driven to the residence of the dead child's parents, where they inspected the remains.

The Evidence Submitted. When the jury returned to the police court room at 3 p.m., the inquest was resumed.

The first witness summoned was Joseph Harrison, a little girl who saw the deed. She explained that in the cloak-room Beatrice Holland stepped up to Eric Sharp and knocked off his hat. He picked it up, turned around and fired at her. She fell, and he ran away. Eric would play around and ship with the girls.

Mr. Smith—Were you in the cloak room? Witness—Yes.

Mr. Smith—How often did she knock his hat off? Witness—I was about two feet away from the girl, and pinning my hat on at the time.

Mr. Polson—Did he make any remark? Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

John McIntyre, K.C., appeared for the boy, a cross-examining witness he elicited these facts from the children at the low fourth class of Frontenac school, under Miss Boyd. If the boy had said anything, witness would probably have heard it.

Witness—I didn't hear him say anything. It was all done very quickly. The noise of it nearly stunned me. The relations of the children were cordial.

JUDGE FOILS ANGRY NEGRO. FIGHTS MAN WHO SOUGHT TO MURDER A SERVANT.

Had Cut the Girl's Throat—Colored Person Enters Home of Justice D. N. Fell, of Philadelphia, to Get Revenge for Fancied Insult Offered by Ida Williams, a Domestic.

Philadelphia, April 29.—Justice D. Newlin Fell, of the supreme court yesterday fought an armed negro in the kitchen of his home, No. 1534 North Broad street, and after a struggle succeeded in turning the negro over to a policeman. The intruder was Charles Tillman, forty-three years old, living on June street, West Philadelphia. His supposed purpose in entering justice Fell's residence was to get revenge for a fancied insult offered him by Ida Williams, a domestic in the Fell household.

Tillman was not overpowered until he had drawn a razor across the throat of the Williams girl, inflicting a wound which narrowly escaped severing her jugular vein.

A physician living in the neighborhood stanch the flow of blood, and the victim will probably be able to appear against Tillman in a few days.

The attempted murder is declared to have been the result of jealous rage on the part of Tillman. He had been an admirer of the Williams girl and called at the Broad street house this morning to see her. Justice Fell was about to breakfast at the time.

Yarker Yields. Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

JUDGE FOILS ANGRY NEGRO. FIGHTS MAN WHO SOUGHT TO MURDER A SERVANT.

Had Cut the Girl's Throat—Colored Person Enters Home of Justice D. N. Fell, of Philadelphia, to Get Revenge for Fancied Insult Offered by Ida Williams, a Domestic.

Philadelphia, April 29.—Justice D. Newlin Fell, of the supreme court yesterday fought an armed negro in the kitchen of his home, No. 1534 North Broad street, and after a struggle succeeded in turning the negro over to a policeman. The intruder was Charles Tillman, forty-three years old, living on June street, West Philadelphia. His supposed purpose in entering justice Fell's residence was to get revenge for a fancied insult offered him by Ida Williams, a domestic in the Fell household.

Tillman was not overpowered until he had drawn a razor across the throat of the Williams girl, inflicting a wound which narrowly escaped severing her jugular vein.

A physician living in the neighborhood stanch the flow of blood, and the victim will probably be able to appear against Tillman in a few days.

The attempted murder is declared to have been the result of jealous rage on the part of Tillman. He had been an admirer of the Williams girl and called at the Broad street house this morning to see her. Justice Fell was about to breakfast at the time.

Yarker Yields. Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

Yarker, April 29.—Burns Gilbert and John Wood had a narrow escape from going over Yarker Falls. They were ascending the river, and when at the bridge the current swung the bows of the canoe out, so that they were forced to cross the river, but by a jolly paddling they crossed safely.

&lt;