NEARING A CLOSE. Signs of Weariness-Mr. Mulock's Bill-Shortening the Time Between Ottawa and Kingston-

A Story of the Drama. Ottawa, May 5 - A good deal private legislation has been disposed of during the past week, besides number of government inlis, as well as nearly the whole of the railway estimates, the latter having occupied a little more than days. Despite the incessant talk prorogation, the work of parliament drags wearily along and the lower house is beginning to assume jaded look which comes from prolong ed night sittings. Ministers, members and the press gailery all show signs of weariness, while the increasing warmth of the weather makes common's chamber anything but healthy place to occupy.

Something has been said lately the press as to the failing health the prime minister. As a matter fact he is much as usual, bright, keen and alert, and strangely enough he the only man in parliament who calls the traits of the late Sir John A. Macdonaid, who, in many ways he resembles both personally and in vertain genial habits. Sir John had pleasant way of moving about the house during a tedious debate, halting here and there to that cheerily rivetted to the track and her strenu- lish pettifogger knows more than the ing law.
