ABUSING MR. MARTER.

Why is so much mention made of Mr. Marter? Because he has been hounded by the conservative party which he once led and is forced to expose himself, and, incidentally, to expose the shame of his accusers.

Mr. Marter had the courage to say what he felt on the proposed pulpwood concessions, and the average Tory is not supposed to have a mind and opinion of his own. The opposition, he pointed out, had objected to the concessions—latterly, not at first—on two points, (1) that they should be put up at public competition, and (2) that the dues should be regulated by the legislature. The first objection was impracticable on account of the immense expenses attending the delimitation and estimation. The second was absurd, because the opposition, could have, if it desired, moved a resolution and put the dues at what, in the opinion of the members, they ought to be.

"That," said Mr. Marter, "is a better way than finding fault with people who are trying to do the country's business. Any man or set of men can pull down and destroy, but it takes wise men to build up. I have got sick and tired of listening to the intemperance that everybody is a thief, and a robber, and so on. I have lived to my age, and I am pretty well advanced, and I think it has yet to be said that I am a robber, or a thief, or support men who are robbers and thieves, I am tired and sick of it. I say, and I can only ask for the privilege and opportunity of meeting the gentlemen who make such assertions, when I will endeavour to convince any audience in this country that this is a good business proposition and one free from any wrongdoing."

Some one having said that Mr. Marter got into the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Company in a manner to make money out of it. He said he purchased ten shares of the stock, when it was advertised for sale, on the open market, and paid $1,000 for them. That was not much of a snap. Any man was at liberty, at the same time, to buy the same stock at the same price, and bargain as some of his opponents say it was, they did not seek and secure any of it.

NAME TO CONJURE WITH.

"Billy Smith" is a name to conjure with.

So the Mail assures us. There are several who can be distinguished by the name. There is one in South Ontario, who has not added to his own credit or that of the conservative party. This Billy Smith figured in the campaign in 1898, when Calder opposed Hon. John Dryden, and the Tories spent about $7,000. Votes went as high as $15 and $20 apiece, and workers were rewarded handsomely when they succeeded in making the record at certain polling divisions favorable to their candidate. When certain persons were being prosecuted for bribery in January, 1900, Smith, under pressure, made a humiliating confession.

The following is an extract from his evidence, the questions being asked by Mr. Lount, (now judge), who was acting for the crown.

Did you use any money during the election? I did.

For what purpose? I suppose it was in buying votes.

How much did you use? I cannot tell you.

About how much? I cannot tell.

Over $100? I never bought a man personally myself.

Over $200? It might be.

Over $300? It might be.

Over $400? It might be.

Over $500? It might be.

Over $600? It might be.

Over $700? It might be.

Over $800? It might be.

Over $900? It might be.

Over $1,000? (No answer).

Mr. Lount—Over $900 you used for buying votes at that election? Yes, sir.

In answer to further questions witness admitted that one Baker showed him a list of names that would be required in Caledonia, to the extent of $100.

Judge Ferguson—Can you tell us how much more than $900 you paid? No, I can't.

Can you say not as much as $1,200? It could not be more than $1,200.

Will you say it was not more than $1,200? No, I cannot.

Have you any means of saying where Baker got the money that he actually did spend? Does he own a bank? No, sir.

Mr. Patterson, counsel for the accused, claimed that Smith, who gives his evidence in a candid manner.

Judge Oler—I should not call Mr. Smith's manner candid.

Mr. Patterson—He showed no disposition to fence with the counsel.

Judge Oler—I should call it disposition; that is the word.

In giving judgment Judge Ferguson remarked: "I look upon the evidence of Smith as being a brazen, distinct, strong denial—a denial that I do not believe, and I prefer to take the evidence of Baker as against the evidence of these other two. I think Mr. Smith's evidence cannot be too strongly condemned. As it bears on the question it is discredited by his admission that he was guilty of this gigantic corruption." He said further: "I have some regrets that this large offender, Mr. Smith, is not before us. I have nothing to say to him, but that his evidence is the most glaring piece of corruption I ever heard."

And the Mail says "Billy Smith" is a name to conjure with? It does not mean Billy Smith of South Ontario, and it is necessary to make the distinction.

THE PICKLING BUSINESS.

The pickle-maker, Heinz, of Alleghany City, Pa., is buying vegetables from Burlington district, and sending them back to Canada pickled. He at one time contemplated the erection of a factory near Hamilton, "but," the Spectator says, "he found that the Canadian tariff was sufficiently low to allow him to get his raw material here, to carry it to Alleghany City, put on the finishing touches there, and ship the completed article back to Canada for sale. That being the case Hamilton will get no Heinz pickle factory." The cure is what? A duty on vegetables. And the effect would be the end of an export trade on garden truck, which is for the time being very valuable to the Burlington district people. The soil and the climate may be such as to produce the vegetables Heinz wants, but he is not limited to one little plot of land, and Burlington would realize this if the tariff were amended to suit them. What Canadians should do, if they do not like Heinz's style, is to go into pickling on their own account. There does not appear to be any secret about the business.

THE PLOT OF 1884.

Mr. Rowell has been making an other great speech, bringing to light just what the conservative party means by saying that the pulpwood policy of Ontario should be made like that of the province of Quebec. Said he:

"What does the opposition policy involve? It means that the purchaser gets both land and timber, and if he gets an absolute grant of the land with the timber, he can deal with the timber as he pleases, so far as the government of the province is concerned. If there is pine or hard wood on the land, he may sell it off to purchasers of pine or hard wood, if there is pulpwood on the land he may sell it to purchasers of pulpwood, or may take all the timber to the United States to build up American industries. If the land is good for settlement or agriculture, he may keep it for a rise in value, or sell it to settlers for that purpose; or, if he thinks the value of timber will increase he may hold it for years to come, shutting out all settlement and tying up the new districts of Ontario.

"It opens the way to capitalists with large means at their disposal to buy immense areas of territory for very little, and keep them for an increase in value. No capital is invested, except the original purchase price; no industries are established; no employment given to working men. The new districts of the province which would be ready for cutting thirty years hence, passes to the purchaser, and so on in perpetuity, the people of the province receiving not one cent of benefit. The land is the purchase price. He has bought it at public competition and paid down his price in cash. He can do what he likes with it.

"By this means the government dispossesses itself of all power of control over the forest, ever preventing the sources of its streams, and of continuing the benefits to its people resultant from the existence of tracts of forest land ever increasing in value."

Mr. Rowell, beside explaining what the conservatives desire, called attention to the intimate connection between their present attitude and a great scandal of the past. Mr. Whitney is the solicitor of a Michigan lumber company, and so he knows that the lands of the state and the timber thereon are sold to the highest bidder, and Mr. Whitney knows, or ought to know, that Michigan has been denuded of its timber, and that its capitalists are seeking other lands which they can work in a similar way.

The bribery plot of 1884 was the scheme of the Michigan lumbermen to upset the Ontario government because they objected to the timber policy. The Ontario opposition was in sympathy with the conservative government at Ottawa, which had law suits growing out of the boundary reward, the rivers and streams' bill, and the right to control the liquor license system, and it would have profited by the conspiracy of 1884 had it succeeded. Said Mr. Rowell:

"The opposition has now a leader, however, who glories in the fact that he is 'bold enough to be honest,' and 'honest enough to be bold,' and so he is prepared to take the responsibility of making a proposition for such a change, not as to the pine timber, as was the case some twenty years ago, but this time with reference to the pulpwood lands of the province, so much coveted by the American lumbermen.

"If Mr. Whitney is retained to prosecute the case, this is the policy which, according to the declaration of resolution in the house he will put into operation.

"The American lumbermen and pulp manufacturers interested in the pulp lands of the United States, realize that their supplies are gradually being diminished, and they are turning longing eyes to Canada as a source of supply. Under the conditions existing in the province of Ontario, they have been able to obtain large limits, although, even there, they do not get the title to the land. I do not for a moment suggest that Mr. Whitney and his associates, in introducing this resolution in the house, did it with the intent of sacrificing the interests of the province of Ontario for the benefit of American lumbermen; but that would be the result of such a policy nevertheless. It simply shows the perilous position in which this province would place itself if it intrusted its vast domain to the management and control of men who promise us nothing good though it be, so far as it goes, than the good intentions of honest men." (Applause.)

"Any person will at once concede that if the pulpwood lands of the province were put up for public competition, a larger immediate cash return would be received than is received by the present method of dealing with them. Any man would pay more for both land and timber, free and untrammelled from any control or conditions, than he would if he only received the right to cut under the conditions now imposed by the government; but such a policy would be the policy of Emu—selling our birthright for a mess of pottage." (Applause.)

It is well that the electors should understand this question fully, and make no mistake about it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Marter declares that it was the giving of the first pulpwood concession in 1895, which settled Mr. Clergue in Sault Ste. Marie and gave the benefit of the millions he controls.

Mr. Tezler and Mr. Colquhoun, ex-mayors, Hamilton, one a liberal and the other a conservative, go down the street together, and the Spectator contains the event and labels it, "Strange bed-fellows."

Lord Salisbury, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and Mr. Barton, (federated Australia), are all opposed to the hurrying forward elaborate imperial schemes. But Sir Mackenzie Bowell says it is a mistake, and his opinion must prevail.

It was a mysterious providence that permitted the killing of that bright, rising genius Paul Leicester Ford by his worthless scamp of a brother—Exchange.

Had Providence anything to do with it?

Some years ago the conservative government at Ottawa undertook to give away New Ontario in blocks of fifty miles square to its friends, and the Mail, contemplating a fresh mission of same, refers to it as "Our Northern inheritance."

The Manitoba binder twine men object to any tariff change upon the imported article, because the American get a rebate on the raw material. The Brandon factory says it can fight the combine without tariff legislation. That's plucky.

Great pressure is being brought to bear upon Mr. Colquhoun to make him retire from the contest in West Hamilton. But his "Scotch is up" (as he said in an interview), and he refuses to be cajoled, coerced or cuffed into silence and retirement.

Complaint is made because Mr. Clinton, postmaster, has been replaced in Wellington, Prince Edward County. The post-office was being used as a conservative committee room, and, of course, the conservatives do not see any harm in that.

An American contemporary is persuaded that if the average working man's usefulness is over at forty-five, the old age pension scheme, which has been a success in Germany, must be introduced. The army of pensioners, above forty-five, will run into the millions.

A son of the late Sir John Thompson intimates that Ottawa is corrupt, that the electorate has been guilty of all sorts of offences. Nor is a cure in sight. The conservative candidates promise to "do everything in their power to get elected." That "everything" carries its own lesson.

"Mr. Whitney has been in the house for fourteen years, and I would like to know if anybody can point to a single motion in the journals of the house moved by him in all that time proposing or even suggesting any feasible scheme for the development of Ontario, new or old."—Hon. G. W. Ross.
