London, June 3 .- The announcement of the terms of peace has not affected the general jubiliation which has existed since the government on Sunday displayed Gen. Kitchener's message, telling of the end of the war. There were indications that the Londoners would make revel last night, but the sense of the general public. that the end of the war was a great occasion to give thanks and to settle down, prevented the usual easy holiday-makers from making a triumphal demonstration. There is a general @ tribute to colonial secretary Chamberlain. Next to Gen. Kitchener everybody credits him with the present! achievement.
