DEATH OF JOHN LAIDLAW. He Passed Away After Ten Days'

At noon (Tuesday) one of Kingston's most prominent citizens was called away by death. After an illness of ten days of crysipelas, John Laidlaw, Earl street, entered into rest. On Monday, it was thought,, he would gain the mastery over the dread disease, but a change came at night, and he sank rapidly. Mr. Laidlaw was conscious to the last.

The late Mr. Laidlaw was born in Kelso, Roxborough, Scotland, over seventy years ago .. He came to Canada when a boy of sixteen years, settling in Montreal, and by perseverance Piles To prove to you that Da Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. The deceased was a staunch Presbyterian, being an elder in Crescent street Presbyterian church, Montreal, for many years. He was also an elder in Chalmers church, Kingston, with which congregation he was idensince he came here eighteen

In politics, Mr. Laidlaw was a liberal. He was also a member of St. Andrew's society. As a citizen, Mr. Laidlaw was of the quiet and unassuming type, never looking for posi-tions of honor, but always loyal to the best interests of city and church. The funeral will be private. Service at the house will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Macgillivray, M.A., minister of Chalmers church, at noon on Wednesday. The remains will be taken on the 1.25 p.m. G.T.R. train to Montreal for interment in the family plot in Mount Royal cemeters where a son and a daughter of the deceased are

The Boer Prisoners in the British

Hands. London, June 3.-Answering a question in the house of commons, to-day the war secretary, Mr. Brodrick, said the total number of Boer prisoners in South Africa and elsewhere were 25, 565, of whom 783 were under sixteen and 1.025 over sixty years of age. The chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, answering a question finally announced that it was not proposed to remove the tax on grain from the budget.

Signing The Document. Pretoria, Transvaal, June 2.-The signing of the peace agreement, last the Orange Free State, and Gen. Schallberger and others of the Transvaal government, quietly met in the dining-room of the residence occupied by the burgher delegates, adjoining lord Kitchener's house. The document lay on a table ready and amid profound silence, the Boer leaders took a pen, in order of precedence, and affixed their signatures, thus surrendering Boer independence. The document was entrusted to Col. Hamilton, lord Kitchener's military secretary, and aide, who left Pretoria, to-night to deliver it to king Edward

The same is true on outside construction. Consider that the first 500 subscribers are within a radius of is one mile from the exchange, with an average of one-half mile of pole lines, and in full metallic circuit, it means one half mile of wire out and one half mile in; the second 500 come within a radius of two miles from the exchange, making an average distance of one and one-half miles for poles and wires, or three half miles out and three miles in, making the amount of construction to reach the outer 500 three times that of the first 500, and four times that required to serve the first 500 will be required to give service to 1,000. "I doubt whether this covers it all fleet s home. when we consider the amount of territory that must be covered by poles and wires as the circle increases. The territory covered in a radius of two miles is four times that, or sixteen square miles, requiring twelve square miles to be covered with poles and wires to serve the second 500, which added to the cost of the first 500. would make four times as much pole cost to serve 1,000 subscribers as it requires to serve 500. To serve the out districts the wires can pass over the poles of the first districts, but the poles will have to be much larger and cost more. The amount of cross-arms and wires and insulators is the same as if all the wires were put on separate poles from the central office out."

The reasons party is so confident as to the result why are many, some of which may be of these trials that it is already urg ing the employment of spirit instead of coal as fuel for the German navy. It is pointed out that a cubic metre of spirits has just double the heating power of a cubic metre of coal, and that the use of the former fuel will carry with it many and great advantages. For example, the disagreeable incidents of coaling would be avoided and stokers and trimmers would be dispensed with. For the supply would be regulated automatically, and steam could be got up much more quickly than at present. There would also be no smoke, a circumstance which, especially in the case of torpedo-boats, would be of great importance. Not only would Germany be in the hap-English coal, but she would have advantage over England in needing far fewer fuel stations abroad. German distilleries, too, are in a position to provide the navy with spirits in any quantity, whereas should England finally adopt the same fuel she would be dependent for her supplies on for eign countries, such as Russia and Austria. The extra initial cost of the new fuel will, it is considered, be compensated for by a reduction of labor and increased economy and cleanliness in working, and, as the agrarians add, when the defence of the country is concerned, the question of cost is a
