KNOCKED BY A TRAIN.

By Colliding With an Overhead Bridge.

The full report of the accident to Frank Millious, a Kingstonian, near Boise, Idaho, has been received. He was brakeman on the "Canon Ball" train, and was missed when it arrived at Boise in the evening. He had last been seen after the train had left Meridian, going forward to be ready to open a switch to the side track at still breathing, after searching for a mile and a half, and a sad accident was disclosed. He had been struck by an overhead bridge in a cut, where the cinders from the engine are usually blowing. The collision came at the base of the bridge and Millious was carried over two hundred feet, ere he rolled off down an embankment. The inmate man was immediately carried to Boise, but died in St. Alphonse hospital within twenty minutes of his arrival. The company's representatives spoke highly of deceased, as bright, intelligent and steady. He was in the line of early promotion as an efficient and popular employee. His brother, Melville, then of Great Falls, Montana, now back in Kingston, went promptly to Boise, and took charge of the remains, to convey them to a sorrowing family here. He was extolled the tenderest of sympathy and kindness at Boise.
