Kingston needs a few clergymen with the vim, the resourcefulness, the daring, the modern methods and the keen insight into the solution of the churches' problems, which characterize this old-world evangelist. We of this western hemisphere are wont to think of Great Britain and the continent as being too methodical, too plodding. too antiquated. In some respects this will be attached to the artillery conclusion is true, but in others they can teach us a lesson in new methods and broader, surer paths. That this is true in the field of church work, Mr. Jackson plainly evidenced last even-

"Hear, hear," In regard to the movement, most people were now saying Hear, hear, The movement began in an honest endeavor to grapple with the growing problem of indifference to the church. The non-church going problem does not exist in Canada to the extent that it does in England. There seventy-five per cent, of the people are outside of all the charches put together. In many of the densely populated sections only two or three per cent, of the people attend church. Even in church-going Scotland this problem is growing more acute. In Glasgow 300,000 or 400,000 peo> church is one thing, and indifference to religion is another thing, says some one. I believe that when a man ceases to care for the worship our ministers. They may become better and better as pastors and fold. This movement says that we must reconstruct our conception of the pur pose of the church. It is pre-eminent Christ. As Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, hasis of military operations for the high priest of the movement says: 'Our business is not to coddle saints, but to corral the sinners.' The key of the situation is the idaptation to circumstances. That is the best method which proves itself Mr. Jackson lamented the antiquity
