The morning was occupied in viewing some of the great industrial establishments of Peterboro and the section of Apply at 262 Sydenam street the river where dreaging is required. In the afternoon the minister attended a monster picnic held by Douro parish church, at which fully 1,500 people were present. In the evening mayor and council of Peterboro entertained Mr. Tarte and his guests, Mr. Julien, governor of St. Pierre and CRESCENT BROOCH, WITH PEARLS AT Miquelon, and Mr. Duvos, Belgian consul to Canada, at a dinner at the Oriental hotel, Mayor Denne presided and about forty persons were present. In his reply to the toast of his health, Mr. Tarte dilated at length on the transportation question. Referring to the completion of the Trent Valley canal, he said that although it would cost several millions of dollars, he would recommend to his colleagues the immediate carrying out of the work. The other speakers of the evening included Mr. Julien, governor of St. Pierre and Miquelon; Mr. Duvos, Belgian consul to Canada; senator Mc-Hugh and Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Delivered At A Banquet In Johannesburg

IN PROPOSING THE HEALTH the Laval jubilee fund. OF THE GENERAL.

A Corps That Stood Staunch in Danger and Held What They Had Gained-The Chief Lesson of the War, All Britons Stand Together.

Johannesburg, June 20 .- Gen. Kitchener delivered a farewell speech at a banquet here last night that was attended by seven hundred citizens. Lord Milner was present as the civic head of the new state. Lord Milner in proposing health to Gen Kitchener, paid a tribute to his will of steel, untiring energy and military skill. Gen. Kitchener, replying to a toast describing him as the man who had won their freedom, said the army had done its best to do its duty. He praismen had played in the war. The gulars, both officers and men, mired the Johannesburg corps, which had stood staunch in danger, and held what they had gained. They had tasted the salt of life, and its savor would never leave them. They should keep their horses and rifles ready and their bodies physically fit but should settle down and work for the empire. Their opponents had shown the abilities and tenacity of purpose of a virile race, and they should be welcomed into the empire. They would constitute an asset of considerable importance. The chief lesson of the war was the knowledge that all Britons fought shoulder to shoulder. Those who had helped them, knew they in South Africa and elsewhere, would help their countrymen when needed The speech was enthusiastically ceived. Earlier in the day the perial light horse, which was Ladysmith and which was prominent throughout the war, and other Johannesburg corps, were reviewed by

SCORED ADMIRALTY.

Remarks Made by Lord

London, June 20 .- Before a crowded house in the commons, to-day, lord Charte: Beresford heavily scored the British admiralty for inefficiency, He declared that the supply of coal was insufficient, that the number of men in the reserves should be 80,000. while the engine room departments were thousands short. Both the French and American ships had superior guns to those of the British vessels he said. When anything rotten was discovered nothing was done till outside agitation compelled it, because nobody was directly responsible. Great Britain, lord Beresford said, would blunder on until a thinking depart ment was established at the admiral ty, and a separate business board in of the treasury to control the fatal in-All efficiency.
