I've been shining now for ages And my pleasure is to spoil them. For I struck a kind this morning That would not grow quickly faint, And I found, by asking Venus, That 'twas " Rampay's Outside Paint."

Why I shope and shope upon it.
So's to make the paint degrade;
And I nearly had a sun-burst
O'er this stuff that they have made.
When I saw my work quite usel-ss.
Then I called on every mint;
But they, too, could not affect it—
"Twas your "Ramsay's Outside Phint."

And now. Sir; here's my order; Of your brightest Golden Yellow; Anti please send it C.O.D. You see the Sun needs painting. And I wanted something quaint; So I thought I'd send an order For your "Ramsay's Outside Paint."

The Kind Of Work Kingston Does Not Do.

Montreal merchants and manufacturers have, under auspices of the board of trade, formed a business men's league, to advertise the city, to bring people to it, to encourage cour tesy to strangers and to exploit national characteristics and historical associations. An information bureau is sustained. Three hundred merchants pay a fee of $5 a year to cover expenses. The league has issued an ele gant souvenir pamphlet, giving views of city buildings and institutions and much interesting reading.
