The cardinal shows few signs of his increasing years. His eye is as bright and his step as quick and elastic as twenty years ago. Every day when the We Have Some Very Exweather permits he walks from five to ty-five, was accidentally killed by a ten miles, and takes great delight in tiring out members of the clergy, one of whom always accompanies him on his long tramps torough the city and country. Next year the cardinal is to celebrate his silver jubilee and arrangements are already being made to make it the most elaborate event of the kind that has ever been celebrated in this country.

Fall Of Pumic Stone.

Baltimore, July 23.-It has just become known that during last Sunday's tornado showers of pumice stone fell in south-east Baltimore. In the yard of William Duffy, in Albermarle street, more than a bushel of particles fell, each about the size of a pea. Residents on neighboring streets had the same experience. There is no pumice stone in this region and the phenomenon has aroused much speculation. The pumice when crushed has a sulphuric odor, and it is suggested that it may have blown from some active volcano. Scientists here will investigate the
