Charlie is noted for wear ing a certain brand of "good luck" shirts made espe fally to his order by the Good Luck manufacturing com pany, and when he comes out in a brand new one, it's usually "all off" with the other fellows.

That they were successful was very evident from the smiling countenaces of the spectators as they boarded the home cars at 5.50 o'clock that evening. The new professional umpire system went into effect, and while on the whole, Umpire Watts proved satisfactory, his decisions on balls and strikes were sometimes ragged.
