THE FACTS ARE COMING OUT

MAD PRISONER IS OF OLD AMERICAN FAMILY.

Anxious to Secure his Release-Was Pal of Murderer Burk-A Letter From Warden Platt. A despatch to the Montreal Herald

from Moncton, N.B., says: Two months ago a letter from New Pa. York was addressed and registered to a gentleman in Moncton, N.B. The letter was signed "Felix Ambrose," and asked information concerning "Jim," the somewhat remarkable prisoner who was found guilty and sentenced to twenty-five years in the penitentiary for being an accessory in the mur der of Policeman Joseph E. Steadman. The letter further stated that "Jim" was the wayward son of wealthy and aristocratic American parents, who were grieved and pained on account of the wayward life he had led. And the question was asked, "Can money, or the appeal of influential friends in the state of New York, secure for this wayward son a reduction of sentence or a pardon?" His parents are weal thy and his family and family descendants belong to the best stock in the union. Should the Canadian authorities feel that the unfortunate prisoner has suffered sufficient punishment the friends of the family would petition the secuctary of state for Canada or the attorney-general for the Dominion high courts. The party to whom the letter was Require furnishing in keeping addressed replied to Mr. Ambrose, and dominion officials and told him that Mattings in pretty designs and the trick was worth trying. He at the Kingston penitentiary and made cer tain enquiries concerning "Jim." and he received the following letter:

"Kingston Penitentiary, "Kingston, Ont., July 25, 1992.

Moneton, N.B. "Dear Sir,-Re 'Jim Doe,' so-called replying to yours of July 12th, this convict is still here and is in the insane ward. He might be transferred to the asylum if pardoned. Yours truly, J. M. Platt, Warden. There is no doubt about "Jim" having come of good parents and that he is educated. Hon. A. G. Blair, who prosecuted him as attorney-general, declared to the jury that he was not only educated, but that he was an educated and accomplished scoundrel. He understood the nature of criminal evidence to such an extent that he knew when anything was telling against him and frowned. And when That our stock is new and his counsel made a point in his favor, he smiled and seemed to brighten up, man with the camera who tried press. The letter from Warden Platt would seem to leave the impression that a pardon for him is possible, and that in the event of his being pardoned, he would be transferred to a lunatic asylum. "Jim" was convicted at Dorchester in 1892, and sentenced by the late Judge Fraser. During the time he was in Dorchester prison he was a stubborn and rebellious prisoner and spent a good deal of his time in idleness refusing to work, and quarrelling with the officers and his guards. His real name is James Christy, and he spent a good deal of his early life in Upper Canada, having been chased across the line by American detectives, who connected him with daring bank robberies, safe Street. eracking and working "jimmy" business houses in United States ies. Sharp at 7:30 p.m., the word start was given, and the two rival tains started their fires. In seven and a half minutes Mr. McAuley's vacht had steam up and was under way while it was not till four minutes later that Capt. Wessel's yacht had enough steam to proceed. The boats dashed down the river and rounded Ceciar island, Capt. Wessel's yacht hugging the shore, while his opponent took a much longer course further out to avoid the shoals and rocks. The genial book dealer's yacht not only got started sooner, but it outdistanced its opponent in the race, crossing the line seven and a half minutes in advance of Capt. Wessel's vacht. There was loud cheering from the many spectators when the victorious craft sounded her triumphant whistle loud and long as she crossed the line.
