Truth About Cleveland.

The truth is that Mr. Cleveland was not a political failure, but an almost unparalleled political success. His defeat of the politicians resulted not in his defeat, but in two successive nominations, marked by the most signal and conspicuous proofs of his enemies' impotence; and that he succumbed not to the opposition, but to adverse circumstances of the most unusual kind, and such as can furnish no basis for a warning to others in circumstances wholly unlike them.

POACHING CONTINUES.

To Ask For Dismissal of the Fisheries Inspector.

A great many United States fishermen have been engaged in hooking big bass around the Brother Islands, and few of them had a Canadian license. A citizen saw three United States in a boat and only one had the necessary license.

"It is about time that a stop was put to poaching," said the citizen in question. "Every fishing ground swarms with foreign fishermen who are poaching in our reserves, without hindrance or question. I intend circulating a petition, asking the government to dismiss the fisheries inspector in this district for neglect of duty. I have reported cases to him repeatedly, but he has not taken any notice of them."

"These lines have been operated for many years as practically a link of the New York Central system and have handled the business from the Central for points on the St. Lawrence river known as the Thousand Island region."

"It is expected that if such an absorption takes place the Folgers will have handled the business from the new lines of steamers. A number of New York Central officials, among whom were W. J. Wilgus, chief engineer, and D. C. Moon, superintendent of the R. W. & O. division, and others of the engineering department, arrived here this morning on a tour of inspection."

The World Will Get Along.

When Kaiser Wilhelm shuts his eyes The world will get along somehow; He's great, but even when he dies The world will get along somehow; Although he is God's special choice, When men have ceased to hear his voice They'll still have triumphs, still rejoice The world will get along somehow— Somehow, somehow— The world will get along somehow.

A Resourceful Woman.

Youth's Companion. Women of the present generation have not lost all the characteristics of their grandmothers. No colonial housewife could have done better in an emergency than the New Jersey woman who fell into a well the other day. As there was no one within call she had to save herself or drown, so she climbed up the rope. When she got out she discovered that the kitchen had caught fire from an overheated stove. She instantly pulled a bucket of water up from the well and rushed to the house with it and put out the fire. Then she got some dry clothes on and went about her work as usual.

The Other Way Now.

Chicago Inter-Ocean. Fifty years ago the future of Canada seemed well-nigh certain to be that desired by the founders of this republic. Now the tendency is all the other way. It is a question upon which the American people may well ponder, whether they desire to estrange further their third best customer in the world, or whether real reciprocity with Canada would not be beneficial to us as well as to her.

MORE TALK OF FOLGER LINES BEING ABSORBED.

It is Also Said the Central Will Run Steamers From Lewiston to Montreal or Quebec.

This hot weather story is furnished by the Syracuse, N.Y., Post-Standard by its Clayton, N.Y., correspondent: "The most important development in steamboat service on the St. Lawrence river in recent years is, according to reports, about to be consummated in the near future, when the New York Central railroad company will absorb the Thousand Island and St. Lawrence river steamboat companies, which are now operated and owned by the Folgers."

"These lines have been operated for many years as practically a link of the New York Central system and have handled the business from the Central for points on the St. Lawrence river known as the Thousand Island region."

"It is expected that if such an absorption takes place the Folgers will have handled the business from the new lines of steamers. A number of New York Central officials, among whom were W. J. Wilgus, chief engineer, and D. C. Moon, superintendent of the R. W. & O. division, and others of the engineering department, arrived here this morning on a tour of inspection."

One of Bismarck's.

Once when Bismarck was a cavalry officer he was standing with other officers on a bridge. His groom, Hildebrand, rode one of the horses to water close by the lake. The horse lost footing, and Hildebrand disappeared with it in the water. Before the other officers could collect their senses Bismarck had cast off his sword and uniform and had thrown himself in the lake to save his servant. By good fortune brought him safe to land in an unconscious condition. The next day the little town that had witnessed the brave rescue was in great commotion. They petitioned the superintendent, who obtained for the young officer the medalion "for rescue from danger."

And on great occasions the well-known Prussian safety medal was seen beside the proudest stars in Christendom on the breast of the famous creator of united Germany. Bismarck was prouder of his first medal than of all the rest put together.

Too Weak to Work and Had Severe Headaches—Remarkable Influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

When a person gets weak and run down in health, the fault is usually with the blood supply—the blood is deficient in quantity or quality. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a wonderful system-builder, because it forms new blood and creates new nerve force.

The Nerve Food seemed to build me up generally, and so made a thorough cure of my old trouble. I would not think of being without Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in the house, and would strongly recommend anyone suffering as I did to give it a trial. It succeeded in my case after a great many remedies had failed."

NOT FACTOR IN INDUSTRY.

More Money in Selling Lambs and Fat Wethers.

Philadelphia Record. Wool has almost ceased to be a factor in the sheep industry, as farmers have discovered that there is more money in selling early lambs and fat wethers than to depend solely upon wool as a source of profit from sheep. The fleece is simply a by-product, and no progressive farmer now expects to make sheep pay with the wool as the principal source of revenue from the flock. The majority of farmers do not have large flocks, twenty-five sheep being considered as above the average, and they are kept largely because they are of valuable assistance on the farm in consuming weeds and other waste materials that possess no value. It is well-known that a flock of sheep will clear a field of weeds rapidly, and they will also keep the pests down. While so doing they distribute manure evenly on the ground and press it into the soil with their feet. For these advantages from sheep there are farmers who would not be without them, as they save labor and demand but little attention. It has been frequently demonstrated that from fields upon which large flocks of sheep have been handled the yields of grain have been doubled, due to the fertility added to the soil by the sheep. Farmers who give their attention to early lambs and the production of choice mutton have found Southdown rams excellent for the improvement of the common flocks, as the Southdown is hardy, and such sheep can be kept in larger flocks than the Oxford or Shropshire, though the latter breeds are larger in size than the Southdown. The preference for the Southdown is also due to the fact that the grades are excellent foragers and can subsist on scanty herbage compared with some other breeds or crosses. Wherever cattle are kept sheep can find a place, as the sheep will clean up lands upon which the cattle may leave much that could be turned into profit. No farmer, however, can expect the best results from sheep without care; but sheep require less attention than other animals on the farm.
