pear Again at Marion, Mass. Marion, Mass., Aug. 8.-Tarred and feathered and ridden on a rail, horsewhipped and driven out of Marion was the experience that one James McDonald, said to hail from Boston, went through last night. Marion was in wild excitement for two hours, while a gang of lifty sixty irate citizens were giving Mc-Donald the time of his life. At last accounts, when liberated at the Mattapoisett line, just before midnight, he was alive, but pretty badly used up. McDonald, it is said, has been living for a month or more in a family on Mill street and the neighbors o' jected to his position in the household. Furthermore, it was suspected that McDonald, who is a bartender by trade, having worked in Boston, New Bedford and other places, had been dispensing liquor at the house. Prohibitory Law. Portland, Me., August 8.-The Rev. Samuel F. Pearson, the prohibitionist sheriff of Cumberlantl county, who was elected in 1900, rigidly enforced the prohibitory law, and was a candidate for re-election in September, died Poland Springs, yesterday, where he had been ill four weeks.

Rev. Samuel F. Pearson was a clergyman of only local reputation until he leaped into prominence, two years ago, through his unexpected election as sheriff of Cumberland county, Me. (of which Portland is the most important part) by the prohibition party on a platform of strict enforce ment. He lived up to his pledge, and devoted himself to the task with all the spirit of a fanatic, and the energy of a man who was ready to sacrifice his life, if necessary to the success of his endeavor. He met with a large degree of success, but he had been much saddened of late months by seri ous charges of corruption against his deputies, which seemed to have some foundation in at least one case. He had not been in robust health when elected, and the strain upon mind and body was too severe for a weak constitution to endure. He had been no minated for a second term, and his dying wish will be respected, that his party should take a trusted deputy in his stead, but the campaign becomes a different thing when this fiery spirit disappears.
