INSTITUTES FOR WOMEN.

What the farmers' institutes have done for the men the women's institutes hope to do for the farmers' wives and daughters. Two years ago the superintendent of institutes made arrangements and called meetings in different parts of the province, and there are now forty-two organized women's institutes, with a membership of 3,048.

A hand book of women's institutes has been issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture for use at meetings during fall and winter. It contains specimen programmes, suggests topics of study, contains lists of good books, bulletins and other publications helpful in the home. Articles appear from Canadian and American authors, on the home, care and furnishing of the house, care of children, treatment of servants, housekeeping as a profession, housekeeping in the country, etc. Mrs. Martha Van Rensselaer, of Cornell university, gives hints in economizing time and money in the home. "How to Build the Farm Home" is discussed, and illustrations of convenient country houses are given, together with the plan of construction, etc. "A simple Method of Disposing of House Sewage" has been written by an officer in the Department of Public Works.

PROFITABLE STUDY.
There are a good many farmers in this province who would enjoy life more than they do if they studied pigs with the same assiduity that they study politics, remarks the St. Thomas Journal, a conclusion editors all over Canada will concur in.

There is money for the farmer in knowing all about hogs. There is only trouble with the neighbors in knowing all about politicians.

How to fatten hogs is knowledge of greater value than how to elect M.P.s.

There is not so much excitement in it, perhaps—but then there is not so much likelihood of a mortgage settling down on a man's property if he pursues the peaceful occupation of raising pork, and leaves politics (as a pursuit) to lawyers.

Every man should keep posted on the politics of the country, but he should not make a steady job of it. There is corn, and wheat, and hay, and pigs to raise and this is the serious business of life on a farm—or should be—politics is his recreation, and only when it occupies that place in his mind is he safe from the loan company and the foreclosure proceedings.

When a farmer knows all about pigs, and how they grow best, he can begin on cattle, and having made his fortune, he can go into politics as a recreation.

WILL THE ENTERPRISE PAY?

The fast Atlantic service is not an assumed fact—far from it. The men who are most interested, who swing a large influence, and represent a large invested capital, the merchant shipping men and boat owners, are against it.

Naturally enough these men dislike the opposition of a subsidized line. They are warranted in attacking a scheme which may be detrimental to them, because the new line will get the preference in many ways and have the benefit of an unearned increment. The subsidy is unearned because it is not for service rendered. It is the gift of the people for the assurance of the receivers that the desires of the people will be carried out.

A Claim Rejected.

The executive committee of Ontario diocese met on Monday afternoon to receive the report of the special committee appointed to consider the claim of Rev. Thomas Godden to a share of the Clergy Commutation Fund, $400 per year. He resigned the incumbency of Shannonville, in 1896, and was not again licensed in the diocese; but he served as assistant without license at St. Thomas' church, Belleville, until 1898. Letters from the archbishop and clerical secretary as well as the synod notices, recognized Mr. Godden as a retired clergyman, still on the diocesan lists, and, therefore, entitled to privileges. But he moved to Newfoundland, and there was licensed to a parish, took the oath and signed the roll of another diocese. The committee considered that by resignation first and fully, another diocese he had forfeited claim to Ontario's funds, and their report was adopted by the executive committee. In taking this step the members of committee felt regret, and would assuredly vote some compensation to Mr. Godden could it be legally done.

However the men who have represented the Canadian and imperial governments have not been dreaming. The subject was under consideration for a long time, and under two Canadian governments. It has been looked at and regarded from every standpoint. Every step is being deliberately taken.

Will the fast line pay? Will it justify the proposed subsidy? The government must be sure of this before definite action is taken.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The Brockville Recorder says Premier Ross will take a day off and tell Mr. Whitney, about all the great sights the latter came within one of being able to see at the coronation.

The New York Central RR. offers to run its trains in and out of New York by electricity. The price is high, $11,000,000, but it is a start on a new line of experiments, the results from which may be very surprising.

The ordinary household fly is partly responsible for the spread of cholera in the Philippines, according to a report made by Major Maus, commissioner of public health for the Philippine Islands, to the war department.

It was the three R's—rum, Romanism and rebellion—of Rev. Dr. Burchard that defeated Blaine for the U. S. presidency, but now President Schurman, of Cornell university, has three others: Roosevelt, the nation's leader, reciprocity with Cuba, the nation's duty, and revision of the tariff, the nation's interest.

The Governor General and Lieutenant Governor Jette, with their staffs, together attended the coronation service in the Anglican cathedral at Quebec. Therefore in this staunch home of Roman Catholicism the prejudices of religion were obliterated in the sincere expression of a contented loyalty.

GANANOQUE'S MAIDENS.

What The Man In The Moon Related About Them.

The Man in the Moon, by the aid of wireless telegraphy, had a twenty-minute chat with the Whig last night. From him, the reporter ascertained that all Gananoque girls do not chew gum or scratch at baseball matches. This jolly old governor-general of the green-cheese satellite, whose smiling countenance beams over many a close-seated couple these nights, declares that there are many among the large array of handsome maidens of our old Indian village who are as prim as our grandmothers, in the days of hoop skirts and plaid shawls. He says, that only one-half of Gananoque's feminine population are numbered among the chic summer girls, who are more precious than an ice-cream soda, and all the sweet things one can eat are not to be compared to them. They toll not, neither do they spin, except upon the waters around Tremont Park in canoes and skiffs.

None who once meet the dear Gananoque damsels, he remarked, ever return home with their former biased opinion. Gananoque sends them forth; they stand upon the steamboat wharf in their gay dresses, halter heads, dimpled necks, and twinkling eyes. But, said the jolly Moon Man, in most solemn tones, it is far better to go away back and dwindle upon the farm than to get within reach of an angry "Gananokey" summer girl. Happily, however, the majority of them no longer wear the war feathers of their ancestors, the great warrior chiefs. Instead, in their roof plumage appears the white feather, the emblem of peace.

Then our sky-pilot friend said good-bye, and promised to ask all the Gananoque maidens to attend the Kingston fair.

Gigantic Possessions.

Glen Falls, N.Y., Standard, in commenting on the coal strike and the probable heavy price for coal, remarks: "One thing is quite certain, namely, that either now or at some other time a method of heating must be devised which will take the place of anthracite coal. The steady advance in the price of anthracite ought to hasten the discovery and development of a new fashion in heating houses."

The committee considered that by resignation first and fully, another diocese he had forfeited claim to Ontario's funds, and their report was adopted by the executive committee.

Against Mr. Godden's opinion stands that of Sir William Van Horne, who, as president of the Canadian Pacific Railway company, and long before it anticipated the action it has taken in bidding for the service, dwelt upon the need of a fast Atlantic steamship line for the development of Canada's trade with Europe. Sir William is not a romancer, but a commercial critic of the highest value. The Canadian Pacific railway company, too, is a business organization which is not given to rash conclusions. When it tendered for the fast service it means business, and it has figured the whole thing out.

THE FINE BAND CONCERT

COMPLIMENTARY CONCERT AND FIREWORKS.

Was Given in Macdonald Park in Honor of the Coronation of the King—There Was a Great Gathering of Citizens.

The king can now feel assured that his position as king is secure, since the royal subjects of this burg have done him the honor to recognize his coronation with an open air band concert and display of fireworks. The celebration came a little late, but the people wanted to be sure that the crowning had taken place, and that their efforts at a celebration were not in vain.

There must have been between 6,000 and 8,000 people gathered in Macdonald Park to listen to the beautiful music rendered by the 14th Regimental band, and to be further entertained by a splendid display of fireworks, set off from the pavilion. The programme offered by the band was made up largely of patriotic airs and national music. The bandmen excelled themselves and received enthusiastic applause for their music. There was a splendid display of fireworks, there being a continuous shower of skyrocketts, Roman candles, etc., for over an hour. The aquatic display did not materialize; there was a large number of skiffs in the water fronting the park, but they failed to show any illumination.

Unquestionably is a Serge Suit. It answers the purpose on more occasions and will look well longer than almost any other kind of a suit
