Sir Wilfrid Laurier starts with Sir Gilbert Parker today for the Channel Islands and Paris, and will visit Rome before turning to London in September. He will not discuss the work of the imperial conference, but it is an open secret that he has exerted a decisive influence in keeping the colonies out of what he calls the vortex of European armaments. There is, without a doubt, vigorous effort on the part of Mr. Chamberlain to concentrate attention on this subject as the most available ground for common action, but there has been a complete failure to commit the colonies to a costly policy of the military and naval defence of the empire. Miss Deacon, backed by the Duchess Marlborough, indignantly refused part with the precious love token. Messenger succeeded messenger, each of higher rank, and each more diplomatic and caressing in his manner until at last Miss Deacon, in a fit anger and wounded love, threw ring in the emperor's representative's face.
