Paine's Celery Compound

THE GREAT HEALTH AND STRENGTH GIVER.

No Other Medicine Can Afford or Guarantee Such Happy Results.

Men and women; young and old; of every rank in life, freely admit that they are more "conscious of overtaxed nervous strength in the hot weather than at any other season."

When such a condition is experienced, Paine's Celery Compound affords advantages and results that no other remedy can offer with honesty. It vigorously cleanses the blood and regulates the tardy circulation. It strengthens and encourages the kidneys and enables them to filter from the blood all waste and morbid matters; it secures strong, firm nerves, gives sweet and natural sleep to the nerve-tired and brain-weary. In a word, Paine's Celery Compound is a true summer life-giver and health-builder. J. Radston, of Nixon, Ont., says:

"It is now a year past since I had a severe attack of nervous prostration caused by chronic dyspepsia, and I could not sleep at night. This condition of sleeplessness brought on delirium. I was attended by four of the best doctors, and took a great quantity of medicine, but all failed to do me any good. I thought I would try your Paine's Celery Compound. After I had used four bottles the nervousness and dyspepsia left me, and I have done more work since than for years past. I now enjoy excellent health and consider myself completely cured."

TO PRISON FOR 15 YEARS

BANKER ANDREWS SENTENCED BY JUDGE MURPHY.

Accused Never Winched Prisoner Sent up for Long Term for Misappropriating and Misappropriating Funds.

Detroit, Aug. 19.—Judge Murphy has sentenced Frank C. Andrews, found guilty, Saturday, of having misappropriated and misappropriated funds of the wrecked City Savings bank, to fifteen years at hard labor in Jackson prison. He had previously refused to grant Andrews' bail, pending the settlement of the bill of exceptions which his attorney will file.

An exception to the ruling denying bail was taken by defendant's attorneys and it was announced that they will leave for Lansing to apply to the supreme court for a writ of error on this point. Andrews never winced when sentence was pronounced. He was taken back to jail immediately.

A few months before the crash came which swept away his fortune and left him in a felon's cell, Andrews was one of the richest and most prosperous men in Detroit.

He lived in magnificent style in a house on Woodward avenue which cost him $100,000; he was police commissioner, he owned stock in half a dozen banks, in several electric railroads, and in numerous valuable properties.

He was the vice-president of the City Savings Bank, controlled a leading newspaper and was the treasurer of three trolley lines.

Within six months he had lost every farthing of his wealth, and to feed his passion for speculation had robbed others of nearly $2,000,000.

Andrews' career is an illustration of the proverb concerning the beggar on horseback. He was born about thirty years ago in the little town of Romeo, near this city, and until 1890 his ambition had not enabled him to rise above a clerkship in a country store.

In 1890 he came to Detroit with $85 in his pocket and secured a job as a clerk in a real estate firm. His push, his tireless energy and his inordinate love for work won him quick promotion, and at the end of his first year of service he had $3,000 in bank.

Then he went home, married his sweetheart and returned to Detroit to begin "real work."

At the end of two years Andrews had cleared $26,000 and was still winning. He was placed at the head of the loan department of the real estate firm and began his third year in Detroit as a full partner in the house.

In 1895 the rising young capitalist and financier first felt the fever of speculation which was ultimately to prove his ruin. Thus far he had wisely invested his savings in bank stock, and was now a power in the financial world of Detroit. His fortune waxed larger and larger, until in 1900 he had acquired so much of the stock of the City Savings Bank that he succeeded in getting himself elected vice-president. The president of the bank was Frank C. Pingree, a brother of the late Hazen Pingree, but the actual management of the institution was largely in the hands of the daring financier from Romeo.

Andrews had by this time proved himself a successful speculator, and he was open in his advocacy of that method of getting rich. He speculated freely, bet on stocks with the coolness of a veteran, and, as was generally believed, won some millions in his ventures. But the day on which he was drawn into the betting on amalgamated Copper stock was the beginning of his downfall.

The banker played copper heavily, and by degrees had added property after property to the burning pile. His railroad stocks went, then his real estate, then his home—then his stock in the banks of other cities, and finally he saw ruin staring him in the face.

One day in January last President Pingree took a little trip to New York to be gone a week or so. The first day that Andrews was left alone at the bank for overdrew his account at the bank for $100,000 and cashed worthless cheques for $300,000 more.

Then came the explosion, but the buoyant young financier did not seem to care. He was cheerful in his prison cell, and did not worry about the mean things said of him in the papers. Although he had many friends before his fall, it was only with the greatest difficulty that he secured bondsmen for the $10,000 at which his bail was fixed.

ONE REASON WHY.

Kingston is not a wholesale centre, therefore has not a large volume of local advertising. The space taken by general advertisers far exceeds home orders, and therein lies the success of the Whig, why Kingston gets so good a paper. The outside advertising comes from confidence in the circulation and results attained. One ground of confidence is that for twenty years has regularly given detailed statements of its circulation to New York and other agencies.
