He arrived in Londón on coronation morning from America. and made his way up Whitehall to the police lines around the abbey without permit or ticket. All difficulties were overcome when he presented a letter from Senator Spooner, with this indorsement at the bottom: "J. Chapple is a very good fellow, who has done excellent work. (Signed) Theodore Roosevelt."

This proved an open sesane into the abbey. Inspector Baird and Sir Ed ward Bradford took the president at his word, and after allowing the Wis consin editor to witness the arrival of the royal procession at the portals of the entrance hall, conducted him into TWO STEAMBARGES, ONE 110 FEET the north transcept and gave him an long, 22 feet beam, the other 97 feet excellent place, where he could see the peeresses in all their glory and the ceremonies in the theatre and sacrari-
