Ponies Beat Gananogue From the Start—Several Brilliant Plays—Canton Has Disbanded—Standing of the League.

Ponies did to Gananogue yesterday what they should have done last Wednesday—beat them to a standstill. It would have been a shut-out, only Hunt allowed a throw of Moriarity's to get a few feet away from him, and Corrigan was almost on the plate before "Jerry" could send the ball to "Changer" Elliott's residence. That was how Gananogue got their one miserable score.

No pitcher was ever accorded better support than the Ponies gave Moriarity. They played with a snap that put the match in their grasp from the start. There were several pretty plays witnessed, the most sensational being Easton's catch of Randolph's low fly to left field, which "Dyson" took while on the dead run. He caught the ball at his ankle, and received a volley of applause. In the same innings, Tilton did a similar trick. After a long run he reached Ross' short fly, and embraced it as tightly as he would a dainty forty-second cousin. "Fritz" hung his head like a shy boy when the crowd cheered. The other notable play was a catch in the seventh by Islin, who hauled in a dangerous little pop beyond second base.

The first ball Duquette pitched, Easton drove into left field, and came home on Tilton's smash past right fielder Wiggins. Tilton scored on Duquette's overthrow to third. Elliott marked the ball for three bags in the second, and scored easily on Hunt's fly to Randolph.

Ponies didn't score again till the eighth, when Daley reached first on Cota's error. Elliott got his base on balls, and then Hunt hit safely to left, scoring Daley. Moriarity's hit through Elliott home, and on Easton's "Jerry" hooked to the plate.

Cota rapped out a hit in the ninth, but a double play by Moriarity, Dorgan and Hunt closed the proceedings. "Curly" Ross did the best work for Gananogue, being "At Home" to a number of air-shooters. He covered left, centre and right field.

Little bugger Wiggins is again a citizen of Gananogue. He appeared yesterday in right field, although he is now at home behind the bat. Wiggins will remain in "Garanogkway" as long as the kind-hearted people down there give him six meals a day.

Dorgan, Ponies' new short stop, is of the starchy order. He takes everything that goes his way, and tosses to bag No. 1 in a beautiful manner. His work yesterday caught the crowd's marked appreciation. And he is a hitter, too.

Moriarity's hit in the eighth was the means of putting five dollars in his purse. He won a pool by naming the score seven to one in Ponies' favor. That was the closest guess.

Although Gananogue used small-sized trees trunk, could't land on Moriarity's left hand twists. The Pony pitcher was in his best form, and had stonewall support. Duquette was freely batted.

"Dimmy" Burke is now the only auctioneer the Ponies have. He has all the chattering to do.

There were about 800 people in attendance at Gananogue's game on Monday. The Ponies are playing road league ball, and should continue to attract large crowds.

Easton, Burke and Elliott each made two hits. Islin was the only Pony who failed to land the ball safely. "Foxy Grandpa" is a batter all the same.

Corrigan, Wiggins, McGuire and Cota made Gananogue's four hits. Gananogue-Brennan, 1b.; Cota, 2b.; McCarthy, c.; Ross, cf.; Randolph, lf.; McGuire, 3b.; Corrigan, s.; Wiggins, rf.; Duquette, p.

General Resume of Sport.

Ponies' pitchers standing is: Moriarity, won 6; lost 3; Ambrose, won 6, lost 6.

The Shamrock-Cornwall tie lacrosse match will be replayed on the grounds of the latter on either September 6th or 20th.

So far as known, the Ponies will be held together only till September 7th. The club will finish the season with a clean sheet.

Umpire Watt has proved himself a capable official in the St. Lawrence League, and will always be welcomed in Kingston.

England's supremacy in the cricket field, which once was undoubted, at last appears to be in danger of being wrested from her by Australia.

Ottawa Free Press: Ottawa rugby teams should be strong this season and will line up practically the same as in the final match of the season of 1901.

By defeating the Tecumsehs on Saturday, the Brantford team won the C. L. A. championship, and will now challenge Montreal Shamrocks for the Minto cup.

Ambrose desires to thank the man who spread the report that he had kidney trouble, and will recommend him for membership in the National League of Liars.

The international cricket match, Canada vs. the United States, will be played this year at Philadelphia, either on September 12th and 13th or September 19th and 20th.

Blocking the catcher's throw to second has grown so open and deliberate this year in the Eastern League as to be looked upon now as a matter of course. Batters actually throw themselves into the catcher's arms this year.

Toronto Telegram: Tobin, the big Cornell defence man, may yet in the game again. The report that he was in a Montreal hospital suffering from brain trouble is a canard. No Cornell man ever has brain trouble.

The Canton team, of the St. Lawrence International Baseball League, has disbanded, and its remaining two matches will be credited one to the Ponies and one to Gouverneur. Ponies were to have played at Canton to-day, but were saved the trouble and expense.

THE KNOCKERS' CLUB.

Discusses the Ages of Certain Persons.

Members of the Knockers' Club lounged about Congress Hall last evening, and the chief topic of discussion was the age of Ponies' second baseman Islin, whose aliases are "Foxy Grandpa" and "Uncle Sam."

"I heard an alderman in the grand stand declare that Islin played against the old Park Nine fifteen years ago," remarked one of the club.

"Why he played with the old St. Lawrence team in 1875," chirped in another Knocker.

"Uncle Sam" Islin is just forty-three years old," was the cold-blooded remark of treasurer McDemott.

"Well, to satisfy you lazy loafers, I'll tell you my age—I'm just twenty-eight." This was the solemn declaration of the acknowledged "Uncle Sam."

"I proposed to tackle Capt. Elliott for a dole of $1.05.

"Oh, I guess he must have lived in Belleville ten years," said "Changer."

"Those years wouldn't count in his age."

"Gentlemen, the oldest man in this group is 'Dimmy' McDemott," exclaimed manager Georgebean. Every Sunday afternoon, he's talking about old stone walls he's remembered seeing around Kingston.

"How old is the coon?" asked "Foxy Grandpa."

"Evo this question could be answered the club had adjourned at a street car bound for Lake Ontario Park.

CITY LETTER CARRIERS

A FEW THINGS ABOUT THESE BUSY MEN.

They Start Work at 6 a.m.—Must Face All Kinds of Weather—Well Treated by the Government—Incidents in Their Daily Lives.

The man who sits down to write a letter to an absent friend or sweetheart; the merchant who dictates a business letter to his amanuensis; the gushing girl who rushes off page after page of manuscript; to her absent lover; the grass widow whose short epistle tells wife how lonely it is at home without her—none of these, it is safe to assume, spare one thought to that patient, toiling, plodding public servant, the letter carrier, who delivers their epistles day after day and year after year from the general office to their destination. If ever thought of at all by the general public it is probably only as a piece of that great machinery which a two-cent stamp sets in motion.

Pause, and for a moment consider our letter-writing to-day. Formerly, when two people loved each other, they wrote letters a month, and got on very well, now, people between whom there is little love write to each other every day, and get on no better. Formerly, mere acquaintances, nay, even business men, required some important motive to set their pens going; now, each interest, each anxiety, takes a steel pen and thrusts it into your nerves. Formerly, the post afforded time for reflection; one turned one's cross moods over and over in one's mind before giving them vent; many a sadness has been transformed into joy during the interval between one mail and the next; many difficult tasks have been solved; people used to tell you of events which they had happened; now, they write them off while they are happening.

Everyone, from the prattling child to the grey-haired grandvie, is familiar with the uniform of the Canadian letter carrier, but few there are who realize the great amount of work these faithful toilers do. There are ten carriers in the Limestone City. They go to work at 6 a.m., and quit about 5 or 5:30 p.m. Now six o'clock in the morning is very nice in summer, but to report that that hour in winter is quite another matter. It isn't at all pleasant then to "turn out" for a roundable ten-hour day to hit the alarm clock pound away, and to woo Morpheus for another forty minutes. The citizen who got out and shovelled the snow off his walk before 6 a.m. was too good for earth, and he was long ago called to his reward. As a consequence, the carriers in winter have to tramp along streets, a large portion of which has been relieved of its white and snowy banks.

Daily Deliveries. In this city the carriers make two general and two special deliveries of mail each day, Sundays excepted. The general deliveries start at 7 a.m., and 2 p.m.; the specials at 11 a.m., and 1:30 p.m. The latter are for the business portion of the city only, and include the district lying between the water's edge and Bank street and between Queen and Johnston streets. But before the carriers can start on their morning rounds they must spend from an hour to an hour and a half in sorting the papers that have arrived during the night. One of their number is also detailed to assist the superintendent of carriers in assorting the mail.

However, 7 a.m. is pretty early for the business man; he rarely takes down his shutters till eight o'clock. His mail must accordingly be left at the most convenient store or business place that is open at the time. If you were to question the carriers, you would get an average of twenty to twenty-five families are spending the summer out of the city. They never fail, however, to notify the authorities at the general office of their temporary change of address.

Large numbers of letters are improperly addressed. In many cases the name of both street and number are wanting, while in others the surname has been forgotten.

The New Act. Within the past year the postmaster-general's new act, respecting letter carriers, has gone into effect. Only three of the old carriers here have decided to come in under the act, and only one of the newly-appointed carriers. Under the old system a man entered the service at $300 a year, until he reached the maximum salary of $600. Under the new regulations the carriers are given a better salary, and they reach the maximum in a shorter time. A carrier now entering the service will receive the first six months (the probationary period) $1.25 a day. That amount is called "Grade A." If he is found competent at the end of the six months the position is made permanent and he enters "Grade B" at a salary of $1.50 a day. After serving two years in that grade, he enters "Grade C" at $1.75 a day. After two years' service there, he is classed in "Grade D" at $2 a day. Then, for "special" responsible and arduous duties, carriers may from time to time be put into "Grade E," with a salary of $2.25 a day. There are only two Kingston carriers in "Grade D" under the new act; that is the highest any of them have reached.

There is no superannuation under the new act. This has been abolished by the introduction of the retirement fund. Five per cent. of the carrier's salary is deducted every month, and when he retires he receives simply the amount he has paid in, compounded half-yearly. If the carrier should die, this money is immediately paid over to his family. There is a wide difference of opinion among carriers regarding the new act. Several feel that it is beneficial, while others take the opposite view. The greatest drawback to the new act is the carriers' loss of pay during sickness, as they are paid by the day instead of by the year. A carrier pointed out yesterday that his was a business in which, owing to their constant exposure to all weathers and storms, they were very apt to contract illness.

Well Looked After. As far as it can do so, the government looks well after the comfort of these indispensable public servants. Every spring the carrier receives a new tunic and pants, and a pair of winter pants in the fall. A winter tunic and overcoat is given him every second year; two pairs of boots a year and a helmet every two years. Hereafter the blue helmet will replace the little cap for spring and fall wear, the white helmets will be worn in summer, and the fur cap in winter. The latter is a horrible looking thing, with its red patch on the side. One of these is given out every third year. The carrier receives a rain coat every three years, and a cap and leggings every four years. The soldier-like tunics are a great hardship in the warm weather, when it is not pleasant to be buttoned right up to the chin. The men would greatly appreciate a change in this part of their uniform.

Things In A Carrier's Life. The carriers have great trouble in locating persons on various streets, owing to improper numbering, or in other cases, the absence of any numbers at all. Bagwood Princess streets are all the worst in this respect. The numbers run in every direction, and in several instances, similar numbers occur within a short distance of each other. Nelson, Frontenac and Albert streets are also frequently complained of.

"It would be easier for me to go to New York City and deliver mail, than to do so here in Kingston," said one carrier recently. "The houses on certain streets are so imperfectly numbered."

"We have great trouble in delivering letters addressed to married women," said a carrier. "For instance a letter may come for 'Mrs. E. Brown.' Now that means possibly Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, who is the wife of John R. Brown, and we are supposed to know that Mrs. John R. Brown and Mrs. E. Brown are one and the same individual."

"You ought to see how the girls watch for us to get letters from their sweethearts," said another carrier. "Very often when I'm walking up the street I see them watching anxiously for me with a look of great expectation on their faces. Then as I walk past I have to smile as I see that look change to one of disappointment. But how pleased they look when I hand them a letter. That's a dear old fellow," some of them will say. Why there's one girl on my route—I would not tell her name for anything—but do you know she gets a letter from her fellow every day and has for the last two years and a half. If I could save up my postage they'd have enough to buy a piano soon. But then, there are lots that write every day. It is a standing remark among carriers, when, in sorting the mail they come across these letters: 'My, I wish that girl would get married and stop bothering us with her letters.'

"Frequently, out of force of habit, we will go right up to a door where we have no mail to leave there. That disappoints several people."

"At Christmas time many people follow up the old custom of presenting us with Christmas boxes. I have people on my route who each year give me from 50c. to $1, and if they are away at the time they don't forget it afterwards."

"No, I have little to complain of. There is one thing, however, that is hard on the carrier. When letters are overweight and are taxed two or three cents, people seldom have the change and so request us to pay it for them. Then they forget to pay us. It's a small thing at the time, but by the end of the year it amounts to quite a lot to the carrier."

The letter carriers get three weeks' holidays a year. In Kingston the vacation begins the latter part of April, and extends to the last of October. The Kingston carriers are a fine, courteous and pleasant body of men, for whom the people have every respect.

What Tourists Enquire For. "It is to be regretted that we have not some sort of a museum in Kingston," remarked a citizen last evening. "Do you know that, invariably, the first thing a tourist asks for is a museum? Of course it would take time and money to establish such an institution; but it would be a great attraction for strangers. The city should own one. It should be located in a convenient spot down town. Here, now, is another great chance for some of our money men to do something for their native city."
