NEW ORDER OF CRANKS.

Two young men and two young women in New York, and wealthy enough to indulge in freaks, have organized a Celibacy club. They are going to dress in peculiar way, display themselves personal adornment in the way of fashionable clothes and jewelry, and cut the society of the opposite sex.

The club will not have a lengthy reign. It is conceived in a spirit of insincerity and runs counter with the laws of God. It is as natural for men and women to mate as the birds, and the New York celibates are either lacking in intellect or they are crazy. The old old idea, or command, was "Be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth," and it is as binding upon the people of to-day as upon our first parents.

A nice world this would be if all the men and women on reaching maturity joined Celibacy Clubs and buried themselves and their talents in obscurity. There will be a reversion, some day, from the social extravagances of the present, some of them grossly offensive, but it will not involve the seclusion, separation and sacrifice which this new order of cranks in New York City has ordained.

SOME DOUKS ARE CRAZY.

The Immigration Department has very opportunely sent out the facts concerning the Doukhobors, at Yorkton, and they dispose of the sensations which have been running through the press. These were in effect that the Doukhobors had become mentally unbalanced, that, in the exercise of their religious zeal, they had abandoned their stock, and were entering upon an implements season with every prospect of starving to death. One paper, believing the reports, called upon the government to interfere and put an end to a condition of things which threatened to act most detrimental to the immigration movement.

It seems that a Russian socialist has been preaching against the use of meat for food, and the use of cattle for burden-bearing. He has succeeded in inducing a few people to adopt his beliefs. In consequence they have turned their cattle adrift, seventy head of them, which the government, agents secured and will keep, pending the return of common-sense to the owners. If the stock is not claimed within a reasonable time it will be sold and its proceeds turned over to the people to whom it belongs. The Immigration Department reports that the Doukhobors generally have been industrious, that they have reaped large crops this year, and that they are in most comfortable circumstances. The few who have gone religiously crazy will calm down as the wants of the season make themselves known.

THE FARMERS ORGANIZING.

The farmers have formed a new organization. It is not a new political party. The patron movement settled their ambitions along that line for the time being. The patrons were a divided force in political life. They carried everything before them. They essayed too much when they undertook to dominate the legislature. They became mixed up," said Goldwin Smith, "with political issues with which they had nothing to do, and they failed."

So they will keep out of politics if they can. There is doubt, implied in this observation, because the men who are at the head of the new movement—C. A. Mallory, J. Lockie Wilson, D. D. Rogers, Frank Hart, and the rest of them—are so constituted that it will be very hard to confine their attention to the discussion of merely farm issues and the direction of purely agricultural affairs.

That the farmers are warranted in banding themselves together, for mutual protection, goes without saying. We read in the papers that the manufacturers are solid, that they organize along certain lines, that they make certain demands upon parliament, and follow them up by the influence of combination. What the manufacturers can do the farmers may do, if they are as willing to subscribe their money for campaign purposes and are as determined in their policy. It is money that tells, and it is to be feared the Farmers' Association is not going to accomplish much with the $1 a year which is all the membership in the new association, with branches everywhere, will cost.

The educational campaign has begun, however, with a series of resolutions in which the farmers declare that they are against all bonuses, grants and subsidies, against the assessment of railroad and other property for less than the value of private property; against class legislation of any kind, and against any increase in the tariff. The Dominion Grange is to be consulted with a view to such concerted action as will make it impossible for the farmers' side of any question to be ignored. The new organization can be made very strong, and can represent, in its unity, a public sentiment that nothing can withstand. The solution of it depends, however, on its ability to dodge the seductive overtures of the wily politicians.

THE CHURCH LOSSES.

Three great branches of the church have referred to the loss of membership, and have attributed it to different causes.

The Presbyterians, according to the moderator, felt there had been a want, namely the preaching of the doctrine of sin and the need of a Saviour.

The Anglicans realized that they were not gaining as they should, and credited their non-progressiveness to the superior attractions or methods of other denominations.

The Canadian Methodists, in Dr. Carman's opinion, decreased, because the revival fires were either missing or running low, and the penitent service was not as conspicuous as of wore.

The British Methodists, who claim to be somewhat more analytical, laid their decrease to the materialism of the day.

Higher education is no longer a luxury, enjoyed by the rich or their children. The institute is the school of the masses, and only once in many years was it as full as now.

Unless the Syracuse schools can get coal, and there is no promise of it just now—they will be closed as soon as the cold weather sets in. The nearer some people are to the mines the worse they are off.

One objection to giving the women place on the business boards of the church was that it was not where they shone. No? There are some women who could give the men pointers. They manage most of the church's affairs.

SEEKING HIGHER EDUCATION.

The high school attendance is sixty more than it was in 1901, and an hundred and twenty more than it was in 1900. To what is this marked increase necessitating the addition of more seating accommodation and another teacher, really due?

It used to be said that the boys and girls were kept in school, and as long as possible, because the trades and occupations that were open to them were depressed and filled.

Education, was resorted to because it provided, in teaching especially, some chance for remunerative service.

But now to what is the increased attendance due? To the good times, primarily, to the fact that the working classes were never as capable, from a monetary point of view, of carrying their sons and daughters towards a higher education. Labour was never so able to pay the fees for attendance at the institute.

Moreover the fact is being stamped on the mind and heart of every parent that the higher the training of the youth the better he is equipped for any service, technical, manual or mental, in which he may engage. The man of education is the successful man if the opportunity is his to advance.

Children take these tablets readily and crushed to a powder they can be given with absolute safety to the smallest infant. The tablets can be obtained at all drug stores, or you can get them post paid at 25c a box by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N.Y.
