does not win the battle Monday night AN INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESS BY PRINCIPAL ELLIS.

> First of a Series of Lectures -How Best to Accomplish Desired Ends-Child-Life Must be

Last evening a large and appreciative audience gathered in St. James' parochial school room to listen first lecture on "Child-Train- Mr. Macdonald took down and loaded ing," by Principal Ellis, of the Collegiate Institute, whose discourse throughout was eminently practical and beneficially instructive to all. In speaking of the accomplishment of any one work, consideration must be given to three elements-the material to be moulded, the agent who is to bring about the change, and the method by which the required end is to be reached. In the present case the material to be acted on is the normal child. the teacher is the agent, and process of the Sunday schools are the methods by which the desired ends are to be attained.

Hitherto a widespread belief has existed that for educational purposes, children are all of a kind, benefited by the same treatment amenable the same discipline equipped for the same labors and capable of the same rogress in equal time. This is gravest mistake, and has arisen be cause knowledge has been substituted for education and a desire to worship scholarships, instead of gaining the der after traversing through the acquired power for overcoming the heart. Slew the Bear.

Sydney, C.B., Sept. 18.-A bear story, detailing more than the usual amount of adventure, comes the north. It appears that Peter Bright, of Meadow, North River, had his flock of sheep badly decreased owing to the depredations of a bear. Thursday he saw bruin holding carnival among his sheep, one of which he had already killed, and went to his next door neighbor's, Philip Macdonald's, for aid to repel the aggressor.

his Winchester for the fray. Soon after Mr. Macdonald's young daughter told her twelve-year-old brother, Garrett, who was washing the waggon in the barn, the particulars of the case as she had heard them discussed with her father. He hunted up an old and long ago discarded musket with over six inches broken off the muzzle, and resolved that he would himself shoot the bear should the opportunity offer. He had not gone far when he saw the bear being chased towards him by his father and Mr. Bright, both of whom were so intent on their adventure as to not have noticed him. Instead of running away, as might well be excused for even an expert hunter with his weapon, the brave boy ambushed himself along the road the bear was taking. When the bear was alongside him Garret fired, killing him immediately. The bullet was afterwards found lodged in the left shoulcourageous act, stands the hero of the | One.
