MURDER STORY

ACCUSER CHARGED WITH THE CRIME.

Higgins Declares That Goodspeed Killed Doherty—A Sensational Scene in the Court Room—The Accused Tells a Connected Story.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 22.—The situation in the Doherty murder case is as dramatic and as thrilling as the widest climax in a dime novel. Goodspeed was brought Friday and asked several questions regarding the murder, and he admitted the breaking and entering of a store. He admitted he did not kill Doherty, etc., and answered "No, but Higgins did." The case closed for the crown and counsel for defence addressed the court.

After a couple of minor witnesses had been examined as to Higgins' character at school, the prisoner took the stand. He was self-controlled, a profound stillness prevailed. As if he was reading from print, Higgins told a most remarkable story of how Goodspeed committed the murder. He described how the three went about a mile back of the park and sat down on the side of a hill. Goodspeed asked him for the loan of the revolver, saying he wanted it to shoot a crow. "I took it out of my pocket," said the witness, "and handed it to him." He pointed to Higgins and Doherty and asked Doherty: "What do you think of the things in there?" Goodspeed replied, smiling, "Sure, my father did eat them things."

Then Doherty took the cartridges out of the revolver, pointed it at Goodspeed and pulled the trigger. Goodspeed put it into his pocket. Witness told how they went back of the park, how he went into the bushes and had been there only a few minutes when he heard four or five shots and heard Doherty cry "Help, Higgle, help." He came out of the bushes and ran to the scene. He saw Goodspeed with the revolver was handed back and Goodspeed put it into his pocket. Witness told how they went back of the park, how he went into the bushes and had been there only a few minutes when he heard four or five shots and heard Doherty cry "Help, Higgle, help."

Witness went and spoke to Doherty, but he was dead. He told Goodspeed he thought Doherty was dead. Goodspeed said, "Take your gun and run, if you had kept it this would not have happened."

Witness said he wouldn't touch it. Goodspeed ran with the revolver in his right hand and felt with his left hand down inside Doherty's shirt, and said: "My God, he's dead, and I'll be hung for this." He brought the revolver down on Doherty's head and held him until he was quiet again. Goodspeed turned and said, "Look here, Higgins, if you tell on me I'll swear you shot him, and as it was your revolver, they'll believe me." Witness said he was scared and said he wouldn't tell. He also helped to bury the body at the request of Goodspeed. Goodspeed asked witness to take him to stop. Witness then described how the body was covered up with grass, sticks, etc. He also described their action afterwards, and how witness refused to take the revolver back and eventually how Goodspeed took it into the creek. Goodspeed wanted him to go into the park and burn the body. He refused, but went out to the park and waited until Goodspeed went to where the body was, then came back and told it was still there.

He told the story without an effort of any kind, and although he was nearly two hours on the stand a good deal of the time under cross-examination, he never varied from his original statement. He repeated for the crown lawyer parts of the story five times, in exactly the same language. In answer to the lawyer, judge or jury he would commence at any point to continue on until another question was asked. He maintained he never was in any robberies and had the revolver for the purpose of shooting crows. It was the most remarkable incident that ever occurred in a criminal case here.

NOT COMPLIMENTARY.

This Despatch Makes Some Odious Comparisons.

Rome, Sept. 22.—The desire to break a practice which threatens to establish a fixed precedent of promoting apostolic delegates at Washington to the cardinalate upon their recall is advanced by the vatican as one of the reasons for the appointment of the Most Rev. Biomedo Falanga, formerly Apostolic delegate to the Dominion of Canada, to succeed Cardinal Martini as papal delegate in the United States.

It is pointed out that the selection of a prelate of higher position in the church might have necessitated a continuance of the practice of the advancement of the purple, followed in the cases of Mgrs. Sattoli and Martini. These, however, were special proteges of Pope Leo, and it is not desired that their elevation be considered to establish a rule.

At Mercy of Russia.

London, Sept. 22.—The strengthening of the Russian Black Sea fleet, going on for years, is worthy of attention, says an Odessa correspondent. It is acknowledged that the Danube and various ports of strategic value on the Southern Black Sea, which recently have been repeatedly visited by Russian ships, are completely at Russia's mercy. Of these ships Russia possesses considerable numbers.

Held For Murder.

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 22.—The inquest in the Kent Dingle case closed at 11:30 o'clock this morning, when Jerome Klundt announced: "I hold Dr. Kent responsible for murdering Ethel Dingle by cutting her throat."

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Lion Causes Sensation—Coal, Supply is Short.

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—Secretary Dowd, of the Ottawa College Football club, was notified Saturday by the secretary of the Quebec rugby football union, that the union proposed to carry into effect the resolution passed by it last June, providing for the appointment of a board of referees, Mr. Dowd was invited to send in the names of four gentlemen selected by the college football club as referees. A meeting will be held this week and at the selection will be made. Each club in the union will take a similar course, and as a result a board of referees will be organized. There should then be no difficulty in securing suitable officials for the matches.

The lion belonging to the theatrical company, "A Man Who Dared," broke loose to-day and created wild excitement on Albert street. The beast was cornered under the steps of a house and clubbed into its cage.

Coal dealers have stopped taking orders, and to-night the city council will be asked to order 1,000 cords of wood to provide against suffering.

Thanksgiving day will probably be Thursday, October 23rd, and an early proclamation is probable.

Asked what disposition would be made of the third special service battery Borden said that according to the terms of enlistment the men could be discharged upon receiving a month's pay. Possibly if there were vacancies in the permanent corps, the services of some of the officers of the regiment might be retained. As yet, however, no official notification had been received from the imperial government that they intended to replace the Canadian corps with an imperial regiment.

Hon. A. G. Blair was asked whether there were any developments in connection with the proposed Atlantic line. The minister of railways said nothing would be done until the return of all the ministers at Ottawa. Mr. Blair was asked if he could give any information as to what tenders had been received, but replied that it was not in his power to do so. It is stated, however, that three proposals for a fast line have been submitted, one for a twenty-knot service, another for a twenty-knot service, and a third for a twenty-two knot service. The twenty-two knot service would, it is said, cost $2,000,000 a year to establish.

SON SLAYS FATHER.

Shoots Him Down in Defence of His Mother.

Woonsocket, R.I., Sept. 22.—Because he desired to protect his mother from violent treatment at the hands of her husband, William C. Bonin, aged twenty years, shot and killed his father, John B. Bonin, aged forty-two years, a former constable, at North Smithfield.

After the shooting young Bonin went to his room, put on his best clothes and called by his mother, came down to his father's room, and pleaded guilty to a charge of assault to kill. The son says his father came in intoxicated, and threatened to kill his mother and himself. The father was scuffling with his mother's aid. To defend himself, he says he fired three times point blank at his father, who fell dead. William says that his father had abused Mrs. Bonin for seven or eight years. Young Bonin expresses no regret for his act.

LIKELY TO ACCEPT.

Rev. Dr. Bryce Thinks Rev. Dr. Barclay Will Come.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Toronto Globe makes this statement: "Rev. Dr. Bryce of Winnipeg, who is in the city, states that he understands Rev. Dr. Barclay will accept the offer made to him to become principal of Queen's. The salary is $1,000," said Dr. Bryce, "which is $1,000 more than the principal received, but $3,000 less than Dr. Barclay is now paid in the pastorate of Montreal." This, however, is an age of Montreal. Dr. Bryce added that he had favored leaving over a year the appointment of the late Principal Grant's successor.

Their Cage Is Empty.

The Portsmouth village constable is beginning to assume his authority. On Saturday night a man, who had been acting disorderly on the street, was arrested and placed in the cell beneath the township hall. There he remained to mediate on his bad behavior until last night, when he was liberated. A boy, guilty of remaining late at night on the streets when he should have been asleep in his trundle bed, was also locked up in the cells yesterday. During the absence of his keeper he slipped through the bars, and is once more enjoying his liberty.

After careful consideration, John C. Crosby, of Pittsfield, Mass., declined, for business reasons, to accept the nomination for lieutenant-governor tendered to him by the democratic state convention at Boston.
