

A SOCIAL SATURDAY NIGHT.

One of the earliest of Kingston military openings this season was that of Cramley Bros., on Tuesday, and the dainty parlor in that establishment was filled all afternoon, with ladies who admired the pretty display, arranged by Miss Quinn. Chiefly admired was a large hat with a rolling brim bound with ermine, the underbrim made of tulle and emerald green chenille, a large flat crown of tulle, trimmed with emerald green velvet and a bird of paradise osprey caught with two buckles—this hat was certainly a perfect dream. Another prominent one was the Madonian hat of emerald green, made in squares, centred with lace and trimmed with challoo lace caught with cabachone. The King-Pong hat was also very much admired. It is a perfectly square shape, made of black plush and tulle, a lace scarf draped, the brim and long ends at the back; two long ostrich plumes are caught from the centre of the crown and fall over the back. Blue and green were shown very much, the combination being very pretty. Hats for girls were also on exhibition, one a large red felt and velvet, trimmed with vera silk, and a large rose, long ends of silk knotted prettily finish the back. Ready-to-wear and children's headgear was shown in large variety.

There seems to be no end to the sea- son at Bar Harbor, Newport and At- lantic City. The prediction that Sep- tember would be a lively month is being verified. There is a goodly array of fashionable guests at the hotels. The fall colony has settled down to weeks of enjoyment, with bridge and an incessant round of dinners filling the evenings, while the days are de- voted to yachting, tramps through autumn woods and other outdoor pleasures. The centre of New York so- ciety interests has, however, shifted from the beaches to Lenox, the coun- try places along Long Island and the Hudson and to the Adirondacks. The suburbs are becoming very gay, coun- try clubs are filling up, the demand for rooms at the Tuxedo Club house being so great that the managers are laboring on keeping the main club house as well as the winter one there open all through the year.

Plans are being laid for a number of trolley car lines into the Adiro- nacks and skirting its lakes. The in- crease of sojourners encourages the speculator in this advance upon the rustic sanctity of this charming re- treat.

An amusing story of the Canadian lines minister's experience in Lon- don, is being told, in social circles, based upon the authority of a letter written by Mr. Fielding to a friend. It appears that one day when he managed to slip away from his entertain- ing in London and was enjoying him- self like an ordinary country cousin on the top of a country bus, he be- came conscious of a sudden suspension of traffic, his bus stopped in the midst of the sea of vehicles, and he, like the other occupants, strained his neck to catch a glimpse of the royalti- ties in the approaching smart equip- age, for which the right of way had been given in this busy thoroughfare.

The "royalties" in the carriage were quite unknown to most of the gap- ping crowd, but Mr. Fielding knew, for they were his two daughters, who had been taken by Lady Laurier for a drive in a royal carriage placed at her disposal.

The following is from the San Fran- cisco "Chronicle": Quite early, yesterday morning Rev. W. H. DuMoulin, son of the Lord Bishop of Niagara, and Miss Jennie G. Gay, of this city, daughter of Mrs. Mary C. Gay, were quietly married in St. Stephen's Episcopal church and sailed at one o'clock for groom will be the rector of the Hilo church. This union is the outcome of an interesting romance, which for a while disturbed the serenity of St. Paul's church, where Mr. DuMoulin was curate. Curiously, enough Rev. W. M. Reiley, rector of St. Paul's, took his curate to task for paying so much attention to Miss Gay, who was a member of the vested choir of the church. The rector seemed to re- gard the affair as something akin to a flirtation. Mr. DuMoulin promptly resented the imputation upon an honest love and straightway resigned and left the rector without an assistant.

That was a few months ago. The young people named their wedding day as quickly as Mr. DuMoulin accepted his new charge. The ceremony yester- day, which was impressive, was wit- nessed only by relatives and a few intimate friends. Bishop Nichols officiated, assisted by Rev. J. Edgar Lion, rector of St. Stephen's church, and Rev. James Lee. After the vows were taken, Bishop Nichols confirmed the bride in the Episcopal faith.

PLAYHOUSE AND PLAY.

At Victoria Theatre—General The- atrical Notes.

The Marks' Dramatic company has played to large houses at Victoria theatre all week, last night the place being well filled. "Hazel Kirke," a simple melo-drama, was on the boards last night, and the treatment, Earl C. Simmons in the role of "Danston Kirke," and C. H. Saunders in that of "Litticus Green," soaring above the rest of the cast. Ernest Marks' Irish characters are too crude, particularly in the make-up. The best actress the Marks' company have is Miss Lydia H. Poe, who is remarkably good in characters that call for the teach- ing and scheming qualities of a woman. "Tis then that Lydia shines like the latest gas-light device.

C. H. Saunders, the versatile man, again continued his parody song on local affairs, which he can spin out in yard lengths, and give the audience the look-ay. The company will be here all next week.

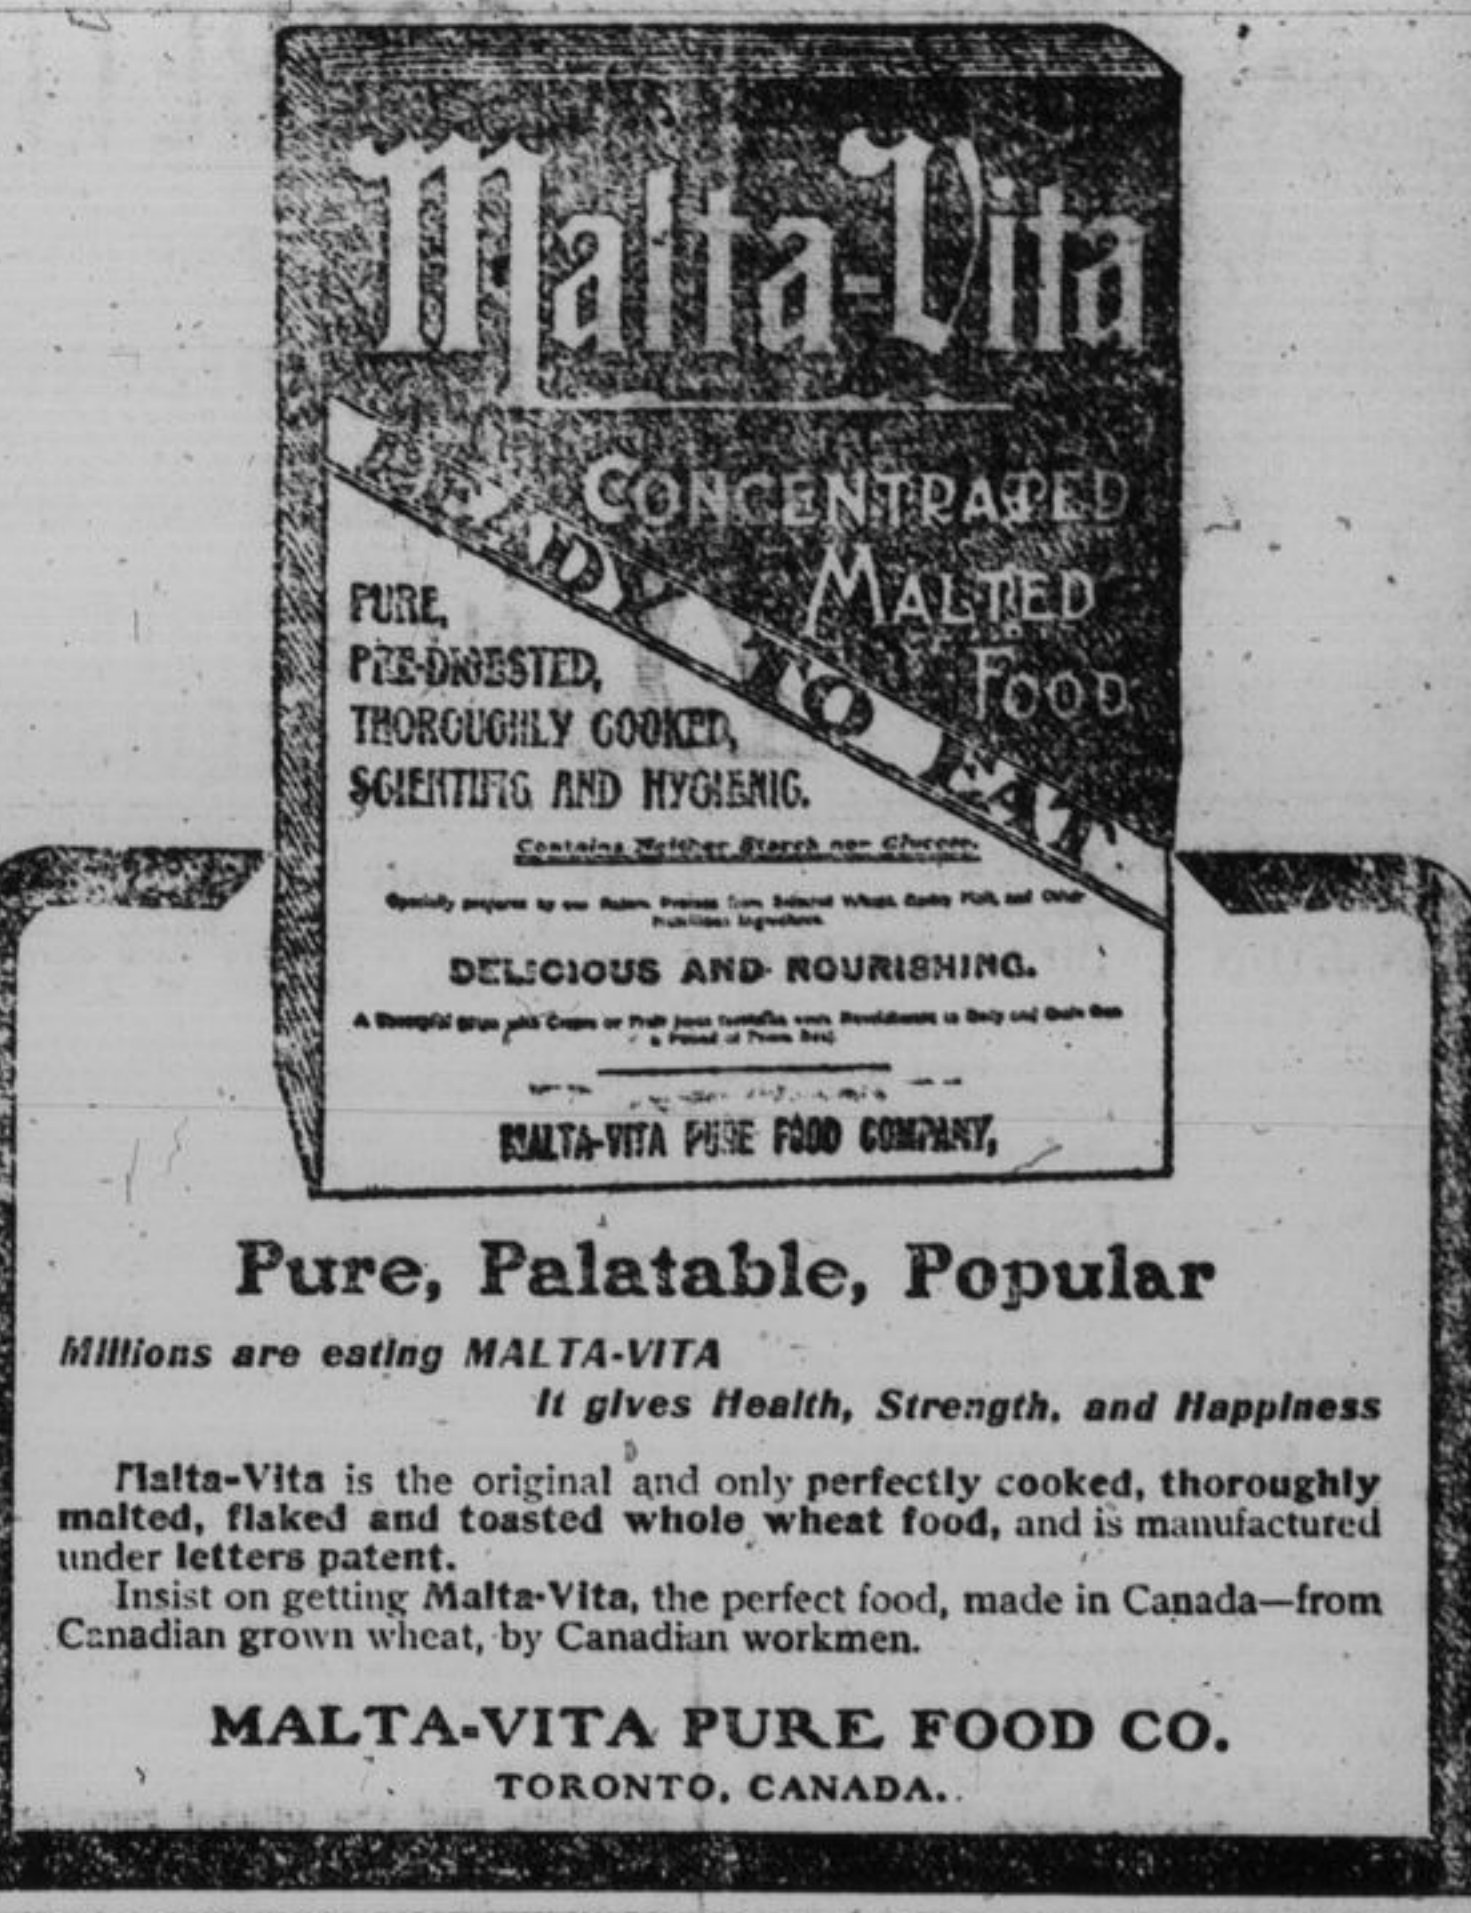

Theatrical Notes.

There is plenty of patronage for both of Kingston's theatres, as proven this week when both have been running. The Victoria fills the requirements of a large class who seldom or never attend the Grand.

The engagement of "The Roger Pro- ceedings in Harvard," at the Knicker- bocker, New York, is proving a pro- fitable investment to the managers. In several instances it has been necessary to turn away prospective patrons.

The new Belasco theatre, New York, opens with Mrs. Leslie Carter in "Du Barry," next week. The old theatre Republic has been completely remodel- led by Mr. Belasco and the initial per- formance will be witnessed by sub- scription.

Haines' play of social life, is receiving the indorsement of the public at the Bijou, New York. The drama is of particular interest to women, because of its strong domestic situations and the dainty gowns worn by the women.

The comedy "Mrs. Jack," at Wal- lack's theatre, New York, is drawing well. Miss Grace Livingston Furness, the author, has succeeded in produ- cing enough humor to satisfy even ex- pecting patrons. With Miss Alice Fisher in the title role, the play is re- plete with interest.

An alderman says that he could close up both local theatres by de- manding that the Buildings' by-law be enforced. The objection to the Grand would be very slight. A Victoria theatre, he says, does not conform to the by- law at all, the exit being very faulty and dangerous in case of a panic or fire.

David Warfield has recovered from his long illness and opens this season at the Harlem Opera House, New York, this week. He will continue in his wonderfully successful play, "The Auctioneer." In this he impersonates the real Ghetto character so well that it is said he is often mistaken for one of their number.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell has met with great success in her play "Aunt Joannic," at the Garden theatre, New York. The play is a modern one, dealing with the savings and doings of the smart set in London. The dominant dramatic idea is the protec- tive love of one woman for another, and there are two pretty romances running side by side. Mrs. Campbell is to produce Sundermann's new play, "Es Liebe Das Leben," as well as re- vivals of her last season's plays.

Weedon Crossmith and his company of English players, who are to open Princess theatre, New York, with "The Night of the Party," October 6th, will arrive October 1st. Mr. Crossmith will be accompanied by his wife, known on the stage as May Palfrey; Miss Maud Holson, a famous stage beauty, and Herbert Sleath, a well-known actor polo player.

An Old Piece Of China.

In the window of J. A. Salter's auction rooms on Brock street, is to be seen a piece of china of great age and beauty. It is a large platter, hav- ing a very pretty design and coloring, and is over two hundred years old. It is of English manufacture, and is made of stone china. He values it highly because of its antiquity.
