BRIBERY CASE. J. S. GALLAGHER'S AGENT FACES A CHARGE.

Gave Eli Peters, of Murvale, Money For His Vote—Promised Do as Well for Him as He Did in the Avery Election.

Immediately after the Smith-Carey election case at the assize court, Wednesday afternoon, followed that of Carey vs. Smith, in which the plaintiff charged the defendant with giving one Eli Peters, Murvale, money to vote for J. S. Gallagher, and wrongly voting in polling subdivision No. 5, Kingston township, not having taken the necessary oath.

Mr. Mowat and Mr. Whiting again acted for Mr. Carey, and Dr. Smythe for Mr. McIntyre for Mr. Smith. Eli Peters, whom plaintiff charges that defendant bribed, is an old man of seventy-eight years, and was unable to be present, but his sworn preliminary examination was read, and was to this effect: That the defendant asked him to vote right, and he would not lose anything, and that he would do as well as he did with him in the Avery election.

Dr. Smythe, defendant took the stand on his own behalf. He swore that he had no conversation with Eli Peters before or after the election on May 29th. He made him no promise with regard to his vote for Gallagher. Didn't even remember seeing him. He had a conversation with Jake Peters in his yard, but Davy could not get within sixty feet of them unless he got on the witness premises.

Evidence on the other charges relative to defendant voting without being sworn, was given in the previous case of Smith vs. Carey. Court resumed Thursday morning at half past nine o'clock, when Mr. Whiting began his address to his lordship. He claimed that bribery was admitted by Eli Peters, and that Davy was a witness between defendant and Peters.

Mr. Mowat, after emphasizing several points, stated that he agreed with the doquent remarks made by Mr. McIntyre in the previous case, that action was taken more to prevent a recurrence of election irregularities, and to help the cause of morality. Here, said Mr. Mowat, was bribery and corruption flowing from Mr. Gallagher, the so-called fountain head of "crookedness" and "poisoning" the stream. This action showed that the conservative party's work in Frontenac was not all sweet savored.

Dr. Smythe threw discredit upon the evidence of Eli Peters, pointing out that he was paid $3 to go to Ottawa for his preliminary examination, and he said that it was not for examination, but that it was for examination, and he also questioned the strange coincidence that Davy should have heard both conversations between defendant and the Peters. Davy's story, he claimed, could be nothing but a fabrication.

Mr. Whiting's contention was that the penalty could not be incurred by the defendant, unless he was convicted of bribery. In a civil action of this kind, there could be no conviction, and therefore, the means of securing the penalty was barred. The law formerly provided that anyone against whom bribery was proved should incur a penalty of $200, but now, the law was amended, requiring conviction, the object being to prevent persons securing the penalty by simply bribing civil action.

Justice Britton reserved judgment. Mr. Whiting, in reply, claimed that the word "conviction" was not used in any technical sense. It had a broad meaning, and a person found guilty of an offence before a judge in any court was really convicted.

OFFERED ADVICE. The Medical College Opened on Wednesday.

The medical department of Queen's university was formally opened on Wednesday afternoon in the pathology lecture room, in the college building. About 175 of the medical students assembled at that hour to listen to the addresses as delivered by the faculty.

In the absence of the dean, Senator Sullivan occupied the chair, and around him on the platform, were seated Dr. Ryan, Herald, Connell, Campbell, Morrison, Ross and others. The chairman, in a short speech, marked by numerous bright passages—in which the doctor's speeches always abound—welcomed the students to the college. He referred to them as a few words of advice, prompted by his experience of the last forty-eight years, which time he has spent in the study and practice of medicine.

They entered, he said, on a noble profession not for securing great honors nor wealth, but rather to make an honorable competence, and secure the respect and confidence of their fellows—one which borrowed from every science, which was constantly expanding, and required all the attention they could give it, no matter how high their power. Dr. Sullivan spoke of the equipment of the postulant. He should be a man of scholarly, refined tastes, possessed of at least a thorough good English education, and if so he need not fear the test of examinations. He sought to impress the need of keeping Queen's in the van of Canadian schools of medicine as she had been by reason of the great excellence of her work in primary subjects, foremost of which he placed now at our anatomy.

Dr. Ryan drew attention to the fact that in the student mind scientific methods were liable to override the clinical methods of diagnosis. He warned them against neglecting bedside observation, for which the old school doctor was noted, for the more modern and scientific methods, and laid stress on the fact that diagnosis by means of the microscope, etc., was only an adjunct to the older clinical method of diagnosis.

Dr. Herald, as secretary of the faculty, welcomed the students. He thought he was brought into contact with the students more than any of the other professors. He was always prepared to aid them in their difficulties, and promised to do his utmost to look after the best interests of the students.

Dr. Sullivan then brought the proceedings to a close by announcing that classes would be opened on the following day. He hoped all the "minds" would be in their places ready to work with energy from start to finish.

SELF CONTROL IS DESIRED BY CANADIAN UNION MEN

Agitation for Severance of Ties That Bind Canadian Unionism With That of the United States—Some Reasons. Canadian workmen are beginning to realize that it would be to their interests to adopt as their motto the axiom "Canada For Canadians."

There is a strong and growing feeling in the ranks of the Canadian union workers that Canada should be able to care for her own unions, instead of depending upon a controlling body centered in the capital of the United States, and are long since feeling will find outlet in definite action towards bringing into existence a purely Canadian executive body.

In the course of a conversation, a leading local prominent unionist gave expression to views along this line. The conversation was begun by a questioner as to whether the local trades and labor council had been represented at the recent Dominion labor congress at Berlin, Ont.

"To a certain extent the labor congress which recently assembled at Berlin is a Canadian organization, but its funds are all controlled from Washington, and all big and controlling offices are by representatives of that central body, all that is left for Canadians is a few small crumbs in the shape of organizers. What we desire is a purely Canadian governing body, controlling the funds of Canadian workmen; surely that is a reasonable demand? And we think Canadians know what is best for Canada.

A Canadian Federation. I have been repeatedly urged by prominent labor men, said Organizer William Kelly, "to draft a constitution for a Canadian Federation of Labor. But as you know, I am an organizer for the American Federation of Labor, and I would not look like a set of reasons for me to make a move in this regard, while I remain present officer. I have no hesitation in telling you, however, that the matter has been discussed, and favorably, too. There is a probability that the Canadian Federation may have its birth in Kingston. There is no other place in Canada more worthy of the distinction."

SPORT IN GENERAL. Notes About the Various Sporting Fields.

Chicago race track judges are making war on owners who dope horses. Fee, formerly of Varsity, will play on Queen's intermediate rugby team. Norman C. O'Neill has been appointed captain of the Montreal rugby team.

At Malone, N.Y., fair, last week, the big fee-for-all for a purse of $1,000 was won in straight heats by Sidney Pointer. The Winnipeg Shamrocks had no difficulty in winning from the St. Paul lacrosseists. The score was 11 to 2.

The Ottawa Rough Riders have received an invitation to play McGill in Montreal next Saturday, but are not likely to accept. The Winnipeg Shamrocks will play with the Montreal Shamrock hockey team next winter. They have been out of the game for some time.

Rev. R. Laird, formerly of Queen's, has followed the example of Rev. H. H. Bedford-Jones, and is playing rugby with Brockville, and is playing inside wing. Now, wouldn't it be sweet if both these gridiron players entered their pulpits on Sunday, with black eyes?
