THE AVOIDING OF THAT TERRIBLE POTATO BLIGHT OR ROT

Cannot Be Cured, but Can Be Prevented—What Potato Growers Should Do.

Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. If potato growers could only be led to realize that late potato blight or rot cannot be cured but can be prevented, they would use Bordeaux mixture more freely than they do.

While Bordeaux mixture is not poisonous to insects it is very distasteful to them, and Paris green combined with it can be more evenly distributed by the sprayer than in any other way.

The Bordeaux mixture for use in potatoes should be made as follows: Take six pounds of copper sulphate (blue vitriol) and tie it up in a piece of thin cloth—an ordinary salt bag will answer well—then suspend it from a stick and pour the water into a clean water, so that the bag may be just beneath the surface of the water.

To apply this mixture to the foliage the best and cheapest way is to use a proper spraying pump and nozzle, but if these are not on hand good results which will repay the trouble may be obtained by applying the mixture with watering cans supplied with fine roses.

A great advantage of this mixture is that Paris green, the only practical remedy for the Colorado potato beetle can be applied at the same time.

These mixtures must be kept constantly stirred while being used, as both the lime in the Bordeaux mixture and the Paris green quickly sink to the bottom of any mixture if left undisturbed.

The Bordeaux mixture is a preventive remedy, and the time to apply it in any locality is just before the blight is treated or usually appears there, the object being to keep the plants during the whole of the time they are liable to injury covered with the fungicidal preparation.

The early blight in Ontario and Quebec generally appears at the end of June, or the beginning of July. The late blight or potato rot in most parts of Canada seldom show itself until August. Spraying should, therefore, be begun early in July and be repeated every two weeks at least until the second week in September.

Three applications of Bordeaux mixture and Paris green will suffice, experiments showing in plots sprayed three times as much as fifty-two bushels more per acre of merchantable potatoes than in the unsprayed plots; and in those sprayed five times, sixty-two bushels more to the acre than in the unsprayed.

The agitation in Germany for the exclusion of foreign students from the universities and technical schools has aroused considerable resentment in Russia.
