HALLOWE'EN VIOLENCE.

Claimed Something Should be Done to Stop it.

Hallowe'en is fast approaching, and many people are beginning to feel uneasy. Through the media demonstrations are not so pronounced as years ago, the depredations have apparently not decreased. Last year a lawyer threatened to bring suit against the city because his gate had been carried off, claiming that protection should have been given against such an act. The city, however, certainly could not have held liable any more than it could if burglars broke into a house. The same acts of villainy, perpetrated by the corporation as well.

INSTALLATION

OF PRESIDENT JAMES. AT A CHICAGO UNIVERSITY

Prof. Pike, of Queen's, Was Among the Canadian Delegates—Superficiality Condemned by the Majority of Thinking Men.

A brilliant and imposing series of ceremonies marked the installation of Dr. Edmund James, as president of North-Western University, Chicago, last week. It is becoming quite the fashion across the border to make the induction of a university president an occasion for the gathering of a host of delegates from all parts, and for festivities, mass meetings, processions and receptions extending over several days.

North-Western is the chief seat of learning of the Methodist Episcopal church, and on Saturday 250 representatives from various educational institutions began to assemble at Evanston, the beautiful north shore suburb of gigantic Chicago. Oxford, the nursery of Methodism, Louvain in Belgium, Christiania, Edinburgh and Wales were represented, and Canada sent Prof. Walter Pike of Queen's, President Emery from Ottawa, and Prof. Walter Pike from Queen's, while Toronto, Balhousie and New Brunswick had their deputies. From all parts of the states, too, they came, from Harvard, Yale and Johns Hopkins in the east, from Kansas and Missouri in the south, and Colorado and California in the west.

Chief Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, the son of the poet, was there, Bishop Hartzel, of African fame, Dr. Adolph Lorenz, the famous Viennese surgeon; Mayor Patten, who netted millions recently from a corner in oats; Dr. Gunsaulus, and President McKinley's pastor, Dr. Bristol.

The proceedings commenced with a grand football match between North-Western and Chicago, on Saturday afternoon. On Sunday morning, 10,000 people heard special sermons from the delegates, and in the afternoon a long procession of automobiles, in gowns and hoods of all colors, marched to the First Methodist church to hear an address on "The Reconciliation of Our Educational Ideals," from President DeWitt Hyde, and enjoy a superb rendering of the "Hall-Howard Chorus."

Monday was students' day, 3,000 of whom, with banners, musical devices and brass bands, marched past the president-elect and delegates in the morning and attended a football game in the afternoon on the campus—enlivening the proceedings with rushes and free fights, while in the evening they went in brilliant torchlight procession through the city, concluding their day's jollification with a magnificent bonfire. The shops were closed, thousands lined the streets for the various processions, and the whole town was gay with the Stars and Stripes and Northwestern purple.

Meanwhile the Evanston magnates and millionaires were entertaining the delegates at their clubs to the best of their ability—and it is great—and round of lunches, dinners, speeches, receptions and suppers kept them busy till midnight. On Tuesday morning the delegates were formally received, and made and the Canadian representatives were specially favored with opportunities to deliver their odes.

Prof. Walton spoke well on Monday, while Prof. Walter Pike preached on Sunday on "Christ, the Great Comforter," and spoke at the Willard hotel. The North-Westerners are doubtless more familiar with the existence, location and excellencies of Queen's University, Kingston (not Toronto), Canada, than they were a fortnight ago. Dr. Edmund James was especially cordial. "The Canadians," said he to Prof. Pike, "are a great people. They are taking us by storm here, and are doing it. They are securing the scholarships, and are flowing here to a very large extent."

At a great meeting in the Methodist church on Tuesday afternoon, Dr. James was installed, a copy of the charter and the keys of the buildings were handed to him by the leading trustee, who in a brief speech committed the university to his care. He replied in few words, accepting the charge and pledging himself, God helping him, to discharge his duties to the best of his ability. The audience of thousands stood to do him honor, and at this juncture the choir sang that exquisite Chautauque greeting, "The Lord bless thee, and keep thee." Three hours speech-making of a brilliant but tedious character (American like, Canadian orators sometimes confuse time with eternity) preceded and followed the ceremonial and a thronged reception by Dr. James, in the large new Law building in Chicago, closed the official programme, although on Wednesday morning Dr. Lorenz and other eminent medical men held clinics in the Mercy Hospital.

"America," said Dr. Gunsaulus, "is sure of a living, she is not so sure of a life." Constantly at these meetings the greatest educators of the States denounced the superficial fallacy that nothing was useful in education but that which gave an immediate return in dollars.

"To be at home in all ages," said Dr. Hyde, of Bowdoin, "to carry the keys of the world's library in one's pocket, to have a perennial well of intellectual pleasure to draw from, is the aim of a university education." In laying stress upon her Arts department and upon those subjects that have for centuries been held by experts as essential to education, Queen's is right; she has the best minds of America on her side and her future is sure. The fitful spirit of sordid utilitarianism that would turn a university into a workshop for apprentices will pass away, and the steadily trade wind of an enlightened, Queen's has gained by sending a delegate to North-Western; they have learned of us, and we have learned of them. The Methodists, who reared North-Western, the Baptists who have Presbyterianism, and the Presbyterians of Canada who through much tribulation have raised Queen's to the honorable position she now occupies, have done honor to their churches and Christendom. The foundation of seats of learning, the homes of intellectual and spiritual, as well as of physical training, and of reverent research, is not the least achievement of the least remunerative investment of the Christian church.

BAER'S ORDERS.

Coal Will Not Be Sold to Grasping Dealers. Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—In view of the resumption of mining of anthracite coal the Philadelphia & Reading railroad has made public the following address to their general manager and signed by President Baer:

"Dear Sir,—The reports of the superintendents in charge of the mines show that as a result of the strike the mines and mining plants have sustained considerable injury and their respective working organizations have been impaired. For some time to come the collieries cannot be worked to produce their average quantity of coal. This will increase the cost of production. Estimates have been submitted showing the probable increase in cost per ton at the several groups of collieries per ton. You will, therefore, add to the circular price fifty cents per ton, this additional price to continue until the 1st of January, 1903, by which time we hope to reach a normal condition of mining and production.

Notwithstanding the fact that during the strike no coal was sold by our company at an advance over the circular price, the price has been reasonably advanced to the public by some retail dealers. In the distribution of the coal, therefore, you will, so far as practicable, supply the dealers willing to sell coal to the public at reasonable prices. Where dealers seek to obtain an unfair profit from the public you will promptly take steps to supply the reasonable demands of the public directly.

In pursuance of the above instructions circulars have been issued, taking effect October 20th. An effort will be made to arrange the distribution of the strike no coal was sold by our company at an advance over the circular price, the price has been reasonably advanced to the public by some retail dealers. In the distribution of the coal, therefore, you will, so far as practicable, supply the dealers willing to sell coal to the public at reasonable prices. Where dealers seek to obtain an unfair profit from the public you will promptly take steps to supply the reasonable demands of the public directly.

A Thanksgiving Present.

Holland, Oct. 23.—Farmers are through thrashing in this vicinity and are drying their potatoes, which they state are a very heavy crop. Mr. and Mrs. William Collins received a Thanksgiving present in the form of a baby girl. Mr. Oliphant is putting in new, weigh scales at Hartington for fieldpar, which he intends shipping as soon as seasons are obtainable for drying. Messrs. Collins and Albertson have been working on the new tollgate in Kingston township. Elmer Smith and Misses Annie Reimond and Gracia Smith took in the excursion to Rochester on the 12th inst. A number of young people attended the apert at H. Walker's, Jr., on Friday evening. The new Free Methodist minister preached his first sermon here on Sunday, and made a favorable impression. J. Johnston has purchased a horse and buggy. Visitors: Mrs. Leahy, Sydenham, at J. O'Rielly's; Harold Geige, Verona, at James Talon, Sydenham, at James Walker's; and Mrs. D. Walker at J. Quimp's, Piccadilly.

THE GIANT HOAX

THE MAN WHO ORIGINATED THE WONDER.

Has Just Died in Poverty—The Story of the Great Fraud—Hull Very Proud of Affair.

Binghamton, N.Y., Oct. 25.—George Hull, famous as the man who, in 1870, devised the Cardiff Giant, the greatest hoax of the day, died in poverty at his home, near here, Tuesday. He was eighty-one years old. He was born in Connecticut, and when a young man moved to Broomfield, N.Y. He engaged in the tobacco trade, and at the close of the civil war he had established a prosperous business. In 1869 he conceived the Cardiff Giant scheme, and accumulated a fortune from it.

Carved from gypsum, interred in the ground and afterwards exhumed as a discovery, the Cardiff Giant was heralded throughout the country as the petrified remains of prehistoric man. Scientists from colleges and institutions here and abroad flocked to see the giant, and announced a relic of past ages. Even when it was exposed as a fraud many men of learning insisted that the figure was genuine.

Hull was very proud of the affair, and he never tired of talking about it. He went to Fort Dodge, Iowa, in June, 1878, and bought at a gypsum quarry there a block of stone weighing about ten tons. This stone was transported by twelve oxen over forty-five miles of country roads to a small village in Boone county, Iowa. On the journey several bridges were broken down under the weight of the stone.

After a journey of twelve days, the stone reached the village of Monticello and upon its arrival there was loaded on a flat-bottomed car for shipment to Chicago. It was consigned to Edward Burkhardt, a marble cutter. Upon its arrival in Chicago it was unloaded at night and taken to Mr. Burkhardt's barn in Clark street. Preparation was taken to line the interior of the barn with quilts and carpets to deaden the noise and also to shut out the gaze of the curious.

To carve the block of gypsum into the semblance of human form a dis-sipated Italian sculptor, named Saley, was employed. He did the end of two months at night, and at the end of two months the giant was finished. Nearly one hundred dollars' worth of acids and inks were used to color it, and the various marks upon it, which indicated the action of time and water, were made with a chisel so cleverly that a microscope failed to show that a tool had been used on the surface.

When Saley had finished his work the giant was placed in an iron-bound box and shipped to Union, N. Y. At this station John Hull, a brother of the originator of the hoax, and Israel D. Armsby took charge of it. It was then transported by wagon to the farm of William C. Newell at Cardiff, a village six miles east of Syracuse. The giant was taken to the Newell farm at night and hidden under a pile of straw. On the following night a pit was dug and the giant was lowered into it. After this work was completed Hull approached Newell, the owner of the farm, and let him in on the secret. Newell was to receive one-fourth of the proceeds.

In October of the following year the giant was exhumed. Thousands of persons visited the Newell farm to see it. A three-fourths interest in the giant was sold for $90,000 by Newell to four Syracuseans, one of whom was the father of Edward Noyes Westcott, the author of David Harum. The sum of $10,000 was paid in cash, and this money went to Hull. Burkhardt and Saley received nothing for their share. Imitations of the giant were made and exhibited all over the country.

Practical Application.

We are surely grateful for all the mercies we have received this year, and it is to be hoped everyone will make an attempt to wipe off the back debts so that should next year not prove so bountiful, we will be able to take it over, and above all don't forget the subscription to your home paper.

Heart Wound Had Healed

New York, Oct. 27.—An autopsy on the body of Mrs. Kingsley, who died after surgeons had sewed up a stab wound in the heart, was held Saturday. The surgeons found that the heart wound had healed, and that death was due to blood poisoning from some impurity on the knife with which she was stabbed by her husband.

Buggess Golf has fined the Sun Oil company, a Texas rival of the Standard, $100 for maintaining a nuisance in the fumes emitted from its refinery.

Police Inspector John H. Grant, of New York, has been retired from the force at his own request. His health is assigned.
