New Zealand is a Most Interesting

Volume thirteen of the Canadian Century series, issued by The Lincott Publishing company, is devoted to New Zealand. This series is so practical, so comprehensive and so readable that it makes a valuable library, aske serviceable and creditable to Canada. It is also fair to the empire which cannot be said of United States publications as a rule. New Zealand is a model country in its legislation, and the authors of the volume, R. F. Irvine and O. T. J Alpers, have been qualified by long residence to give an intelligent impression of life and action, as well as a full and interesting history. The two centuries past have been so filled with Maori troubles between themselves, then with the British; of colonization schemes, of land troubles, of struggles for responsible government, and latterly expansion and experiment under perfect peace, that the history is an attractive study.

No land can be studied to greater purpose, for it has been aptly claimed that New Zealand has done the most daring things ever attempted by any modern government. It is claimed as a country without-strikes. Laborers and employers have their disputes there as elsewhere, but the one cannot quit work, or the other lock out workmen, pending a settlement of the dispute in courts. It is also a country without paupers or poorhouses, for injured workmen are cared for by their employers.
