QUEEN'S II WON DEFEATED TORONTO VARSITY II BY 12 TO 1.

A Fine Intermediate Rugby Exhibition - Varsity Scored Their First Point in First Half on a Free Kick.

The first of the semi-final matches for the Intercollegiate intermediate championship took place at Queen's Athletic grounds at half-past ten o'clock this morning between Queen's II and Varsity II. There were about 200 spectators. Queen's won by 12 to 1.

Varsity had the wind in the first half, but scored only one point. Queen's holding the ball well in scrimmage. The play was chiefly between centre and Queen's twenty-five yard line. The features were several line runs by full-back Tett, and one by "Little Fergie." Two minutes before time, Varsity got a free kick at centre, and McKay put the ball over Queen's goal line. Tett was tackled just as he stepped across the line, and then occurred two scrimmages, in which Queen's gained ten feet. Finally on an offside, Varsity got another free kick, McKay sending the ball again over Queen's goal line. There was a general scramble for the precious pigskin, but Mahood managed to fall on it in time to prevent a touch. A range resulted, with only two seconds of the half to play.

Tett had to retire on account of an injury and "Jim" Macdonnell took his place as guardian of Queen's posts. The Toronto team had decidedly the best of the officials' decisions, the umpire coming in for a lot of criticism for not watching Varsity offside as well as those of Queen's.

It took Queen's only one minute to score their first point in the second half, Strachan kicking over to Laing, who roused Queen's Varsity I. Some skirmishing followed, with Varsity's twenty-five yard line. Strachan kicked over the Toronto line, but Laing, after a number of clever elusive manoeuvres, got the ball out. A Queen's scrimmage followed, and Pannell went over for a touch. Strachan made beautiful effort to convert, but the wind took the ball to the outside of the posts. Queen's 6, Varsity 1.

Quarter-back Ballard received injuries, and had to retire, Macdonnell going off to even up. Full-back Laing was kept busy facing the Varsity goal line of danger, and did his work well. From a scrimmage at Varsity's fifteen-yard line, Pannell eluded the Toronto wings, but stumbled. He managed to hand the ball to "Little Fergie," who sprinted over the line for a touch. Strachan converted the goal, and the score stood, Queen's 12, Varsity 1.

For the next five minutes the play stayed in Queen's territory, but the goal was never in danger. Five minutes remained to play. From a scrimmage at centre, Pannell went through the line for a gain of thirty yards. Then Strachan kicked over Varsity's line, but Laing cleverly relieved, as he did again a minute later. Queen's had the ball right at Varsity's line when time was called. The match was the finest intermediate exhibition witnessed in Kingston since the days when Granites were in the intermediate ranks.

Queen's II—Full back, Tett; half-backs, Ferguson, Strachan, Crothers; quarter, Pannell; scrummers, Thompsett, Gilles, Malloch, wings, Harpell, Patterson, Bailey, F. Reid, Mahood, Malone, Murphy.

Varsity II—Full back, Laing; half-backs, Rathburn, McKay, Houser; quarter, Ballard; scrummers, Lord, Robertson, Empey; wings, Davidson, Overend, Buck, White, Ross, McGivern, Small.

Referee, Cadet Hevles, R.M.C.; umpire, Cadet Porteous.

INGERSOLL THE PLAGIARIST. Made Hit by "Stealing Words of Obscure Preacher."

New Orleans Item. Every one conversant with the literature of the United States recalls the wonderful case of plagiarism made by Mr. Ingersoll as to the evils of intemperance. It is now discovered that he stole the speech literally from the sermons of an obscure preacher. Some years ago, in the course of a celebrated liquor case in which Ingersoll appeared as prosecuting advocate against a brewer, he broke out, with apparent spontaneity, into a terrible denunciation of the whole traffic. His eloquence started the court, and claimed the attention of the entire country. The speech then delivered has been used since in repeated temperance campaigns. It was such an eloquent speech that the item reproduces it as follows:

"Intemperance cuts down youth in its vigor, manhood in its strength, and age in its weakness. It breaks the father's heart, bereaves the dotting mother, extinguishes natural affections, erases conjugal love, blots out filial attachments, blights parental hopes, and brings down mourning age in sorrow to the grave. It produces weakness, not strength; sickness, not health; death, not life. It makes widows; widows; children, orphans; fathers, fiends; and all of them paupers and beggars. It feeds rheumatism, nurses gout, welcomes epidemics, incites cholera, imports pestilence, and embraces consumption. It covers the land with idleness, misery and crime. It fills your jails, supplies your almshouses, and demands your asylums. It engenders controversies, fosters quarrels and cherishes riots. It crowds your penitentiaries and furnishes victims to your scaffolds. It is the lifeblood of the gambler, the element of the burglar, the prop of the highwayman, and the support of the midnight incendiary. It countenances the bar, respects the thief, esteems the blasphemer, and violates obligations, reverence, fraud, and honors infamy. It defames benevolence, hates love, scorning virtue and slanders innocence. It incites the father to butcher his helpless offspring, helps the husband to massacre his wife, and the child to grind the paternal axe. It burns up men, consumes women, detests life, curses God, and despises heaven. It suborns witnesses, perjury, perjury, defies the jury, and stains the judicial crime. It degrades the citizen, debases the legislator, dishonors statesmen, and disgraces the patriot. It brings shame, not honor; terror, not safety; despair, not hope; misery, not happiness; and with the malevolence of a fiend it calmly surveys its frightful desolation, and, unsatisfied with its havoc, it pours its felicity, kills peace, ruins morals, blights confidence, slays reputation, and wipes out national honors, then curses the world and laughs at the ruin."

The president of the Primitive Methodist connexion cherishes as one of his privately canonized saints a man named John Stamp. This almost forgotten preacher wrote a letter to the Primitive Methodist Conference meeting at Reading in Berkshire, in the year 1811, on the subject of temperance. It was published subsequently in the Messenger of Mercy and 'Old Methodist Revivalist,' and in that quaint periodical it was recently unearthed, and a most remarkable letter it was loaded to the muzzle with fearful facts and terrible in passion. But how in the name of all that is unlikely had the great American lawyer and infidel stumbled upon that letter to the conference, written by an obscure preacher? Word for word it had been committed to memory, and Ingersoll threw it out in the Supreme Court of the United States as an extemporaneous production. Now people are wondering how many other brilliant things Ingersoll stole from their authors.

20 Years Of Vile Catarrh. Charles O. Brown, journalist of Duluth, Minn., writes: "I have been a sufferer from throat and nasal catarrh for over twenty years, during which time my head has been stopped up and my condition truly miserable within fifteen minutes after using Dr. Agnew's Catarrh Powder, I obtained relief. Three bottles have almost entirely cured me." 50c. Sold by H. B. Taylor and H. Wade.

HE UNVEILED IT A PORTRAIT OF THE LATE PRIVATE EVANS

Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, Performed the Services in the Port Hope High School.

Port Hope, Ont., Nov. 1.—Sir Frederick Borden in the presence of a large gathering of townspeople and others, last night, unveiled a portrait of Private C. N. Evans, who fell in the Hart's River engagement in South Africa on March 31st last, in the high school from which young Evans graduated seven years ago. The heroism of this young Canadian who, after he had been mortally wounded and his ammunition had been exhausted, broke his rifle over a rock that it might not fall into the hands of the enemy, was extolled by Sir Frederick Borden. Dr. Clemenza presided at the ceremony in the absence of Judge Benson. The portrait, unveiled by Sir Frederick, represents the hero standing rifle in hand at "Attention."

TWO PICTURES. Both Drawn From Life—A Lesson to be Learned.

A phonograph solo, "Where is my Wandering Boy To-night?" lushed the noise that prevailed in the Y.M.C.A. rooms last evening, and many a young man's voice dropped to a whisper. Some of their homes were far away, as the song brought back tender memories of a mother, and sister, and the old boyhood's home, and perhaps, the vision of another face just as dear. Some of them had, perchance, partially forgotten the loved ones from whom they were separated, but now came turned backward in its flight and old scenes re-appeared to view. They heard again the dear, old mother's parting words, "Be a good boy, good-by!" and realized more than ever how potent for good was that mother's prayer. It had helped them to resist when the tempter's voice was strong; it had helped them to triumph over wrong and to play the manly part. The song refreshed the memory, rekindled the love and renewed the spirit within. A mother's love is the greatest influence for good in this old world knows. The young men—some of them at least—realized this, and so life took a brighter, better meaning as they listened to the tender refrain.

"Hail! Hail! Hail! The Gang's All Here!" shouted a score of rough young men and wayward boys on the opposite corner. It denoted the last sentence of the song that came from the record of the almost human machine within the building. Somebody's "wandering boy" was out on the street, and not in the best of company, either. Their language, their actions, indicated that very plainly. "We're out for a time!" "Come on, show us one. And on they went, bent upon a round of noise and destruction. Many of them had not known a mother's love; many of them had missed the great blessing of a sound home-training. And because of this lack they had wandered far from virtue's beaten track.

The contrast between the two pictures was very marked. The one a group of young men, steady, gentlemanly, upright, because their home-training had been good. The other—a gang of street loafers, coarse, vulgar and profane, bent, not upon celebrating Halloween with mirth and harmless prank, but with disturbance and rowdiness. Surely, the mothers who leave their homes to ideal for women's rights, and female suffrage, but reform in high places, or, it may be, to urge special prayers for editors and reporters, would be doing a much grander, nobler and far-reaching work if their children those lessons which upon the rocks of temptation and ruin.

Girls Who Work

Girls who work are particularly susceptible to female ills, especially when obliged to stand on their feet from morning until night. Day in and day out, month in and month out, the year through, the working girl toils; she is often the bread winner of the family, and must work that others may live; whether she is sick or well, whether it rains or shines, whether it is warm or cold she must get to her place of employment and perform the duties exacted from her. Among this class the symptoms of female diseases are early manifest by weak and aching backs, pain in the lower limbs and lower part of the stomach; in consequence of frequent wetting of the feet monthly periods become painful and irregular, and frequently faint and dizzy spells, with loss of appetite, until life is a burden and it is hard work to drag about. All these symptoms point to a derangement of the female organism, and if taken in time can be easily and permanently cured.

A Cordial Invitation to Every Sick and Ailing Working Girl.

It is to these girls that Mrs. Pinkham holds out a helping hand, and extends a cordial invitation to correspond with her. Her unrivalled record of success in treating woman's ills makes her letters of advice of untold value to every ailing working girl, and from her wide experience and skill she quickly points the way to health. Her advice is free, and all letters are held by her in the strictest confidence. Address, Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Don't put off writing her until your health is wrecked.

Grateful Words from Working Girls Who Have Been Helped.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I want to thank you for what you have done for me. I was dreadfully tired, I stand over my work all day, and no one who hasn't tried it knows how it makes your back and sides ache. I couldn't sleep, and had no appetite, but thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I feel entirely different now; it is a wonderful medicine. I do not feel that my work is hard now, and I recommend your medicine to other girls who are always tired."—Miss ISABEL SURGIN, 293 Willis Ave., New York City.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done so much good for me that I wish to recommend it to all girls whose work keeps them standing on their feet all day in a hot store. The doctor said I could not live and I must give up work, and stay out of doors; he did not seem to realize that a girl cannot afford to stop working. My back ached, my appetite was poor and I could not sleep; menstruation was scanty and very painful. One day when suffering I commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me, I soon found that my menstrual periods were free from pain and natural; now my health is fine, and every one is surprised at the change in me, and I cannot be too grateful for what you have done for me."—Miss JANET PAINE, 630 West 125th Street, New York City.—$500.00 forfeit if originals of above letters proving genuineness cannot be produced.

SHE PATIENTLY BORE DISGRACE HER HUSBAND WAS A DRUNKARD HER FATHER WAS A DRUNKARD

A Sad Letter from a lady whose Husband was Dissipated. A Lady who cures her husband of his Drinking Habits writes of her struggle to save her home. A PATHETIC LETTER. A Plucky Young Lady takes on Herself to Cure her Father of the Liquor Habit. STORY OF HER SUCCESS.

"I had for a long time been thinking of trying the Tasteless Samaria Prescription treatment on my husband for his drinking habits, but I was afraid I would discover that I was giving him medicine, and the thought unnerved me. I hesitated nearly a week, but one day when he came home very much intoxicated and his week's salary nearly all spent, I took my courage in both hands and directed next morning and watched and prayed for the result. At noon I gave him more and also at supper. He never suspected a thing and I then boldly kept right on giving it regularly, as I had discovered something that set every nerve in my body tingling with hope and happiness, and I could see a bright future ahead of me—peaceful, happy home, a share in the good things of life, an attentive, loving husband, comforts and everything else dear to a woman's heart; for my husband had told me that whiskey was vile stuff and he was taking a divine oath. It was only too true, for before I had given him the full course he had stopped drinking altogether, but I kept giving him the medicine till it was gone, and then sent for another lot, to have on hand if he should relapse, as he had done from previous years. He never has and I am writing you this letter to tell you how thankful I am. I honestly believe it will cure the worst cases." "I had for years patiently borne the disgrace, suffering, misery and privations due to my husband's drinking habits. Hearing of your marvelous remedy for the cure of drunkenness, which I could give my husband secretly, I decided to try it. I procured a package and mixed it in his food and coffee, and, as the remedy was odorless and tasteless, he did not know that it was that so quickly relieved his craving for liquor. He soon began to pick up flesh, his appetite for solid food returned, he stuck to his work regularly, and we now have a happy home. After he was completely cured I told him what I had done, when he acknowledged that it had been his coffee, and as he had not the resolution to break off of his own accord, I heartily advise all women afflicted as I was to give your remedy a trial."
