

SOCIAL SATURDAY NIGHT.

Thomas Carver.
Lo here hath been dawning another blue day.
Think with thou let it slip useless away?

A very grievous thing it is to be compelled to take a person down from the pedestal wherupon we have placed him, the greater the difficulty we had in getting him there (and keeping him there too, perhaps) the greater is the hurt, and it's a strong nature that can keep its faith in the many, in human nature, when outward sight, and inward vision teach that one, or two or more, are unworthy of the high place to which we have raised them.

It is a sad little fight we have within ourselves when we can no longer disregard the warnings of our intuition. We trump up excuses which our reason tells us are useless, we remind ourselves that there may be palliating circumstances, when we know that none exist, and all the while our eyes see, and our ears hear, and our innermost consciousness knows that while the mantle of charity may cover, it can never do away with the multitude of weaknesses and defects and worse, that damage the character of one whom we have believed whole and upright.

The musical tea given by the Misses Macmorine at St. James' rectory, on Wednesday, was an altogether pleasurable affair, at which everyone stayed beyond the allotted time.

Macmorine. Miss Ada Bates also sang charmingly. Amongst those present were Miss Dupuy, Mrs. Harry Betts, Mrs. Stafford Kirkpatrick, Jr., Mrs. Ernest Cunningham, Miss Marion Lewis, Miss Winnie Hague, Miss Frances Macaulay, Miss Grace, and Miss Jessie Kirkpatrick, Miss Louise Kirkpatrick, Miss Constance Cooke, Miss Isabel Cartwright, Miss Mabel Dalton, Miss Maria Macpherson, the Misses King, Miss Gertrude Whitehead, the Misses Bolger, Miss Etta Kirkpatrick, the Misses Waldron, Miss Isabel Ross, Miss Beatrice Tandy, Miss Anna Lesslie, and Miss Nannie Skinner.

Mrs. Wilkinson's large tea on Tuesday was an entire success, to the enjoyment of which the five pretty bridesmaids in their dainty wedding finery, who were on duty in the tea room, contributed not a little. The bride's table had been converted into a tea table, and had for its ornament the wedding cake, on which stood a vase of white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Birch entertained at a quartette tea on Wednesday in honor of Mrs. T. C. McAllister, who is staying with the hostess. Refreshments were served at small quartette tables, which were prettily decorated with pink chrysanthemums.

son, who left town on Thursday. Mrs. Dever, of St. John, was one of the out of town guests.

Miss Maria Macpherson has arrived from Ottawa and is the guest of the Misses Macpherson, Clergy street. Mr. Andrew Drummond, of Toronto, was in town this week.

Mrs. Bate entertained at tea this afternoon, in honor of Miss Sinclair, of Walkerton, who is staying with her. Mrs. Norman Fraser was one of the guests at a fashionable tea given by Mrs. Dale Harris, Ottawa, on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, of Toronto, are the guests of Mrs. Archibald Strachan.

Miss Marion Lewis left yesterday for Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. Lynwood, and Mr. Augustin are now on pension at Mrs. Bredens's. The Carnival of Musical Romances, which proved so great an attraction last summer, will be repeated in a few weeks in aid of the same object.

Mrs. Henry Joseph and her little son, who have been staying at "Queenscote" for about a month, left yesterday for Montreal.

Miss Fleming and Miss Conlee, who came up from Ottawa for the Queen's functions, were the guests of Mrs. Smythe, West street, while here.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hooper went up to Toronto yesterday on the football excursion. Their new house is still far from being finished, and Mrs. Hooper will not receive for some little time yet.

Mrs. Power will entertain the Rideau Euchre Club on Tuesday. Miss Scott, who has been with Mrs. John Strange for some little time, left to-day for San Francisco.

Little Miss Helen Strange and Mrs. Walter Macene's little son, who have been ill, are fortunately mending very rapidly.

Mrs. J. H. Geoghegan, held her post-nuptial receptions on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons and Thursday evening. She was assisted in receiving by her sister, Miss Mabel Strachan.

Instead of the large dance at the R. M.C., to which so many have been looking forward, a number of small dances will be given, and the June ball will stand alone as the dance of the year.

Sir Sandford Fleming was the guest of the Rev. Prof. and Mrs. Ferguson during his stay in town.

in honor of Dr. Raiman Petty, the best man.

Miss Carrie Bevel left yesterday for Woodstock, taking with her Master Jimmie St. Henry, who will remain with his aunt there for the next year or two.

Miss Millie Ferris has come into town from her visit with Mrs. Crisp, and is now with Mrs. Frank Dobbs. Everybody will be glad to know that she is quite well again.

Miss Kathleen Jenkins, who has been with Mrs. Garrett for some weeks, will leave town on Monday.

Miss Lois Saunders, who went up on yesterday's excursion, will be with her sister, Mrs. Kennedy Melvraith, while in Toronto.

Mrs. Kirby Macaulay is a visitor at Miss Macaulay's, King street. It is not generally known that Hon. G. W. Ross has a Kingston attachment. His father's family lived here a year after arrival in Canada, in 1832.

The premiers of Canada and Ontario, like the lieutenant-governors, seem to have imbibed much of the old-time love and ambition of Kingstonians. They were a fine lot in the good old days. Hon. G. W. Ross' first enquiry on reaching Kingston this week was for the Kirkpatrick fountain. He had felt that a government grant of $500 towards it might be an opening for many local claims not nearly so desirable as the wish of the government member for Kingston. After seeing the fountain he is glad the government made the vote. It is, in his view, an imposing memorial, in a commanding site, of which the most has been made. The premier was agreeably surprised.

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Louisa Bartlett, daughter of Deputy Inspector General Bartlett, of Plymouth, Eng., and Mr. William G. Sloane, of Pittsburgh, Pa., took place very quietly in Trinity church, Montreal, at half-past one o'clock on Tuesday, the Reverend C. G. Rollit officiating.

The engagement is announced of Miss Grace Woods, of Murray street, daughter of the late Alexander Woods, of Quebec, to Mr. Charles D. White, barrister, son of the Hon. Mr. Justice White, of Sherbrooke, senior judge of the superior court in the district of St. Francis, Quebec.

The following ladies had the honor of being invited to Lady Minto's tea at Government house on Tuesday afternoon: Lady and the Misses Cartwright, Mrs. E. Griffin, Mrs. Blair, Mrs. Robert Cartwright, Lady Elizabeth Cochran, Mrs. W. C. Edwards, Mrs. John Gilmour, Miss Gordon, Mrs. and Miss Gobeil, Mrs. T. C. Keefer, Mrs. C. Berkeley Powell, Lady and the Misses Ritchie, Mrs. Sifton, Lady Tscherevan, Mrs. Vidal, Mrs. Irwin, Lady Laurier, Mrs. MacIntyre, Mrs. and Miss Paterson, Mrs. Cook, Mrs. and Miss Hamilton.

The bride wore an imported gown of ivory satin, studded with seed pearls, and trimmed with old Irish point, which had adorned her mother's wedding gown. The five bridesmaids, Miss Florence Heward, sister of the bride, Miss Gladys and Miss Violet Edwards, her aunts, and her two cousins, Miss Petric and Miss Margaret Geddes, wore frocks of white silk creations of lace, and carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums.

The Reverend C. E. and Mrs. Cartwright, with their family, came into town on Tuesday, and will be on pension for the winter with Mrs. Loscombe, 245 Brock street.

Miss Levin, who was to have returned from Deseronto on Thursday, did not come till this afternoon.

Mrs. Nelson Mallory, of Mallory's Point, Adolphustown, was hostess at a large dinner party on Saturday, November 1st, when a very enjoyable time was spent by all present.

One great feature of the occasion was a beautifully roasted pig which was served on the pewter meat dish which Barbara Heck brought with her at the time of the U.E.L.'s landing at Adolphustown, and which now has descended from generations down until it belongs to the hostess of this occasion.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Roblin, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Allison, Mr. J. B. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Roblin, Napanee; Dr. D. M. Allison, Misses Edna and Mamie Allison, Messrs. Jack, Arthur and Ray Allison, Messrs. Warren, Reade and Everett Roblin, of Napanee.
