ON LORD'S DAY

WHAT OCCURRED IN THE VARIOUS CHURCHES

Bishop Mills Was a Preacher—Educational Sermons in Methodist Churches—A Solo Very Finely Rendered.

Yesterday being the birthday of King Edward, the national anthem was sung at matins at St. George's cathedral, the dean preaching a very appropriate sermon from the text, "I Timothy ii, 1-2, 'I exhort therefore that first of all supplications, prayers, intercessions and giving of thanks, be made for kings, and for all that are in authority.'" The Bishop of Ontario was the preacher at evening, taking as his text, I Cor. x, 4, "For they drank of that spiritual Rock which followed them, and that Rock was Christ," drawing an analogy between the water which came forth out of the rock in the wilderness, which flowing into rivers, ever followed the children of Israel through all their wanderings, and the grace which, coming from the Lord, the giver, flows on from age to age.

Rev. Dr. Shaw, of Montreal, preached the annual educational sermon in Sydenham street Methodist church yesterday morning, to a large congregation. His subject was: "Religion, Culture and Education." These three, he declared, should go hand in hand. People were often met with who had no culture, but plenty of education, and visa versa. Then also there were people who had religion but no education and no culture. To make a complete, well-rounded life the three should be combined in every man.

Rev. Dr. Shaw preached the annual educational sermon in Brook street Methodist church last evening. He spoke earnestly on the subject of a better educated clergy, and pointed out the needs for this. The speaker contrasted the educated minister with the one who lacked such culture, pointing out that the former was in a position to accomplish much more good. Miss Munro, soprano soloist, rendered "The Ninety and Nine" in admirable manner.

LECTURE ON ASTRONOMY.

Prof. Barnard, Chicago, Illustrates Nebulae.

A large audience attended the astronomical lecture in Queen's Convocation Hall, Saturday evening, by Prof. Barnard, of Chicago, who spoke on "Nebulae and Nebular Theory." The lecturer is recognized as the greatest astronomer in America, and at present he is in charge of the Yerkes telescope (the largest in the world), at Williams Bay, Wis., where is situated the palatial astronomical building of the new Chicago University. This eminent astronomer a year ago had as his associate, Dr. S. A. Mitchell, of Columbia University, one of Queen's most successful graduates, and it was through the latter that Kingston had the privilege of a visit from Prof. Barnard, who was billed to lecture in New York and Montreal, but kindly consented to remain over here, and speak at Queen's. Prof. Dupuis introduced the noted astronomer to the audience.

Prof. Barnard's lecture showed that the wonderful advance in astronomical discoveries during the past decade was due entirely to telescopic photography, which had disproved to a great extent the old nebular theory. To the astronomically uneducated public, it might be explained that nebulae are those faint, hazy areas of light that dot the sky at night. What they are no one knows, although they consist to a certain extent of elements known on the earth, such as hydrogen. Their composition is different, too, from that of the stars.

The photographs of the starry heavens, projected by means of a lantern, were marvelous. They showed the stars and the surrounding nebulae as distinctly as could be imagined. By means of photography, astronomers have discovered many stars involved in dense gaseous matter, hitherto unknown. Furthermore, astronomers had all along supposed that nebulae did not frequent the Milky Way, but were chiefly to be found where there were few stars. Photography proved this belief to be unfounded, as the Milky Way was plainly shown to be filled with a diffusion of gaseous matter.

One photograph showed a star which suddenly appeared in the heavens in February 1901, brighter than any other star. It remained only a few nights and then disappeared. From calculations, the lecturer said that this star had probably appeared 300 years ago, but it took that time for its light to travel so many million miles to the earth. Prof. Barnard was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his most interesting illustrated lecture.

Rev. Prof. Jordan moved a hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer, and Prof. Dupuis, in tendering it, stated that the photographs shown simply astounding him, so remarkable were they in the astronomical wonders they showed.

"Alfie" Pierce Scored.

A laughable incident occurred at the Queen's Varsity match in Toronto on Saturday afternoon. The Varsity students occupied one of the large bleachers, and had been trained in their rooting choruses, etc. They had a leader who stood down in the front with a megaphone, and a baton with which he beat the time. Finally "Alfie" Pierce got worked up over the proceedings, and going over to the bleacher, where Queen's supporters were congregated, stood before them and acted as drum-major with his cane, to the delight of the other spectators and the consternation of Varsity, who were taunted by the Queen's drum-major and asked to bring forth their drum-major mascot.

November Gales.

November is the month during the season of navigation when the largest number of heavy gales usually occur on the lakes. In these autumn storms on Lakes Erie and Ontario the wind in most cases commences at the south-east, works round through south to west and north-west, the time of the heaviest blow usually being when the barometer begins to rise as the wind gets round to the west. On Lake Huron, and the Georgian Bay, the wind, though for the most part changing as on the lower lakes, not infrequently changes with great suddenness, changing after a hill from south-east to north-west and blowing hardest as a rule from north-west with snow squalls.

DR. KENT INDICTED.

The Grand Jury Believed the Story of Police.

Rochester, Nov. 10.—Dr. Leyland Kent of Buffalo, has been indicted by the Monroe county grand jury for causing the death of Miss Ethel Blanche Bingle, a former nurse in the Riverside Hospital at Buffalo. It will be remembered that Dr. Kent was found with his throat cut at the Whitcomb House, here and that he claimed that Miss Bingle tried to murder him and then committed suicide. The grand jury evidently believed the story told by the police that Kent murdered the girl and then made a feeble attempt to end his own life, his nerve failing him.
