

A SOURCE OF SURPRISE.

To Physician And Patient Alike. Dr. Richmond, a specialist in the study and treatment of piles and rectal diseases, recently stated that the Pyramid Pile Cure, the new discovery for the cure of piles, was the most remarkable remedy he had ever seen or tried in one respect; and that was the instant relief experienced in all cases, no matter how severe, from the moment the remedy was applied, this was the more surprising to him, because he had carefully analyzed the preparation and no trace of opium, cocaine, or similar poison could be detected.

Physicians look with great favor upon the Pyramid Pile Cure, because it is rapidly taking the place of surgical operations and because it is so simple, so easily applied, and contains no mineral or other poisons so commonly used in pile cures.

Dr. Esterbrook reports that the Pyramid Pile Cure not only cures the various forms of piles but never fails to give immediate relief on the first application, no matter how severe the pain or discomfort may be.

People who have suffered from piles for years are often astonished at the instant relief experienced from the first application. Another important advantage is the fact that anyone can use the remedy without detention from business or interference with daily occupation.

J. W. Rollins, of Sweet Springs, Mo., writes: "I consider the Pyramid Pile Cure without an equal; it cured me in less than thirty days. I waited fifteen days or more to be sure I was fully cured before writing you; I can now say I am cured and I shall recommend the Pyramid Pile Cure at every possible opportunity because it deserves it."

The popularity of this remedy is such, that all druggists now sell it at fifty cents a package, and its sales exceed those of all similar remedies combined.

THE FASHIONS.

FUR MUST BE IN EVERY SMART WARDROBE.

It is the Trimming, Par Excellence—Gold is Making a Vigorous Re-appearance in Trimmings.

New York, Nov. 14.—Fur is so indispensable an item of fashion that it must be included in every smart wardrobe this year, if only in a touch of trimming. In the latter guise it is extremely effective, lending at the same time elegance and warmth to gowns worn without wraps.

A glimpse at many of the frocks which will be worn at the horse show next week reveals the fact that fur will certainly be the trimming par excellence at the exhibition. The new effects are mainly employed and combined with laces and appliques in the most incongruous and exquisite fashion.

One of the smartest of the gowns which will be worn is developed in rich dark blue cloth with close fitting skirt trimmed with seemingly numberless little bands of chinchilla. A flounced effect is gained by a very full flare at the bottom of the skirt with the bands of fur stitched on in graduated style. At the back the fullness is gathered into two inverted box plaits whose effect is maintained to the very end of the demitasse.

The bodice is laid in tiny box plaits at the back and these are piped with tiniest cords of blue silk. At the belt-line the waist is cut round and short at the back, but lengthens at the front until just a wee bit of a Marie Antoinette dip is gained.

The effective feature of the bodice, however, is the arrangement of the vest. This is composed of white chiffon laid over a foundation of cream white satin, and embroidered in light blue and pale yellow designs, the borders of which are outlined with the most delicate of chenille threads in black and white to produce the effect of chinchilla.

The wide box-plaits which turn away from the vest are, applied with medallions of heavy tulle, and these hold in place tiny bunches of fur tails. These same little ornaments complete the decoration scheme around the brim of a deep blue French felt hat, supplemented by an immense ostrich plume.

An unusual fashion, yet an elegant one, is shown in a gown composed entirely of mink skins. Eight hundred of the little animals were sacrificed to satisfy this demand of my Lady Modish, but when it is considered that a cheque for $10,000, something of the worth of minks, even when sold in large numbers, may be imagined.

Black gowns, too, go well with chinchilla, while brown is reserved with green for the more familiar furs are restricted to linings.

Collars and cuffs of sable upon wraps of cloth or velvet are a splendid recourse for the woman who can ill afford an entire fur garment. Combined with heavy Dutch and Russian furs they are particularly smart for street wear, while the points and inner laps are employed for more formal occasions.

However elegant the fur, it is seldom that it is used alone as a trimming this season. There is no abatement for the luxurious craze for commercial and all sorts of rich materials are associated to satisfy this vague.

The result of the strain put upon the furriers' ingenuity to supply new designs shows well this season, not in that they have found new animals, but rather because they have treated variously the materials at their disposal. For instance, there is displayed in ultraglam shops what the inexperienced would call a new dark sable, so pretty in the coloring and soft the fur, but in reality this is no more or less than the dear little squirrel skin of old, dyed a rich brown.

It is much used as a trimming and for short jackets. In the latter style it is not infrequently applied with rich brocades and trimmed with another, a lighter fur.

Although sealskin has stood proof against imitation exceptionally well—when considering the electric counterfeit, there has come out this winter a new effect so amazing in its imitation that even experts have been baffled by it. The very shade of the roots have been duplicated and in consequence the demand for real sealskin has been lessened.

The skin used for the counterfeit is musquash, a fur which also lends itself to the imitation of moleskin, sable and Russian beaver.

Gold is making a vigorous re-appearance in the embroideries used with fur for coats, boleros and long wraps, showing delightful notes of the richly effective decoration.

The drooping trimming—which has been the distinguished "rear-end" feature of fashionable hats during the fall—is gradually disappearing. Fashion's elite will not tolerate a mode that becomes universal and the new effects in headgear which show enterprise in their outline are a relief to the eye as well as triumph of artistic taste.

Some of the new turbans are composed of moleskin, squirrel, ermine and chinchilla ornamented with military braids; others depend upon the natural beauty of the fur for their effect, not relieved by a pom pom of feathers or of ostrich feathers. They come in a new rounded shape with rather high crown that is strikingly becoming to oval faces.

No feature of fashion is subject to so many and as frequent variations as sleeves. There is no discontinuance of the generous allowance below the elbow, but the newest designs introduce new quantities in the way of making cuffs. Sometimes this is cut deeper, extending to within a few inches of the elbow. Then follow the close fitting band the puff, droops in folds of fullness to the manner in which it is shirred.

Worthy Copper Mine Recently Sold by These Kingstonians.

Industrial Review. "One of the most important transfers of mining property, important not only for the value of the locations involved, but also for the personality of the capitalists interested, has been consummated during the past fortnight. That the copper bearing veins near Round Lake were a valuable asset to the district might have been conceded by anyone who knew of them, and they are probably only some of many more equally valuable mineral bodies in the district, and their sale to parties who will work them on a scale of considerable magnitude is a matter of congratulation. But it is equally a matter of congratulation that the parties who have purchased the Tip Top mine are men who have made their names a household word among mining men on this continent.

P. L. Kimberly alone has been instrumental in developing mines which are to-day among the notable ones of the western states, such as the Annie Laurie, of Utah, and he and his associates have found the Tip-Top worthy of attention among deals which they have consummated, during the period of this option, which have embraced big areas of coal lands in Virginia, and have involved an outlay of millions of dollars.

The mere fact that mining men of such a calibre have found it worth their while to investigate, and, after investigation to purchase, before the expiry of the option period, mineral claims in West Ontario, establishes our right to the notice of all genuine investors of this kind. There is also a further consideration, that in making their first investment this syndicate has probably only made a start, and that, when its reduction works are running, it will no doubt seek in every way to extend their operations, either on ore furnished by the syndicate itself or by outside custom work.

Another very noticeable feature of the deal has been the absence of flurvy or boom connected with it. In fact we have seen more printers' ink expended on flamboyant prospectuses and advance notices for a company that was preparing to lay out $5,000 in the sinking of a shaft, than has been seen in connection with all the operations of Mr. Kimberly and his coadjutors during the past year.

This famous rich copper mine was owned by the Messrs. Folger, this city, by whom it was recently disposed of.

THE DREAD OF AN OPERATION Stares Many Pile Sufferers In the Face—The Safest and Surest Cure is Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Possibly you are a sufferer from piles and have been disheartened and discouraged because your physician has told you that nothing short of an operation will cure you.

You dread the thought of a surgical operation, for, besides the expense and strain on the nervous system, there is the risk of life itself. It is only a few months since a member of the Ontario Legislature lost his life as the result of an operation for piles. The risk of an operation is too great, and, besides it is unnecessary.

Dr. Chase's Ointment has frequently cured piles after surgical operations have failed. It is every day curing cases which physicians have stated to be incurable by any treatment short of an operation.

If you could read a few of the letters we receive from persons who have been cured of piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment you would soon be convinced of its wonderful control over this frightfully common disease.

Rev. S. A. Duprau, Methodist minister, Concession, Prince Edward County, Ont., states: "I was troubled with itching and bleeding piles for years, and they ultimately attained to a very violent form. Large lumps or abscesses formed so that it was with great difficulty and considerable pain that I was able to stoop. At this severe crisis I purchased a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, but I had little or no faith in it, as I had tried various remedies before and to no purpose."

"Now, imagine how great and joyous was my surprise to find that just the one box cured me, so that the lumps disappeared and also the external swelling. I feel like a different man to-day, and have not the least doubt that Dr. Chase's Ointment saved me from a very dangerous and painful operation, and many years of suffering. It is with the greatest pleasure that I will attest to the fact that I use this ointment, knowing that Dr. Chase's Ointment has done so much for me. You are at perfect liberty to use this testimonial as you see fit for the benefit of others similarly afflicted."
