B. KING DODDS IN EVIDENCE.

"There are no politics in the Ontario Liquor Act campaign." So it is asserted. The Canadian Sportsman tries its best to prove that the contrary is the case. Its position is that the conservative liquor men have a right to haul because the liberal liquor men supported Mr. Ross in the general election. This feeling, in the opinion of the sportsman, is quite natural. "The leader of the conservative party," it observes, "has fairly stated that his personal experience of the working of the Scott Act had proved to him that a prohibitory law would not be beneficial to the people of Ontario. This was a manly declaration, yet despite it certain prominent men, connected with the liquor trade in this city (Toronto) did their best to defeat him." They did this because they realized that Mr. Whitney was tramping for votes, because he took opposite sides with Mr. Ross in the hope of marshalling to his support the men whose trade might be affected by the legislation of the last parliament. It must be remembered that the Canadian Sportsman, if it offered an opinion at all, would be opposed to the liberal government on this and any other question. Its editor is E. King Dodds, who has run as a conservative candidate in the local elections and posed as a special adviser of the Licensed Victuallers' Association in the Scott Act and other elections. He thinks the conservative members of that association are justified in their ingenuity. With this the prohibitionists will not find any fault. The less opposition there is to their plan of campaign the better they will be satisfied.

RECONCILED TO THE BILL.

The imperial government is forcing the education bill through the commons with the aid of the closure. This instrument, in the hands of the government, is as effective as the gag. It silences every time. It puts the discontents and troublemakers out of action. Mr. Balfour allows the discussion to go along for a time, and it may be lively enough, but when he has tired of the proceedings he applies the brake, this closure, the debate ends, and the question carries. The majority is as mechanical as usual. The dissidents have been crowded into them since that memorable meeting in Birmingham when Mr. Chamberlain told them that the education bill was going through, that the government was going to stand a fall by it. It was a sudden, a surprising, and an effective hold-up. Amendments are going through, but it is understood that they will be cast out by the lords which is overwhelmingly ecclesiastical in its influence. The state church in the Lords is strongly represented, and it wants the school system for which the bill provides. The Catholic church, too, is also in favour of it. This is made apparent by the statement of Rev. Fr. Carr, a distinguished priest from England, now on a visit to Montreal. "The bill," said he, "is a very decided step in the right direction. The action of the Irish Nationalist members in refusing to vote for the measure I consider a scandal to Catholicism and a disgrace to Ireland. I am a Home Ruler myself, but I should like to make my views in this matter clear. Not only did the English archbishop ask the members to vote for the bill, but the whole prelates and clergy of the church in Ireland, that they refused, giving as their excuse that they knew the bill would pass, and they took this means of protest against the government's coercion policy towards Ireland." The conclusion is, from late observation, that the masses are agreeable to the teaching of religion in the schools, and that the attitude of the Nonconformists will not seriously interfere with the working of the education bill. Public sentiment has somewhat changed since the agitation in regard to it began.

EDITORIAL TIPS.

The Montreal Witness has been conducting what it calls a pledge crusade and since the end of October has received 20,000 cards. The temperance wave is rising.

The weakness of the English educational bill is that while the people pay fifty-five shillings to the church's five shillings of the cost of support, the church makes all the school appointments.

Does anybody really believe that D. Sutherland, M.P.P., South Oxford, was approached and with a view to a change in his politics? He says he was. But he is looking for a little public notice, and he is getting it.

A painter in Selwyn, and a member of the National Guard, has been expelled by his union and lost his work because he turned out with his corps to suppress a labour trouble at Glen Falls. He had to turn out. He could not help himself. The moral is evident.

Hon. Mr. Mulock's post office comparison was between the service of the late government and the service of the present government, omitting Atlin and the Yukon, which were not administered in 1896. The result is a surplus of $5,000. It is very much to Mr. Mulock's credit.

Rev. Canon Welch in a resolution before the Lord's Day Alliance at Toronto, spoke of "the inestimable value of the Sabbath." He, there, some of your humbler clerical brethren will be calling you down. You mean Sunday, don't you, canon? Some gentlemen are very particular.

The Spectator says the lieutenant-governorship is generally given to broken-down politicians. Was Hon. J. B. Robinson such? Or Sir George Kirkpatrick when he accepted office? The office requires experience in the occupant, and it is not to be had in youth.

Why should domestic science be taught to the public school pupils of Hamilton at the government's expense? The trustees provide classrooms and half the teacher's salary, and the education department pays half the salary and finds all the equipment. Hamilton is thus getting special favours.

Scores of children, crippled, and sufferers from congenital dislocations, are awaiting the arrival of Dr. Lorenzo, the great Vienna surgeon, to be operated upon. He is now in San Francisco, and in passing east will give the poor children the benefit of his skill gratuitously. His visit will be kindly remembered.

PROHIBITION MEETING.

The Challenge Issued to John Mudie.

The prohibition meeting in the Ontario hall last evening, was attended by about 200 people. John McIntyre, K.C., presided, and W. P. Ferguson, Chicago, was the speaker. He spoke of the great possibilities of Canada, and of the necessity of saving it from the liquor curse ere it was too late. He hoped the people would not allow things to go on as they had in the United States, but rally to the polls and give a decided voice against the further sale of intoxicating liquor.

Mr. Ferguson then spoke of the pamphlet issued by John Mudie against prohibition, and stated that he would be pleased to meet Mr. Mudie in debate on the Salvation Army bureau platform, Tuesday evening.

When seen this morning, Mr. Mudie stated that he had received Mr. Ferguson's letter, but was undecided as to what he would do. Some time ago he had come to the conclusion not to go on the platform during the campaign. The challenge would require the most careful consideration. He certainly was not given much time to prepare for a platform debate.

Poultry in Montreal.

Regarding the general situation of the poultry market in Montreal a report says:

The market is firm for fresh killed turkeys, which are scarce and high. A lot of 3,000 lbs. of fresh-killed turkeys had a bid of 12c. turned down, the seller demanding 13c. A few lots of turkeys have been received by commission houses and sales of same are reported at 10c. to 11c., but the birds were small and on the lean side. Chickens sold at 8c. to 9c. English buyers have been paying 7c. to 8c. alive; farmers preferring to sell that way. Geese sold at 7c. to 8c. and ducks are nominal at 9c. to 11c.

To Build Mighty Boats.

London, Nov. 18.—It is expected that one of the two fast Cunard steamships will be built on the Clyde, and one by Vickers, Sons and Maxim. Calculations by experts show that the horse power necessary to produce the speed of twenty-five knots an hour will be greater than had been anticipated. It is likely that the boats will have three screws. They will be the largest vessels in the world in length, and will have the greatest power of any afloat.
