THE VALUE OF TRUSTS.

Mr. Mosley, who is heading a deputation of English artisans in the study of American industry, and industrial methods, is in favour of the trusts. He thinks they have contributed to the commercial success of the United States. He would like to see the capital and laborer of England organized, so that they could manage things on a huge scale and to the advantage of the greatest number.

As a result of their partnership, presuming that they can agree upon general terms, there will be: "First, a minimum wage for labor; second, interest for capital invested in an industry; third, a fund for depreciation of buildings, machinery and other items of the means of producing; fourth, old age pensions for workers; fifth, the balance of the wealth equally divided between the employers and the employees."

Mr. Mosley is somewhat verdant. He must not conclude that the great corporations exist for the sake of the masses. The Morgan banking house does not work for the community but for those who constitute the firm. The $25,000,000 it makes annually does not go to the people, nor even a small percentage of it. The colossal schemes of the great magnates are not projected for the public benefit, and there is no distribution generally of the wealth they make among the employees. In odd cases there is a division of the profits, with the men who help to earn them, but the amount is exceedingly limited. And yet the labour world is interested in the great industries. A crash in the steel business, in the billion dollar concern, for instance, would be nothing short of a national calamity.

GOOD TIMES AND EXPENSES.

The great railway corporations have under consideration the proposal to advance the freight and passenger rates. The nature of the advance is not indicated, because the railway companies have not yet reached an agreement upon the subject and concerted action is as necessary for the companies as for the labour unions.

The workmen, from the trackmen to the engineers, have been accorded an increase in wages. The clerical staff, in all the offices and departments of railway government, will demand and receive a proportionate addition to their rewards.

The result is the increase of management expenses, in some cases by many thousands of dollars a year, and in some cases by many millions of dollars. Vice-President Bosworth, of the Canadian Pacific railway, explains the result—the inevitable raising of the tolls for travel and transportation and to an extent which is at least equal to the increase in expenses.

"The workmen desire more salary because the cost of living has been increased. The railway companies desire more revenue, because the cost of operating their plant has been increased. The merchant and the manufacturer want more for their goods and merchandise because the cost of transportation has been increased. Each charge is an incentive to the syndicate to add to the burdens of the people."

It is a question whether the condition of the average man has been improved. There is a tendency to raise prices and wages, and the one offsets the other so that it is doubtful if the individual is any the better off. It is very apparent, at any rate, that boom times do not add materially to the savings of the masses. One earns more, but he pays out more. Comparing notes, is the clerk and mechanic in a better position, financially, than he was in the seventies?

COMMITTING THE INSANE.

The provincial secretary has complained to the attorney-general that persons have been committed to the lunatic asylums who are not demented. They are degenerate, defective in mental power, and so—a burden to their friends, but they are not lunatics, and should not be in the asylums. A remedy is called for. It is demanded that increased vigilance be exercised to the end that only the men totally unsound can be admitted to the public institutions. There is the danger of making the test too exacting, obstructive and injurious. Some cases are hard to define or describe. The patients are rational enough on certain points and exceedingly wary. To make the preliminary examination exhaustive will be to add immensely to the cost of it, and it is heavy enough already. The superintendent and his medical assistants are experts in the business and can understand the cases better than the average physician. The only legislation required is an enlargement of the instructions to these experts to release any patient who is capable of self-government and submissive to the control of friends. This applies, of course, to the public institutions. The law can, however, be exercised towards the private asylums, of which there are several in Canada. The fact must be demonstrated that nowhere in Canada shall any one be incarcerated in an asylum, unless he be a lunatic, and has been pronounced such after careful tests and by the highest medical authority.

MISS DAISY LEITER.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is insinuated that Judge MacLaren was given office in order to take him out of the Liquor Act campaign. Surely not! The idea is too absurd for consideration.

J. J. MacLaren's elevation to the bench is generally endorsed. He was not talked of for judicial service, but now that he has been appointed he appears to be a popular choice.

There is to be a great temperance demonstration of the Toronto school children on the 30th. Thousands of them are expected to be in line. Kingston's children should be massed somewhat on the same day.

The conservative papers are making great sport of the alleged purchase of votes in Lennox with pigs. Hadn't they better wait until that strange charge has been established? Election rumours are not sometimes true.

Mr. Prefontaine is a second Tarte in the energy with which he works. He has only been a few days in office, and already he has in hand the lighting of the lower St. Lawrence and the organization of a small navy. He shouldn't go too fast.

Chancellor Burwash, of Victoria College, thinks it a serious matter to reject the proffered service of any man who feels that he has been called into the ministry. The Methodist church had refused men some time ago, and now they were not available.

The assistant receiver general is scolding people by talking of the penalty of passing off had money. Why not tell how it may be redeemed? People come into possession of mutilated coins honestly. Must they be punished for getting rid of them?

Donald Sutherland, of South Oxford, says he was offered "a good thing financially," as an inducement to desert his party? What was it? Why does he not tell all about it? And, by the way, what is his party? During the election he was an independent.

The Schenectady street railway strike has been a failure. The people generally, even the union men, have not sympathized with the effort of the Trades' Council to force the employees of the railway into the labour organization. The strike was a serious error of judgment.

2nd. Saturday Special.

Our last Saturday bargain was so popular and successful, that we have decided to have number two tomorrow. In going through our stock this week, we have culled out a lot of men's and youths' odd suits. Orphans and ends of different lines, but every one of them worth full price. These number about seventy-five suits, and range in price from $7.50 to $12—and the sizes run from 34 to 44 inches, chest measure. The Saturday price will be $5.90 and on no condition will we sell a suit of them before or after that day for that price. Dunlop, The Grand Union, 122 Princess street.

Persian Lamb Jackets.

Plain or trimmed with any kind of fur, manufactured on the premises from extra choice skins. The quality, style and fit of our jackets is seldom equalled and never surpassed. If contemplating the purchase of any fur article it will be to your advantage to come in and consult us. Prices and information cheerfully given. Campbell Bros., the manufacturing furriers.

"Bibby's" Oak Hall. "Bibby's." Men who come to buy a single shirt, buy two. They can't resist our fall beauties, 50c., 75c., $1. The H. D. Bibby Co.

New Fall Hats.

See our swell styles in derbys and fedoras at $1.50, $2, $2.50. Campbell Bros., 84 Princess street.

Our last Saturday's sale was night only, to-morrow it continues all day, $5.90 for what you pay $10 and $12 elsewhere. Grand Union.

Right Prices

Some clothiers think that in order to conduct a retail clothing business, it is necessary to advertise, day after day, week in and week out.

Men's $15 Overcoats, Special to-day $10.
Men's $10 Overcoats, Special to-day $5.

These values exist on paper only, and the customer never gets them; in fact he never expects to find them. People are disgusted with this method of advertising.

WHAT MAKES TRADE?

It's the pleased customer telling his friends where he was treated right and where his money was well spent. We treat our patrons fairly—give them scripture measure for their money, and guarantee every article of clothing we sell. One tells another and so our business grows.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Views Held by the Local Plumbers' Union.

Kingston, Nov. 20.—(To the Editor): As the boom of a plumbing inspector is on the go, we thought we might as well be in the swim and express our opinion with the several others that have appeared in the local papers. Some call it absurdity, but we call it necessity. We know that you are in favour of such an appointment, and know that you will convey to the public through your paper what twenty experienced men in the plumbing line think on the subject.

We know that it needs no practical man to inspect the dry earth closet, as anybody with a nose can do the trick. Now, we claim with the board of health and the trades and labor council that a practical plumber should be appointed, our right up to date, a man who, without fear or favor, insists that all plumbing work should be done properly. If such an officer was appointed we will guarantee that it will cut off about one-half of the street-tearing up we have at the present time. Also for the benefit of the clerks we have in our principal stores, who stam over cellars that contain receptacles, hardly fit for the nuisance ground.

Now, Mr. Editor, we will let a barrel of flour, to go to any charitable institution, that one half the sewerage does not get as far as that monument of Dr. Sullivan's, viz., the Princess street drain. Draw the attention of such a practical man; there is work for him to do. Don't wait till the new house is built to get him to work. He will have his head and hands full. Don't worry about him. There are hoists being done with the tin-pipe job and the dummy vent. It is surprising how the cheap builder will get the cheap plumber every time, and also how the public will employ the tin-pipe and trapezoid plumber. It would probably be as well to order their work from a butcher or grocer. How are responsible plumbers to compete with the above class? By appointing an expert. There are houses in this town you would not live in or near. We guess you would keep the storm-sash on all the year round.

As regards flushing sewers, we know it rains in Kingston, and we know that flushes down sewers, in addition to drains, and water and soil will not run up hill. You see the outlet from the cellar is lower than the main drain.

We will now conclude by stating that in our opinion the practical plumber is required and wish to convey thanks to the board of health and their energetic chairman, J. McTavish, for the courteous manner in which he treated our deputation last spring, and rectifying a glaring piece of plumbing brought to his notice on that occasion—Plumbers' Union, C. V.E.A.E.
