Rev. J. C. Hume had a fall and lost.

A Conflict With the Women—A Sewing Circle Episode Led to a Controversy on the Subject of Open Work.

New York, Nov. 22.—Rev. James C. Hume, of the Old Brunswick Reformed church in Williamsburg, has resigned. All spiritual relations between the pastor and the flock have been severed.

Rev. Mr. Hume and his congregation couldn't get together on the subject of hosiery. He couldn't abide anything but solid colors woven plain, and thought that a lady's ankle was no place to display her monogram. And he wasn't afraid to say just what he thought about it.

Mr. Hume began his series of hosiery talks on one hot day last summer when he arrived unexpectedly at a meeting of the ladies' sewing circle. Everybody was having a lovely time when the pastor came in. The members were seated in a circle, and each one had her foot thrown over her right knee or her right foot thrown over her left knee.

"Will you offer prayer, Mr. Hume," asked one of the ladies as she laid aside her work basket.

"I will not pray," replied the pastor. "This is not the atmosphere for prayer. I would say, rather, that the ladies of this circle should set an example for modesty. They come here to clothe themselves. To be perfectly frank ladies, I am speaking of open-work and immodestly striped stockings."

Seventeen feet slipped off from seventeen knees and there were seventeen sharp taps on the church parlor floor.

"It would be far better," resumed the pastor, "unmindful of the interruption, for the ladies of this church and of this time to wear the good old-fashioned knit stockings and to send these modern abominations to the heathen."

Then the pastor went away.

The second hosiery talk was in Sunday school. Mr. Hume told a lot of little girls in the presence of several young women teachers that he hoped when they grew up they would not wear open work stockings or striped ones.

"They are the invention of Satan," he said, "and bear Satan's stamp."

Now, one of the young women thought that was a direct allusion to herself. Her name begins with "S."

Only a day before she had been over to Sixth avenue, Manhattan, shopping, and found a pair of pale blue stockings, nearly all open-work in front, except for a little circle of solid fabric big enough to hold an embroidered "S" in black.

Miss "S." wore those stockings to church the next morning. As she went in the late, when they were singing the first hymn, the Rev. Mr. Hume saw the black "S" on a background of pale blue and stopped singing. Miss "S." saw he saw. That's why she resented his reference to the brand of Satan an-four-or-so later in the Sunday school.

She wouldn't teach any more. She resigned and got others to resign. What she did for the Sunday school the ladies of the sewing circle did for the attendance at church.

The congregation dwindled so much that the pastor was asked to resign. He wouldn't do it until a day or two ago, when he got the promise of $300 in four instalments.

AFTER THE SWINDLERS.

They Will be Followed Over the Earth.

Paris, Nov. 21.—The creditors of the Humberts, the swindlers, whose operations ran into millions of dollars, despairing of their capture by the French police, have formed a sort of Sherlock Holmes syndicate to hunt the fugitives. They are determined to pursue them, even if the chase takes them to a corner with which France has no extradition treaty. The members of the syndicate are wealthy, and will not spare money in their efforts to have the culprits arrested, although they do not anticipate recouping anywhere near as much as they will expend.

Turkey Famine For Thanksgiving.

New York, Nov. 22.—Unless an unexpected supply is received at the city markets, and there seems to be no hope for such a supply, the Thanksgiving season in Greater New York, will be ushered in with a turkey famine. Because of the great scarcity at the price of turkeys is considerably higher than the quotations at this time last year. Inquiry in the west, whence the greater part of the supply for this section comes, discloses the fact that the number of turkeys this year is very limited. The dearth is attributed to the increased price of grain. Those who raised turkeys found it unprofitable to keep them during the whole year and put them on the diet necessary to bring them up to the metropolitan Thanksgiving standard.

GREETING ROOSEVELT.

He Will Attend the Union League Banquet.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 22.—For the second time within a few weeks President Roosevelt is a guest of the city of Philadelphia. The president, accompanied by nearly all the members of his official family, reached the city from Washington at noon, today, and was met at the Broad street station by a distinguished reception committee. The primary object of the chief executive's visit is to attend the Founders' day banquet of the Union League Club, but as this function does not take place until this evening the distinguished visitors spent a portion of the afternoon in attending the dedication of the New Boys' High School.

The banquet at the Union League Club this evening promises to be one of the most brilliant affairs of the kind Philadelphia has seen in a long time. In addition to the president and other distinguished visitors from Washington, the guests will include the state officials of Pennsylvania and other men of prominence. Joseph G. Chamberlain, president of the club, will act as toastmaster and the speakers will all be men of national prominence.

CHAMBERLAIN'S TRAVELS.

He Will Visit Main Points on the Way.

London, Nov. 22.—Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, while en route to South Africa, will visit Ismailia and Cairo, apparently with the object of investigating the irrigation methods employed there with the view of adopting them in South Africa. Afterwards he will go to Mombassa, on the east coast of Africa, whence he will visit the Uganda railway and confer with the administration on the labor question and the prospect of Central Africa of supplying laborers for the Rand. He will also call at Zanzibar.

Mr. Chamberlain had an easy case in taking up the ill-judged appeal of the Boer generals to the civilized world and he naturally presented the British Boer generals in the anti-British replies to foreigners. General Botha's correspondence with Gen. Botha, published in detail in a parliamentary paper issued yesterday, presents evidence of humane treatment of the Boer families in the concentration camps and magnanimity in dealing with the vanquished enemy. He naturally resented the misleading statements made by the Boer generals in the anti-British replies to foreigners. General Botha's replies were conciliatory rather than apologetic, and did not break the force of Mr. Chamberlain's powerful, if temperate, presentation of the case.

WILL NOT ENFORCE DUTY.

Burden Would Fall on United States Consumer.

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—F. H. Clergue does not believe that the United States will enforce the extra duty of twenty-five per cent. a ton on pulp. The paper manufacturers in the United States, however, need Canadian pulp, and the extra duty, if imposed, would have to be paid by the consumer there. "I do not think the extra duty will be imposed either in the case of pulp or lumber, for it would hit with a heavy bludgeon the very men who are responsible for the incorporation of the provisions referred to in the McKinley act."

Anniversary Of Historical Event.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 22.—Arrangements have been concluded by the society of Colonial Wars in Maryland for the annual celebration and banquet to be held this evening at the Hotel Rennett. The speaker of the evening is to be President Sylvester, of the Maryland Agricultural College.

This day, which is marked on the calendar as St. Cecilia's, has a double significance for the society, as it marks the anniversary of the sailing of the Ark and Dove from Cowes, Isle of Wight, in 1633. This vessel was the one from which disembarked at St. Mary's, Md., on March 25th, 1634, the English settlers of Maryland, who followed the leadership of Lord Baltimore. Today is the 269th anniversary of the event.

To Consecrate Russian Church.

New York, Nov. 22.—Tomorrow will mark an epoch in the history and progress of the Russian orthodox church in the western world. The occasion will be the consecration of the new Russian orthodox church of St. Nicholas, which has been completed in Ninety-Seventh street, near Fifth avenue. The Russian bishop of the United States, Bishop Tikhon, has come from the Pacific coast to officiate at the ceremony, and nearly all the Russian priests of the country will be present.

FED BURIED WIFE.

Hypnotist Caught Passing Food Down Air Shaft.

Emporia, Kan., Nov. 22.—A reporter and Night Marshal Tow caught Prof. Van Ora passing food down an eight-inch air shaft to his wife, whom he buried last Saturday night in an alleged hypnotic sleep. When burying her Van Ora stated that she would remain in an uninterrupted sleep till Wednesday night at eight o'clock.

Van Ora had buried the woman in a box thirty inches deep and eight feet long. He has been going to restaurants at midnight when no customers were in, buying milk and sandwiches and passing them down the shaft. The woman would then sit up in the box and eat her lunch.

Van Ora has contracts for exhibitions in several towns in Kansas. He also claims to have a contract for thirty days at the St. Louis exposition. He will probably leave Kansas, as the exposure will ruin his business.

VIRTUE REWARDED.

Cash Prizes Distributed by the Academy.

London, Nov. 22.—The Paris correspondent of the Times says that the Mithon prizes for virtue were distributed by the French academy yesterday. The chief prize of 3,500 francs was awarded to Marie Desbat, who has established an asylum for eighty-four aged persons at Venissieux, near Lyons. In earlier years she collected gutter children and taught them their catechism. Afterward she devoted herself to visiting the sick. The sum of 1,500 francs was given to Jeanne Schneider, a blind lady who has founded an asylum for sixty-seven blind children. Three Breton sailors received 2,000 francs for saving a shipwrecked crew. Among the literary prizes, Maurice Maeterlinck got 1,000 francs for his "Vie de l'Abelle."

WASPS DOWN BACK.

Her Face Rubbed With Nettles as a Punishment.

London, Nov. 22.—Mrs. Pentridge, a Wiltshire society leader, was up, yesterday, charged with systematically ill-treating one of her own children, a little girl of six years.

There was a fashionable crowd in attendance and excitement ran high as the little child, a total of having been whipped and exposed to all kinds of weather, while wasps were put down her back and her face was rubbed with nettles. The prisoner has four other children, all of whom are apparently well treated. The case has not been concluded.

MADE A BIG HAUL.

An Express Car Blown Open and Money Taken.

Davenport, Nov. 22.—A west-bound passenger train No. 11, on the Rock Island railway, carrying a heavy shipment of currency and gold was held up at 11:30 o'clock last night, three miles west of this city by a gang of robbers who blew open the express car with dynamite and secured plunder estimated at anywhere from $25,000 to $75,000.
