Malt Breakfast Food
The Most Delicious and Nutritious of All Cereal Foods

The science of our progressive age has evolved an ideal food combining the health-giving properties of pure Malt with the virtues of the choicest Canadian Wheat. It is the food that is relished and used to-day by all classes of our Canadian people. Malt Breakfast Food has become an almost universal favorite. The price puts it within reach of every family. It is as cheap as ordinary oatmeal and gives happier results in health and strength building. Being partially predigested, Malt Breakfast Food does not tax digestion like oatmeal and other common grain food. It contains all the true elements of nutrition and is adapted for the support of life from day to day. It builds up flesh, bone and muscle; it gives activity and clearness to the brain. Ask your grocer for it.

TOO LARGE AN AREA.

Windsor, the lesser, is groaning under its expenditure for sewers, paving and sidewalks, and the Record attributes the load to an early mistake in taking into the corporation to large an area that it has, for its 12,000 people, ground enough for a population of 100,000 without crowding. Kingston is now likewise suffering for its spreading out. People were encouraged to buy cheap lots outside, leaving vacant land down town. This has produced a deal of double street and sewer work, a higher tax rate and neglected and worn road ways.

WANTS RETALIATION.

J. E. d'Avignon, a public-spirited citizen, is moving in the Windsor board of trade for a memorial to the Provincial and Dominion governments for a policy of retaliation against the United States to force the states bordering on the great lakes to come to terms, securing uniformity in the season for taking whitefish. Unfortunately fish in our waters are not so loyal that they will keep on their own side of the international boundary. It is most provoking and unfair to our fishermen to have to stow away their nets while their competitors on the other side are allowed to haul in freely. Canada is stocking the waters to provide a United States harvest of the exhausting kind.

"SOME NEWER LIGHT."

The Woodstock Express has an extraordinary criticism of Hon. Mr. Ross and the referendum. The Whig said this reference to the people was inspired upon by the premier because, in the event of the act being endorsed, there would be behind it, in public opinion, the guarantee of its enforcement.

The Express will not admit the force of that contention, because it destroys the story, in circulation in the west, that Mr. Ross could not, on account of the opposition of his party, "carry a straight prohibition measure." The absurdity of this story will appear when it is remembered that the Ontario Liquor Act represents the limit of provincial power. It is an exact copy of the Manitoba Liquor Act, which was most carefully drawn, which went as far in its restrictive clauses as possible, and which had the approval, eventually, of the imperial privy council. To say, therefore, that Mr. Ross was hindered from proposing a straight prohibition measure is to indulge in the rankest nonsense.

But the Express has made another discovery. It interprets the Whig's remark, that Mr. Ross wanted "a reference to the people under conditions that would guarantee the enforcement of the law in the event of its endorsement" to mean that "if the public sentiment is weak the enforcement of the act will lack energy." The Express is groping in darkness. The remark of the Whig should not require elucidation. The conditions referred to had to do with the vote which was necessary to give the act effect. If a certain number of votes are not cast it becomes null and void. That number being registered in the affirmative is the guarantee which the Whig discusses, the guarantee that public opinion is in favour of the act and to such an extent as to call for a vigorous and effective enforcement. Is that point clear? It ought to be.

The Express is persuaded that whatever measure of prohibition supports the liberals lost in the last election "they had no right to," as they were holding it under false pretences. Nay, friend, they lost votes in their folly of setting up independent prohibition candidates in constituencies where they had not the ghost of a show for success. They played, innocently into the hands of the enemy, and they are rewarded with censure instead of thanks.

KINGSTON'S POPULATION INCREASED.

The Whig repeatedly pointed out that Kingston was likely to suffer from the mode of taking the census. And it has suffered. In 1891 on a record of 3,762 families and 3,633 dwellings it had 19,263 people, not counting in Portsmouth, the penitentiary and asylum, or the military college. In the same territory in 1901, with 3,815 families and 3,671 dwellings the return of people was 18,043. Thus, for 53 more families, and 38 more houses, we make a return of 1,220 less people. This is a pretty hard deal upon a city accounted slow by outsiders. At the sustained average of five to a family there should have been an increase of 265, making 19,728. The record would be small, but it would be much better than the stigma with which Kingston is improperly and undeservedly shares, with one lone companion, Chatham, of a de line among the cities during the decade.

These considerations crop up in view of a fresh effort to improve local conditions by the wholesome agitation for free markets and free roads, to help to restore to Kingston its former big markets, and its lost repute as a cheap place of living. This desire for improvement, in which all seem to unite, is a bright glint in the old cloud of public indifference and subordination of common interests to jealousies and depreciating influences of politics, municipal and national. Too many people are fond of tearing down any good work of improvement for fear it would make the enterprising or spiti ed mo a little stronger in personal credit and standing. It is a false as well as injurious policy, since men rise in spite of opposition and detraction, if they have the right elements within them. On the other hand it will be difficult to name a man who has risen by depreciating others. It is a deadly practice, because it invokes reprisals and weakens the aggressor the most of all. The generous men towards opponents are those who have won in the hardest battles at the polls.

Let it be proclaimed that there are 22,500 people to be credited to Kingston, including the suburbs of Portmouth, Garden Island and Barrfield. The Population has a wide influence in attracting outside attention, consideration and trade. And free markets and free roads will contribute to the same desirable end.

FROM THE COUNTRYSIDE.

Wedded At Stoco.

Stoco, Nov. 24.—Farmers are taking advantage of the fine weather to their fall ploughing. Edmund Kiley and Miss Lizzie Irvine were joined in the holy bonds of wedlock at the Roman Catholic church here on the 17th inst. The remains of the late Mrs. Michael Kohoe were interred in the Roman Catholic cemetery on Tuesday, 19th inst. F. Allote and others attended the Erinsville ball on Tuesday night. Elsewhere Trudeau has a gang engaged cutting wood for winter use in Mrs. P. Hinck's woods. The Stoco Cheese Manufacturing company held their annual meeting on Saturday, November 29th.

Is Expected Home.

Blair Settlement, Nov. 22.—Our cheese factory will close this week after a successful season. R. Blair returned from Toronto last week. John Pinkerton, of British Columbia, is expected home to spend the winter. J. Gossling's new drive-house is nearly completed. Miss Ida Hutchings is visiting friends in Newboro. Alexander Blair, undertaker, accompanied by Jimmie McCann, visited his home last week. The social at R. Gibson's last week proved a success. Miss Ida Blair and William Wood are engaged in getting ready for the annual meeting of the Upper Canada Agricultural Association, to be held in the hall of the Minnedosa Hotel on Friday evening. The Minnedosa is chartered at $50 a day and the Minnedosa was loaded to the top and rested on bottom; two tugs were engaged in an attempt to release her.

Workmen are engaged in levelling the piles of dirt which all season have decorated the Queen's University campus. The campus will be smoothed off, rolled and seeded.

Dog Baillie Conley was on the market square this morning and captured four stray canine. On Monday he destroyed four that had occupied the pens for a week or so.

CHANGE OF CLIMATE.

Not Necessary In Order to Cure Cataract.

The popular idea that the only cure for chronic cataract is a change of climate is a mistake because cataract is found in all climates in all sections of the country; and even if a change of climate should benefit for a time the cataract will certainly return.

Cataract may be readily cured in any climate, but the only way to do it is to destroy or remove from the system the cataract germs which cause all the mischief.

The treatment by inhalers, sprays, powders and washes has been proven almost useless in making a permanent cure, as they do not reach the seat of disease, which is in the blood and can be reached only by an internal remedy which acts through the stomach upon the blood and system generally.

A new discovery which is meeting with remarkable success in curing cataract of the head, throat and bronchial tubes and also cataract of the stomach, is sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Cataract Tablets.

These tablets which are pleasant and harmless to take owe their efficiency to the active medicinal-principles of Blood Root, Red Gum and a new specific called Guaiacum, which together with valuable antiseptics are combined in convenient, palatable tablet form, and as valuable for children as for adults.

A. R. Fernbank of Columbus, Ohio, says: "I suffered so many winters from cataract that I took it as a matter of course and that nothing would cure it except a change of climate, which my business affairs would not permit me to take.

My nostrils were almost always clogged up; I had to breathe through the mouth causing an inflamed, irritated throat. The thought of eating breakfast often nauseated me and the cataract gradually getting into my stomach took away my appetite and digestion.

My druggist advised me to try a fifty cent box of Stuart's Cataract Tablets, because he said he had so many customers who had been cured of cataract by the use of these tablets, that he felt he could honestly recommend them. I took his advice and used several boxes with results that surprised and delighted me.

I always keep a box of Stuart's Cataract Tablets in the house and the whole family use them freely on the first appearance of a cough or cold in the head.

With our children we think there is nothing so safe and reliable as Stuart's Cataract Tablets to ward off colds and colds with older people I have known of cases where the hearing had been seriously impaired by chronic cataract cured entirely by this new remedy.
