Died In Montana. Lansdowne, Nov. 25.—About four years ago E. F. Allen left here for Great Falls, Montana. Yesterday his relatives received news that he had died after a short illness with appendicitis. He was the eldest son of Robert Allen, and was well known and respected by his many friends, who will regret to hear of his untimely end. A wife and three children survive. It is not known yet whether they will bring the remains home or not. A serious fire was narrowly averted Thursday evening in J. Heribson's store, when a can of coal oil became ignited from an over-turned lamp. Only hard work by Mr. and Mrs. Heribson and some others saved the building. Both Mr. Heribson and his wife had their hands severely injured, especially Mr. Heribson, who will not be able to use his hands for some time. The loss will not amount to very much. Coal oil, which has been selling for seventeen cents per gallon for some time, has gone back to the old price of twenty-four cents per gallon. The merchants have the combination scheme down to a science. If one drops a few cents on a staple article, the rest soon wait on him, a compromise is effected and up goes the price again. Mrs. George Graham has returned and will spend the winter here. Dr. Ferrier, Kingston, is staying with Dr. Shaw.

The Late Mrs. John Johnston. Violet, Nov. 25.—Quite a shock was experienced here last Thursday, when it was learned that Mrs. John Johnston, Kingston, had passed peacefully away. Mrs. Johnston (Mary H. Day) was born in the township of Kingston, September 1st, 1830, where she lived until twenty years of age, then moving with her parents near Catarauqui. She was married at the age of forty to John Johnston. They lived at Elginburg a number of years, then removing to Odessa. Nine years ago they went to Kingston, where they lived until her death. When a mere child she was converted at revival services held by Rev. Cyrus Allison, and she lived a devoted Christian life since then. Deceased had been in delicate health for about a year. She came out to visit her sister over a week before her death, thinking the change might improve her health. Two days and nights she became sick and all that kind friends and medical aid could do was of no avail. The death angel claimed her on Thursday. Her friends were all sent for and reached here in time to bid her farewell, except one son, who was in New York. The day of her death she remarked to her friends many times that she was almost home, and asked them all to meet her in heaven, saying she had "Fought the good fight," finished the course; henceforth a crown of righteousness that fadeeth not away." Beside a sorrowing husband she leaves two sisters, Mrs. F. M. Campbell, Kingston, and Mrs. M. Parrott, Violet, at whose home she died. The funeral service was held at Violet by Rev. D. C. Day, Wilton, and the remains placed in Catarauqui vault.
