IF IT CARRIES

THEN DIRECT TAXATION MUST RESULT.

Vote No Against the Passing of the Measure—One Law for Rich Another for the Poor.

From Anti-Prohibition Committee. The loss of revenue from the liquor interest cannot be made up in any other way. This and depreciation of property and thousands thrown out of employment would cause a depression the effects of which cannot be estimated. VOTE NO.

There is no question about it. The "Liquor Act" cannot do any good—that has been proven repeatedly. If you want to keep Ontario in the path of prosperity, VOTE NO.

Where has prohibition been a success? Has it not tended to lower the morals of the people wherever tried?

When you VOTE NO, you declare against the dive.

Under the license law good brands liquors are sold at fair prices. Under so-called prohibition, as tried in several states, vile and poisonous decoctions are retained.

The "shebeen" or the regularly inspected and properly controlled house—which do you prefer?

VOTE NO.

Under prohibition the young boy and the elderly man are induced to frequent resorts that are questionable. Reports from Maine prove that, and a vote for prohibition on Dec. 4th, means a declaration in favor of the cellar and closet style. Do you want that?

No community desires to experiment with a costly system that several states in the union have tried fairly and reported "Dismal Failure."

Will the introduction of spies and informers into our city improve our morals or lessen our taxation? No.

Prohibition, with this province so close to the border, would mean a free trade in the product instead of the restrictions now in force. Do you want to cut our revenue and hand it to Quebec and New York state, without the slightest chance of obtaining any good results to offset its loss. VOTE NO.

The "Liquor Act" makes one law for the rich and another for the poor man. VOTE NO.

It is a law to harass and impede trade. It would increase the trade of the province of Quebec at the expense of Ontario.

The question is a simple one and easily answered. Do you prefer the traffic to be placed in the hands of responsible men or in the hands of dive-keepers?

Doctrinism and obstinacy are the natural consequences of partial decisions or rather the cause of them for when one side or part of a question only is examined there can be no comparative and consequently no satisfactory judgment formed. By forcing the "Liquor Act," upon the people of Ontario all moderate men can see great danger. VOTE NO ON DEC. 4th, and put to rout the false reasoners and their absurdities.

Despotism, perjury and immorality will be increased, as they ever have, under prohibitory laws. Will Kingstonians aid such unwelcome conditions by voting for the Act? NO!

We should all very much like to see drunkenness abolished, but it should be clearly kept in mind that it is an entirely different thing to propose to restrict the liberties of the large majority of the people in the hope of reclaiming a small minority, but that is what those who are working strenuously to secure the passage of the liquor act propose, if possible, to do.

HAVE ISSUED A WRIT.

And J. Castell Hopkins is the Person Charged.

Toronto, Nov. 28.—George Morang & Co. have issued a writ against J. Castell Hopkins, claiming that the latter has left their employ after about a year's service taking some of the plaintiff's documents. Hopkins was employed to prepare Morang & Co.'s annual register. The company seek to compel him to return the materials on which he was working and in an injunction to restrain him from using their material in preparing any similar book.

Death of Mrs. Hilton. Sadness and sorrow reigned in the home of Sergt. Hilton, "A" field battery, whose wife died Thursday night of heart failure and tuberculosis. The deceased, whose winsome traits and sunny disposition, won for her the wide circle of acquaintances, was a native of Parham, her maiden name being Ardelinda Brilgen. She was aged twenty-seven. Two children, one two years old, and the other only five weeks, are left without the loving care of a devoted mother. The funeral will take place Saturday afternoon to Cataract cemetery.

Wants Single Statehood.

Vinita, I.T., Nov. 28.—Among those interested in the statehood question in Oklahoma and Indian territories much interest is manifested in the convention of the Five Civilized Tribes in session, to-day, at Eufaula. The Five Civilized Tribes are strenuously opposed to the Indian territory being absorbed by Oklahoma or attached to any other state and the purpose of the convention is to develop plans for the ultimate admission to the Indian territory as a state by itself.

TO PUT CROSS

UNDER THE WORD "YES" ON BALLOT

The Pro-Liquor Tracts Crammed With Insulting Statements—Aspersions Case in Druggists and Veterinary Surgeons.

From the Prohibition Committee. There is apt to be misunderstanding as to the right word under which the voter should put his cross. The right word is "Yes."

A voter who is a thorough-going prohibitionist was asked the other day whether he was going to vote "yes" for the liquor act, and he answered "no, I want no liquor acts." The man was misled by the name of the act, which might be properly termed, "an anti-bar room and anti-trotting act." If this name had been given it, then every temperance voter would once have understood the importance of voting "yes." This is what the liquor act actually is, and, therefore, those who wish to banish the bar-room with all its attendant evils will

Vote "Yes."

Two pro-liquor tracts have been left in the homes of Kingstonians during the past two or three days. One is "The Liquor Act Explained, Showing That it Does Not Mean Prohibition." The other is "A Short History of the Failures of Prohibition." If the liquor act does not mean prohibition, why publish proofs that prohibition does not prohibit? But the pro-liquor advocates recognize there is some prohibition in the liquor act to seriously affect their traffic, and hence the circulation of the tract containing "The Failures of Prohibition." This tract is crammed with misleading statements. The first sentence commences, "Prohibition has been given so many trials, and has proved such an utter failure in every instance without exception, etc." This is contrary to evidence that anyone may readily obtain. In Maine, for instance it has been a wonderful success. Chancellor Day, of Syracuse University, who was born in the state of Maine, and who never saw a saloon till he reached Maine's estate, says: "For forty years Maine people have held fast to the law and answered every demand to modify it by making it stronger. For they know how infinitely it has wrought for their prosperity in spite of every effort of the rest of the country to break it down. Her young men grow up in every part of the state without ever seeing a saloon or distillery and scarcely ever one of them sees a liquor sign. The so-called saloons of Maine are not like our saloons. They are outlawed and are rat-holes into which no self-respecting young man would enter." Take a fact concerning another prohibition state. "In Kansas the December vote was $87,000,000 in the hands of the state—five times as much as when prohibition went into effect. And this does not include the money in homes or loaned out in other ways."

The aspersions cast on the honor of veterinary surgeons and druggists in the tract, "The Liquor Act Explained," are such that every self-respecting veterinary surgeon and druggist will surely resent them by voting "Yes." Take this sentence with its mean attack on a respectable class of men: "Every one knows that veterinary surgeons in nearly all cases have their offices in a hotel or a livery stable, and what is there to prevent them from administering to their clients the same kind of liquor to two-legged animals when they shall 'deem liquor necessary.' It would seem as if liquor men had their consciences so debauched by their drink that they cannot imagine other persons acting any more creditably than they themselves would do in similar circumstances. We believe that in Ontario the same kind of thing is going on, and that the liquor act would be as well obeyed as any other on the statute books. Let us try the experiment by which we have everything to gain and nothing to lose, and to this end vote

THE WARDEN EXPLAINS.

With Reference to Proposed Abolition of Tolls.

Warden Snoor reiterates his statement to the county council that the scheme of toll adjustment outlined by the property committee is by no means final. For instance, Wolfe Islanders think that $300 is not a large enough compensation for that municipality, while others think Pittsburg should not receive the proposed $1,000. The warden himself wants a larger sum for Wolfe Island, and will endeavor to have the amount increased. But what he wants the people of Frontenac to understand is that in January, they are not voting on the final adjustment of the toll roads, but simply on the question of whether or not toll gates should be abolished. It is only a matter of a year or two before the Ontario government may step in and compel their abolition, and it would be better for the people themselves to take the initiative, and declare by their votes that the ancient system should be wiped out. When the people have given their voice in favor of abolition, then it will rest with the county council to devise a scheme of adjustment, so that those municipalities not directly interested may reap their due benefit.

A TRAGIC DEATH.

R. H. J. Comer Was Nearly Blown to Pieces.

The Prairie City Miner, of Prairie City, Oregon, gives an account of the tragic death of R. H. J. Comer, brother of George Comer, of the Kingston custom house. On the evening of November 2nd, Mr. Comer held in his hand a box of giant caps and a 22 cartridge, in front of W. W. Reese's residence, showing a boy how to use them. He put some burning tobacco from his pipe of the caps, and there was a great explosion which blew off both his hands, tore his face to shreds, and mangled his body. The poor boy's eyes were blown out, and his body also mangled. Particles of bones from Mr. Comer's body were driven into the little fellow's flesh. The boy is recovering, but Mr. Comer died the following morning.

Deceased was an old Kingstonian, and aged sixty-eight years. He was once a printer in the office of the Kingston Argus. For the past thirty-nine years, he lived in Grant county, Oregon, and in 1868 published the first newspaper in that district. The funeral was under the direction of the Masonic order.

SAILOR MISSIONARY.

Work Among Sailors of St. Lawrence and Lakes.

Ogdensburg Advance. Rev. J. S. Potter, the sailor missionary along the St. Lawrence river and Lake Ontario from the Welland Canal to Montreal, gave an interesting talk in the city recently upon his mission work among the sailors and lumbermen. His field of labor is 500 miles in length, and embraces fifty-seven ports, American and Canadian, from which more than four thousand sailors ship.

Rev. Mr. Potter is known on every steamer or sailing craft that plies these waters, and is generally loved and respected by the sailors. He visits the various boats, talks to the sailors of their future welfare, and whenever possible holds a religious service, the sailors gathering about him on the deck of the boat, from the other boats nearby and pay a very respectful attention while he imparts to them of the word of God. It is a touching and very inspiring sight to witness, and much good is done by this white-haired messenger of the gospel, who represents no church or creed, but carrying his messages of soul salvation to the sailors for their own good.

He has established a series of floating libraries, which consist of a neatly made wooden case filled with fifteen or sixteen volumes of choice reading matter. These boxes are placed on the various steamers and barges plying the St. Lawrence river and lakes, and are taken care of and read by the sailors, the box being exchanged for another after it had been read by the men. There are nine-four of these floating libraries, with a total of 1,400 volumes.

Through the collector of customs, Charles A. Kellogg, at this port, permission was asked from the authorities at Washington to permit Rev. Potter to bring across to this side these sailors' library boxes that they might be placed on board or exchanged on steamers while in the Ogdensburg harbors. Although the collector was in hearty accord with the desire of the missionary, the report came back to him refusing on the ground that they were non-commercial. But that action does not prevent the sailors on the boats out of Ogdensburg from enjoying the benefit of these libraries, they are placed on the edge of the Adirondacks particularly successful, and in returning a library box, the lumbermen sent with it a letter of thanks which, although rather crudely phrased, was fully expressive of their appreciation of the thoughtfulness for their personal welfare.
