Church Was Disappointed. Quebec, Dec. 1.-A lawsuit is said to be impending over a second will. It appears that a certain maiden lady had willed the bulk of her property to a Québec church. The pastor of this church and his family had always been very friendly to the elderly lady, and used often to visit her. She finally became a confirmed invalid, and through her pastor's intervention was comfortably quartered in a private hospital From this place she was induced to go to the home of a lady be longing to another church, and once there the pastor was unable to see her privately or to get her away. She died in the house, after making a second will, in which her hostess and a retired merchant who had interested himself in her, were made sole legatees and executors. The church trustees, are indignant and may contest the will on the ground of undue influence.
