LIFE WITH ANARCHISTS. The North American, of Philadelphia, gives a sketch of the woman, Mrs. Dexheimer, who was an anarchist and attended meetings at which lots were drawn for the killing of President Roosevelt. She declared that she was tricked into joining the society by Emma Goldman and was not long a member until she read her choice.

The anarchists are known by numbers, not by names, and they are called together by communications written in cipher. Three times the murderous gang assembled in a little room over a saloon in Market street, Philadelphia, and proceeded to ballot, each one present drawing from the box or receptacle in which the papers containing the names, addresses and numbers of the members were until some one produced the order, "You must commit the deed."

The first time the ballot allotted the crime to one Meloy, of Paris. He arrived in America later, but was persuaded to return home and was reported to have been killed by a runaway in the street. It was not an accident. An anarchist must either kill his victim or die. The second time the order to kill was given to one Mullin, but it was ineffectual. The man with the number drawn turned out to be dead. The third time a Mrs. Schroeder, of Philadelphia, was selected for the awful deed. Her courage failed her. She took acid.

Then Mrs. Dexheimer sickened on the whole business and left the organization. She presented a profound silence for a time, but at a mothers' meeting, she was moved to recite some of her experiences. Her mind became easier, but at once her life was endangered. She has been practically in hiding ever since, and is now in New York, guarded day and night by detectives, in constant fear of attack, for her former associates have sworn to stab her in the back. Here is a curious story. The detectives think that her mind is somewhat unbalanced, but she says she can give proof for all she avers and could tell a great deal that it is not expedient for her to reveal. The surprising feature of her recital is the secrecy and ramifications of the anarchists, the ambition that impels them on that some day all the workmen in the world will rise in rebellion and wreak their vengeance upon all the forces that oppose them in the form of organized capital.

EDUCATION OF YOUNG MEN. Fault has been found because the Board of Education has not boomed its evening classes at the Collegiate Institute and made them a great success. It has done the only thing advisable, namely, placed at the disposal of the young mechanics the splendid equipment of the institute, and especially of the technical department, at a nominal cost. Two subjects only have been taught because there was not a demand for others. A year ago the drawing and mathematical classes were large, as large as was convenient to have them. This year they are not so large, and for the time being it has been proposed to drop one of them.

The question has been asked, How is it the Seranton School of Correspondence manages to get so many students? The answer is because it teaches a variety of subjects—engineering, or architecture, electrical science, etc.—and because its well-paid agents make a house to house canvass for students. The Seranton school is a big institution, it is doing a good work, and its diploma is of some importance. The evening classes of the institute are not designed to qualify men for expert service. They have been modest in their pretensions. They have aimed to help those who left school a little too soon for their own good, and who are desirous of acquiring practical arithmetic and mechanical drawing, which are so useful to every aspiring artisan.

Can the institute widen its influence and curriculum? Most certainly. There are young men in large numbers who desire training on other subjects than mathematics and mechanical drawing, and subjects that pertain to their occupations and callings, let them communicate with the secretary of the board, and the matter will receive prompt attention. The people have provided the accommodation, and the city and the government the equipment, for good service, and both should be used to the fullest extent if there is occasion for it. The impression has been given that large expenditures have been incurred in connection with the evening classes, and that it is a pity they are not better attended. The expenditure, as it appeared by last evening's discussion at the board, so far as the night classes are concerned, is very light. It is confined to the teachers' remuneration, and the incidental, of heat, light, etc., the total for the season of ten weeks being $150. The mistake some people have been making is to mix up the affairs of the day and evening classes and there is no sense or reason in it. The one thought that ought to remain in this: That the Board of Education is willing to use its resources and its equipment for the education of the young men in any way that can be helpful to them, and they have only to make known their desires in order to be served.

EDITORIAL NOTES. Ottawa is to have a new society journal. Its editor is not announced, but he will probably be Major Maude.

Mr. Monk has been nonplussed over the result of the election in Maisonneuve. The political reaction for which he was looking has not begun in Quebec.

Admiral Dewey, in command of the American fleet, is referred to as the Gibraltar of the Carribean Sea. He's a great man so long as he does not collide with a greater.

If Britain and Germany remain in possession of the ports of Venezuela until the republic pays its thirty millions of debt the natives will forget that they had a country.

Winnipeg, for the third time, has rejected Sunday cars. The average Torontonians, looking westward and addressing the representative of no mean city asks, "Art thou holier than I?"

Lord Milner is booked for the governor-generalship of Canada. From Minto to Milner, from the strife and strenuous life of South Africa to, the peace and contentment of Canada, is a great and striking contrast.

Mr. McNeillage, editor of the Scottish Farmer, and a visitor to Canada at present, does not approve of manual labour because it does not improve the moral character. Was that the object of it? Some people appear to be getting things mixed.

A third candidate for the mayoralty is talked of in Toronto—Ald. Spence. He is the brainiest man in the council, and Howland fears him the most. So in advance of Mr. Spence's announcement Howland has taken to the abuse of him. It will not do.

Mr. Coffey, of London, publisher of the Catholic Record, is being boomed for the vacant senatorship in Ontario. It is announced that he is an Irishman. Now listen for the slogan of some men, who are forever bawling sometimes in their sleep, "Canada for the Canadians."

Sir Charles Tupper is again talking. He says there is a revolution against the liberal government in Ontario, and the evidences of it will be afforded in North Ontario where Hon. Mr. Foster is to be a candidate. The constituency elected the late Angus McLeod by 700 majority. Foster thinks it safe. Watch for the result.

Addressed The Board. With the permission of the Board of Education, Rev. Sterne Tighe, rector of All Saints' church, addressed that body last evening concerning visits he had made to the public schools. He was very much impressed, he declared, with the order, government, courtesy and politeness evidenced in the schools. The kindergartens, too, he considered, were very great blessings. He was delighted to see that Kingston had a police magistrate wise and discreet enough to punish boys who have given trouble in the school. Teachers should pay attention to the teaching of good manners; trustees should take more interest in the pupils and encourage the teachers. On behalf of the board Messrs. Sears, Dyde and Meek tendered thanks to Mr. Tighe.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

"A Modern Magdalen" Was Ably Produced.

"A Modern Magdalen" produced last night at the Grand Opera House, has been condemned by some newspapers which declare that the play should not be staged, because it treats of that "pimrose path of dalliance." The piece is of Scandinavian origin, and was adapted by Haddon Chambers to New York life. It portrays a girl of the "Tenderloin," familiar to those of Hall Calver's "Christian." An impulsive, pretty girl, in company on her last-dying sister, and to escape poverty and a hard home life, accepts the offer of a gilded swell and becomes his property. Finally she is saved from suicide by a poor young fellow, who has loved her faithfully, and whom she marries. Then, while he goes to the war in Spain, she becomes a field hospital nurse.

The play is a drama of emotion but contains fine pieces of humor and possesses strong climaxes. It has also some exceptionally strong lines. The role of Katinka, the modern Magdalen, is admirably filled by Miss Rose-Elle Knott, a charming Hamilton, Ont., actress, who shows great variety and resources. W. J. Ferguson plays the role of Katinka's father, an old reprobate, but full of humor. This character is strongly like similar ones by Dickens, in fact there is "Pickens-ism" apparent in several of the characters of the play. Mrs. Agnes Hilday makes a capital surly and evil-tongued stepmother. Good support is given by Daniel Jarrett, as the love-lorn, old money lender; Franklin Roberts, as Katinka's faithful lover, and the other members of the company. The play is beautifully staged.

Debut Of Lady Warwick's Daughter London, Dec. 12.—Easton Lodge, Lady Warwick's beautiful place in Essex, is just now the centre of social interest, the occasion being a grand ball to mark the debut of Lady Warwick's daughter, Lady Marjorie Devenish. The ball takes place to-night and the festivities will continue through the remainder of the week.

Lady Marjorie, who has just reached her eighteenth year, inherits her mother's beauty, and has given many indications of possessing the same individuality and character. Like her cousin, the Duchess of Sutherland's daughter, she has been educated to a great extent at the local high school, at Lenington, near Warwick Castle. Lady Warwick pursued this course in order that her daughter might acquire that democracy of temperament and indifference to rank which it would be impossible to acquire at home under the care of governesses.

Idaho Irrigation Scheme. Boise, Idaho, Dec. 12.—The state of Idaho is soon to be the scene of the largest irrigation works in the United States, and the third in scope in the world. The land to be reclaimed is along the Snake River, and the tract is 271,000 acres in extent. The scheme includes the building of two immense canals, the development of power at Shoshone Falls, and the building of an electric line of forty-five miles long from the Oregon Short Line railroad at Shoshone to the two towns. The area to be reclaimed includes the tract which was set aside several years ago for a National park because of its beautiful scenery.

Live Stock Exports And Imports. The value of the exports of animals and animal products from the United States for the year ended June 30th, 1902, amounted to $244,733,922. Of this amount $44,571,684 was the value of the animals, $192,756,608 of the meat and meat products, and $7,101,770 of the dairy products. The total value of the exports of animal products was about $3,000,000 greater than the like exports of the previous year. There was a decrease of nearly $3,000,000 in the value of cattle exported. This latter was due to the sharp demand for beef cattle in the United States.

Despite these large exports, the United States imported from Canada 27,716 cattle, 148,313 sheep, 3,305 horses, and 5,356 hogs.

Places For Graduates. Montreal, Dec. 11.—Lieut.-Col. S. Stee, commanding the South African Mounted Police in the Pretoria district under Col. Baden-Powell, has written to Dr. D. McKeehan, dean of the McGill faculty of comparative medicine, to ask him to supply him with the services of four of the veterinary graduates. Col. Stee states that the Canadians have proved themselves excellent horsemen and their life at home has peculiarly fitted them for the conditions in South Africa, while those who were out during the war impressed their commanding officers by their conduct and fitness for the work.
