

DO YOU GET FULL

Value for your dollar? Any dollar that the Canadian government says is good will buy you more value, more genuineness, here than any other hardware store in the district.

Buckskin Driving Mitts (lined), per pair, 50¢.

Steel Snow Shovels, 25c. and 30c. A hardwood "pointer" sleigh for that boy of yours for 25c.

Meat Choppers, $1.50.

Raisin Seeders, $1.

"Our efforts to please you, when we succeed, please us more."

CORBETT'S HARDWARE,
Cor. Princess and Wellington St.

If you like a good cup of tea try our

"INDIA BLEND"
25c., 30c., 35c., 40c., 50c. pou. d.

For best results in baking use

STARR BRAND BAKING POWDER.
EXTRACTS AND SPICES.
THE STARR CO.,
185 WELLINGTON ST.

1903 1903

Canadian Almanac.
Scribbling Diaries
Office Diaries
Pocket Diaries

F. NISBET,
The Corner Bookstore.

Table Cream and Butter

When buying from us, you have a guarantee of pure and unadulterated products, and the benefit of the highest technical test offered by one of King's expert pathologists.

Our best citizens are testifying to this, daily, by giving us largely increased patronage.

The Clarified Milk Company, Phone 567.

WHO IS YOUR AUCTIONEER?

W. MURRAY, Jr.,

Is serving nearly every body now in that line. He has a reputation for good sales, prompt returns and satisfactory settlements. You will be money in pocket by employing W. MURRAY, Jr.

THROUGH THE HUSTLE AND BUSTLE
OF GETTING READY FOR CHRISTMAS, we recommend the Old Reliable park across 60th Street. Here you can get the best assortment of cooked Meats, Sausages, Bacon and Hams, in the city. Always fresh and up-to-date. Specials for Christmas—English ham, Prime Minced meat and pure Lard. Phone 570.

STAMPS AND MARKERS
RUBBER STAMPS OF ALL KINDS, Self-Inkers, Linen Markers, Dates, Seals, Stencils, Bank and Ticket Office Stamps, etc. Repairs prompt. JOHN OFFORD, King Office.

Protect the Lungs and Chest from the cold piercing winds of winter by using a CHAMOIS VEST OR CHEST PROTECTOR.

We have a large assortment of these goods and can satisfy you in style, quality and price.

Our $1.50 Chamois-vest for Men or Women is special value. Come in and look at them.

DR. CHOWN'S DRUG STORE,
185 PRINCESS STREET.
TELEPHONE 343.

THE WHIG — 69TH YEAR.

DAILY BRITISH WHIG, published each evening, at 306-310 King Street, at 25c per year. Editions at 2:30 and 4 o'clock. WEEKLY BRITISH WHIG, 12 pages, published every Thursday morning at $1 a year.

Attached is one of the best Job Printing Offices in Canada; rapid, stylish and cheap work; nine improved presses. EDW. J. R. PENSE, PROPRIETOR.

THE DAILY WHIG

Opener per Ounce Dixer.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

A movement is afoot in England, among the working classes, looking to the passage by parliament of legislation in support of old age pensions. It is proposed that the nation devote some of the taxes now devoted to war purposes, later on, to the creation of the pension fund. But the nation will think twice about the continuance of the war tariff beyond the date when it can be dispensed with. There is the tax now on bread stuffs, and the average free trader says it is wrong and ought to go. He only endures it out of consideration for the national pride which is touched by the war, and touched very deeply. The old age pension would not be so much in demand if the masses put less money into beer and spirits and more of it into the savings bank. The average Englishman enjoys himself. He does this even when the times are dull and he does not see too far ahead. He can save money if he likes, and it is this fact which tells so strongly against the proposal that the aged should be cared for no matter how improvident they may have been. In greater favour is the proposal to provide for the disabled warrior. The returned soldier is generally helpless. He is primarily a fighter. When he ceases to be that he becomes a ward of the state.

Perhaps it may be said that Sir William has no more right to talk on moderate tariff than Mr. Tarte had to boom a high tariff. But there is a marked difference in the tone of the speakers. One is dictatorial; the other is argumentative. One indicates a desire to rush the government and results; the other indicates a willingness to discuss the matter and deal with it in the interest of the whole people. Sir William has been quite sensible and suggestive in his address.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

A SMALLER CITY COUNCIL. The Hague peace conference is becoming an important institution. It has now eighteen referens before it, including that of the Venezuelan affair.

The Globe sees no hope of a strong government in Ontario unless that of Hon. Mr. Ross be strengthened. There is certainly no general desire to have the present anxious situation unduly prolonged.

According to the News the people of Toronto are still looking for a man for the mayor's chair. Of the three men in the field, all conservatives, not one is fitted for the place. Hard, isn't it?

The American papers are extolling the name of Mr. Roosevelt as a peacemaker. Yet he would not arbitrate in the Venezuelan difficulty. He was willing and anxious that The Hague should decide the issue.

How would the arbitration proceedings of the United States, or of its president, entail "entangling alliances?" The nation that has assumed the political oversight of all Americans should be equal to the arbitration of the little Venezuelan dispute.

In the multitude there is supposed to be wisdom, but it comes of accumulated study, of meditation, of concentration of mind, and unfortunately, it is not always in evidence. Out of a large body of twenty or twenty-five men, it is calculated that one-half are workers, that one-half only are doing the thinking and acting and worrying which the circumstances impose. The conclusion is that it is better that these twelve should be free from the encumbrance or impediment of the others and that the latter would be retarded by the abolition of the ward system.

The idea is to confine this reform to cities of 100,000 and over. Why? If a big city can be managed, municipally, by a small number of men why not a small city whose interests are not so extensive and so complex? The question is, Would Kingston be given a better class of men, to rule in its council, if they were limited to twelve, six retiring annually, and these were elected or re-elected annually? Some people think so. The proof is absent, however, and cannot be supplied outside of an experiment for which at present there is no provision in law.

MULOCK AND THE TARIFF.

The Hamilton Liberal Club is a live institution. This point is evidenced by the circumstance that it has frequent meetings which are addressed by eminent men, and men who are capable of educating the liberal party on the questions of the hour. Sir William Mulock was the last to address it on Friday night. His utterances were important as indicating his mind upon the tariff question. Sir William did not speak on behalf of the administration, but he advanced reasons why it would be more reasonable to expect a moderate than a high tariff. He intimated that parliament would not be disposed to act hysterically in regard to a matter of the greatest importance, but it would be calm in its temper, deliberate in purpose, and rational in its mood.

Two facts Sir William Mulock emphasized. The first fact was that Canada had prospered under the Canadian preference for British manufacturers. This had given the sons of the British people to the friendliness of Canada, which had been too strong under the national policy. When the preference was shown, in the liberal tariff of 1897, trade with the mother country began to develop at once, and in five years its value exceeded the value of the goods shipped to England in the previous five years by $140,000,000. This increase largely reflected the prosperity of the farmers, a prosperity that was unexpected and ought to be continued.

The second fact was that a high protection tariff—such a high tariff as some people advocated—would operate against the Canadian British trade. He demonstrated this by quotations from the American press. "The Canadian manufacturer who is seeking more protection," said the Minneapolis Journal, which is in touch with Canadian sentiment and politics, "wants to get rid of English competition almost as much as American. If he has his way one of the things he will do will be to abolish or to nullify the British preferential tariff by means of a little tariff jugglery. So if the high protectionists finally have their way, there is consolation for American who desire closer trade relations with Canada, and Great Britain will not be made any closer by the so-called national policy." Sir William commanded such an interpolation of public sentiment to the conservatives who revered the memory of Sir John Macdonald and remembered his last appeals in the name of loyalty and British connection.

Perhaps it may be said that Sir William has no more right to talk on moderate tariff than Mr. Tarte had to boom a high tariff. But there is a marked difference in the tone of the speakers. One is dictatorial; the other is argumentative. One indicates a desire to rush the government and results; the other indicates a willingness to discuss the matter and deal with it in the interest of the whole people. Sir William has been quite sensible and suggestive in his address.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

The Hague peace conference is becoming an important institution. It has now eighteen referens before it, including that of the Venezuelan affair.

The Globe sees no hope of a strong government in Ontario unless that of Hon. Mr. Ross be strengthened. There is certainly no general desire to have the present anxious situation unduly prolonged.

According to the News the people of Toronto are still looking for a man for the mayor's chair. Of the three men in the field, all conservatives, not one is fitted for the place. Hard, isn't it?

The American papers are extolling the name of Mr. Roosevelt as a peacemaker. Yet he would not arbitrate in the Venezuelan difficulty. He was willing and anxious that The Hague should decide the issue.

How would the arbitration proceedings of the United States, or of its president, entail "entangling alliances?" The nation that has assumed the political oversight of all Americans should be equal to the arbitration of the little Venezuelan dispute.

In the multitude there is supposed to be wisdom, but it comes of accumulated study, of meditation, of concentration of mind, and unfortunately, it is not always in evidence. Out of a large body of twenty or twenty-five men, it is calculated that one-half are workers, that one-half only are doing the thinking and acting and worrying which the circumstances impose. The conclusion is that it is better that these twelve should be free from the encumbrance or impediment of the others and that the latter would be retarded by the abolition of the ward system.

The idea is to confine this reform to cities of 100,000 and over. Why? If a big city can be managed, municipally, by a small number of men why not a small city whose interests are not so extensive and so complex? The question is, Would Kingston be given a better class of men, to rule in its council, if they were limited to twelve, six retiring annually, and these were elected or re-elected annually? Some people think so. The proof is absent, however, and cannot be supplied outside of an experiment for which at present there is no provision in law.

MULOCK AND THE TARIFF.

The Hamilton Liberal Club is a live institution. This point is evidenced by the circumstance that it has frequent meetings which are addressed by eminent men, and men who are capable of educating the liberal party on the questions of the hour. Sir William Mulock was the last to address it on Friday night. His utterances were important as indicating his mind upon the tariff question. Sir William did not speak on behalf of the administration, but he advanced reasons why it would be more reasonable to expect a moderate than a high tariff. He intimated that parliament would not be disposed to act hysterically in regard to a matter of the greatest importance, but it would be calm in its temper, deliberate in purpose, and rational in its mood.

Two facts Sir William Mulock emphasized. The first fact was that Canada had prospered under the Canadian preference for British manufacturers. This had given the sons of the British people to the friendliness of Canada, which had been too strong under the national policy. When the preference was shown, in the liberal tariff of 1897, trade with the mother country began to develop at once, and in five years its value exceeded the value of the goods shipped to England in the previous five years by $140,000,000. This increase largely reflected the prosperity of the farmers, a prosperity that was unexpected and ought to be continued.

TAKES ITS EXIT.

THE COSY CORNER HAS MET ITS DOOM.

Early Dutch and Mission Style of Furnishing Has Been Revived—What a New York Paper Says.

The cosy corner must go, says the New York Mail and Express. Like everything else which has been greatly overdone and cheapened, its end is inevitable. The idea has been so generally copied that its fame spread far and wide, until now it is popularly placed the first of all the household goods.

A sorrier-looking lot of deities than hosts of these have degenerated into it would be difficult to imagine. With trembling spears struggling to uphold yards of so-called Oriental draperies

PITH OF THE NEWS.

The Very Latest News Culled From All Over The World.

Right Rev. J. H. Festing, Bishop of St. Albans, London, is dead. Furious gales are endangering shipping on the coast of Newfoundland. The number of dead in the wreck at Wanstead is placed at twenty-eight. Frederick Post, Sodus, N.Y., has become suddenly insane from smoking cigarettes.

David A. Robson, a Toronto money lender, has left the city. There are several dissatisfied creditors.

A negro and his wife were lynched for the murder of a white man near Greenwood, S.C.

William Reid, Cardinal, was killed on the G.T.R. near Prescott. He was over fifty years of age.

The Eastern and Western Land company, Toronto, has been incorporated with a capital of a million dollars.

The Cataract Auxiliary company has

WRINKLE ERASERS. THAT IS WHAT

Tetley's TEAS
"From ANCIENT INDIA and SWEET CEYLON."
ARE.
Smooth Out the Wrinkles From Our Daily Troubles and Invigorates. Prices—$1, 70c., 60c., 50c. and 40c. per lb. At Your Grocers.

WHERE TO BUY PERFECTLY TAILORED

Suits and Overcoats

GROSVENOR OVERCOATS in newest styles, $8, $10, $12.50.

OUR DUNDONALD SUITS in fine Tweeds, Worsteds and Serges, perfect beauties, $8, $10, $12, $13, $14, $15.

THE H. D. BIBBY CO.,

One Price Clothing House, Oak Hall.

BRONCHITIS, the fore-runner of Consumption, is cured by using

Owbridge's Lung Tonic

In successful use for over 28 years.

Prepared by W. T. OWBRIDGE, HULL, ENGLAND. At all druggists, price 35 cents and 75 cents.

I have given it for severe asthma and bronchial affections, combined with much coughing, and it has immediately given relief, when all other remedies have failed. Charles F. Forshaw, D.D.S., Bradford.

LANGTRY AT "THE GARRICK."

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY.

To Put on Four-Act Play Written By Herself.

Newswy Paragraphs Picked Up By Reporters On Their Rounds.
Chocolate drops 10c. pound.
Creame 10c. pound.
Peanut candy 10c. pound.
Cocoanut candy 10c. pound.
Butterscotch 10c. pound. At McLaughlin's, 204 Princess street.

A butcher's horse became frightened at a Belleville street car on Princess street, this morning, and dashed up against a large window in Sears hardware store, smashing it.

The men of the 11th regiment are drumming somewhat over the delay in the arrival of their pay for the annual drill performed in 1902. They say the delay will result in thinned ranks next year.

Saturday afternoon the C.C.M.G. of St. James' church held their annual Christmas-tree entertainment. Games were introduced instead of the customary treat, which was a questionable change in the opinion of the little folks. The tree, however, was a complete success and all received a present. Rev. Mr. Savary personated Santa Claus, at which he is quite an adept.

The Whig does not tire of good words for Dr. Barnardo's homes in England. This year this chiefest of philanthropists has 6,200 boys and girls under his care. No other society in England has over 1,000 dependent children. The Barnardo homes rescue from the streets sixty wifes per week, and the doctor's emphatic verdict, after an experience among poor children that must be brief, is that "no one is hopelessly banished by his birth conditions." That is a message of hope well worth remembering. The annual expenditure is enormous, and in spite of gifts as high as £500 or £1,000 each, the year closes with an overdraft of £16,000.

New Year's At The Y.M.C.A.
Every citizen who loves to help young men ought to go to the Y.M.C.A. concert, New Year's evening. A splendid display of Holy Land Views by stereoscopic light. Each view explained by an eye witness. Proceeds to help entertain young men during winter evenings. Tickets on sale at Taylor's drug store and Uglow's, at 15c. each.

The annual treat for the pupils of the Sunday school of St. James church will take place Tuesday night, owing to the fact that in past years the Sunday school rooms have been roundly inadequate to accommodate all who desired to attend. It was thought advisable to engage the city hall this year. Tea will be served to the children and a concert will afterwards be given.

Hard or soft corns cured with three applications of Peck's Corn Salve, 15c. at Wade's.

###