I shall attempt to answer both of these questions, and prescribe a remedy, then I shall compare my remedy with the deputy minister's remedy. It is a fact that our cities are more attractive than the country. either old or young; hours of labor tion so as to be in a position to disare not so long. My experience is that the drift thither (out of proportion) whe ther times are good or bad. (One-tenth-of the population of Ontario is in Toronto to-day.) In the cities people meet to exchange wealth, stores, banks, hotels, doctors, lawyers, mechanics and professionals of every conceivable kind are a concomitant, and to cap the list the land speculator must not be forgotten. Here land walues are at their best. .! am not sure that "ordinary services" are better paid in the country than in the 'city; I think not but they are, there is no chance to "strike luck" in the country like there is in the city. Some do get wealth more rapidly in the city than they could in the country. I think the above are sufficient reasons to bring population to the

Why do the young men go west i preference to remaining in Ontario? We cannot blame the tariff nor the present land value for this. Is it not because some of them in "five years become wealthy?" And if some can in five, others can in six, eight or ten years, or if not wealthy, they are likely to obtain a competency, which they are not so likely to do in Ontario. I think this is a sufficient answer to my second question. It is not that they are not wanted at home for they are, and because of their absence their places have to be filled with incompetent or unskilful emigrants, who are to be made active, careful, persevering and economical, by a participation of profits as well as wages. Co-operation then is the deputy minister's remedy. In my next letter I shall propose the remedy.-Yours truly, A. HOPPINS.

Married On Wednesday. At St. Mary's cathedral, at 9:30 o'clock, on Wednesday morning, Miss Katie M. Murray, of this city, and W. D. Lantier, Watertown, N.Y., were joined in the bonds of matrimony. Her bridesmaid was Miss Maud Jeffers, Buffalo, N.Y., and the groom was attended by Mr. Fitzgerald, Watertown, N.Y. The bride was given away by her father, Capt. James Murray. The wedding was a quiet one on account of a late bereavement in the family. The popularity of the bride was attested by a large number of handsome and costly presents. Ross To Prohibitionists. Premier Ross to deputation : "Whe ther my majority in the house is large or small, it must be maintained intact. and my duty as head of a responsible government is to consult the majority. and that will be done at the earliest opportunity when the house meets. Then I will see how for the members are in sympathy with the force of the vote taken and how far they will act upon it. I hope we will agree upon some course satisfactory to you, so that we will have legislation to meet with the wishes of the majority of the people. I do not want to have you think that we play fast and loose with this or any other question. We have not played fast or loose with it; we have acted in all sincerity within the constitutional rights of the province and constitutional limitations, and while some of you have not approved of our course, still we believe we have the confidence of the people in the matter. We hope for legislation when the house meets, and we trust that that legislation will meet with the approval and confidence of the country."
