A WIFE'S CRIME

SHE MADE A CONFESSION AT CENTREVILLE N. Y.

Mrs. Lafayette Taylor Tried to Frighten Drunken Husband and in the Struggle Shot Him—Fearing Arrest, She Cuts up the Body.

Monticello, N.Y., Feb. 9.—Mrs. Lafayette Taylor, of Centreville, Sullivan county, has confessed to having killed her husband, Lafayette Taylor, and buried the body January 26th to escape detection.

Taylor disappeared the night of January 25th, and was supposed to have deserted his family. Friday, February 6th, Mrs. Taylor attempted to sell a horse to a Centreville man, who would not buy for fear Taylor might come back and claim the horse. Mrs. Taylor told him to rest easy on that point, for she had killed him and buried the body.

The fourteen-year-old daughter of the Taylors was asked the story her mother had told about having killed her father and was offered $5 to tell the truth. She said the story was true.

Mrs. Taylor was arrested and made a full confession. Her story is that Taylor, who was a hard drinker, came home on the night of January 25th, very drunk, and immediately began to abuse her. She secured a revolver which she had purchased a few days before, and tried to frighten him. He attempted to take it from her and in the struggle it went off, the bullet striking him over the eye and killing him instantly.

She was so frightened for fear of being arrested for murder that she decided to cut up the body and burn it.

Her fourteen-year-old daughter witnessed the shooting and helped the mother to cut up the body in small pieces with an axe and burn it in the kitchen stove with the clothing of the victim. The bones were ground fine and fed to the hogs on the spots.

The Taylors live on a farm a mile from the main road and the chances of discovery were few.

Mrs. Taylor is about forty years of age. She says she confessed because her crime haunted her. The daughter has not been arrested.

Buried After Forty Years.

A remarkable funeral has taken place at Colyton, Devon, England. The embalmed bodies of Mrs. Jenny Kingdon, who died forty years ago, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Sarah Kingdon, who passed away fifteen years since, were interred side by side in the presence of a large number of town-people. After Harry de Spencer Kingdon, of very recent date, died, the body of the embalmed body of his mother was found in one room in his house, and that of his wife, also embalmed, was discovered in the green house.

The Usual Thing, However.

Former Postmaster-General Emory Smith, writing in the Saturday Evening Post on the Alaska boundary, refers to "Canada's impudent and trumped-up claim." When former members of the cabinet at Washington are so ignorant and insolent, it is no wonder the mass of the people know little of the real state of the case.

FARMING MILLENIUM.

How Toronto is Arranging for This Great Boom.

Woodstock Sentinel Review.

The apprehension of Canadian farmers as to the future of farm help, now almost impossible to secure in the West, has been expressed by the Toronto World. It declares that all the operations of the farm in future are to be carried on by electricity. The farms of Ontario are to be mere attachments of Niagara Falls. Every farmer will have an electric railway pass his door, and an electric motor in his carriage house to take him to church unless the rail-roads are allowed to run on Sunday. The ploughs are all to be run by electricity. Grain is to be sown and reaped by the same universal agency. Grain and straw and wood are to be chopped by electricity, and automatic devices are all to be run by elec- tricity. The chickens are to be raised in the same way, and nobody will ever be required to go nearer the ewery than the far end of a wire. The cows, of course, will be milked by electricity in the barn, and all the other farm work, such as cutting, chopping and churning, and butter without human hand. Neither distance nor the price of wire will prevent any farmer from utilizing an agency which is to make him at once a millionaire and a body of pure steel, and the machinery agents may now be withdrawn from the field. Our costly educational system may continue to take the boys and girls from the farm. They will no longer be needed on the farm, but will become house-painters or sell pencils in the city streets. The girls may all become stenographers—or enter the learned professions. The work done by their fathers and mothers is all to be done by electricity in the gold- digger's bag to come. Every corner of the province is to have direct communication with Niagara, and the Niagara current, with all the operations of Ontario agriculture dependent upon it, is to be under the control of the Mayor of Toronto. Edison and Marconi and Bell of telephone fame, and a few hundred others of the great inventors and discoverers of the world, may take a back seat. The future is to be worked by electricity, and it is evidently the greatest evolution and revolution since the time of Adam. And it is all so easy to deal that a child can see it. If you see a tractor, or a reaper, or a mow-er, or a threshing machine, or any other piece of machinery, you will find it is all made of wood. And it is all so easy to deal that a child can see it. Cataract Collings.

Cataract Collings. A quarterly meeting was held at the Methodist church on Sunday, February 1st, and was fairly well attended, a number attending from the other ap- pointments on the circuit. The official meeting was held in the parsonage on the following Tuesday evening, when the members of the board and their wives were entertained at the table by the pastor and his family. A very pleasant evening was spent in music, intercourse, and ad- dresses by the pastor, Rev. William Craig, and some of the members of the board. All were well pleased with the evening's exercises, and expressed the hope that it might be repeated. The quarterly returns were quite satis- factory. Mr. and Mrs. Dickson, Mani- totoba, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred- erick Purdy, Mrs. Dickson is a sister of Mrs. Purdy, and a daughter of Samuel Gordon, late of Cataract, near the Foot of the Mountain. Mantolova, Mr. Dickson says Manitoba is a good place to make money, but a poor place for pleasure. Mr. Suddard and family are now enjoying the fruits of their labor. They have moved into their new residence, which is an up-to-date one. A. Gordon, K.C., Ottawa, as- sisted by Mrs. Gordon, will on Sun- day, February 5th, begin a series of lec- tures in a Westbrooke. Several of the citizens have been entertaining their friends lately. Among these are Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Brenner and Mr. and Mrs. George Clyde.

The pastor and members of the choir of Bethel church drove out from the city Tuesday evening to the home of Mr. Brenner, where they were kindly entertained and a pleasant evening spent. Miss M. G. Brenner, who is in Toronto, Miss Mary Nicol is visiting friends in Cataract and Sunnyside. Mrs. Donaldson, Inverary, has returned to her home after spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Morrison, and with friends in Collins Bay. James Gordon is so much improved that he can now walk with the aid of crutch- es. Walter Jackson is about to return to his old home, and Mr. and Mrs. Walker will come to Cataract to reside. Mr. and Mrs. R. Smith, West- brook, spent Sunday at Mrs. Smith's father's, Mrs. Edwards, Kingston, is visiting her sister, Mrs. B. Lancaster. Mr. Brown, of the city, has rented part of Mr. Walker's house.

A LONG GHASE FOLLOWED HER FROM CHICAGO TO NEWARK.

Pursued Her For Two Years— Tried to Shoot Her Because She Wouldn't Marry Him, and Landed in Jail.

Newark, N.J., Feb. 9.—Charged with attempting to kill a woman whom he has followed from city to city for two years in the vain attempt to persuade her to marry him, William A. Magurn, a travelling salesman, has been arrested in this city. A complaint of atrocious assault and battery, with intent to kill, has been made against him by Mrs. Harry Root, a detective in a local store.

Magurn called the other night at Mrs. Root's boarding place. She had told him his intentions must cease. When she learned he had entered the house she refused to see him, but he sent her word he had some important papers for her. She then came into the front parlor on the ground floor of the house, and he sat together for about half an hour. As he made no mention of the papers, she ex- claimed he had simply sought an ex- cuse to see her, and told him to go.

"I know you mean me harm," she said.

Magurn protested he did not.

"I will go," he said, "if you will let me kiss you first."

He stepped up to Mrs. Root and she repulsed him. Then, it is alleged, he drew a revolver, sprang on her, pressed the muzzle against her head, and told her he was going to kill her. Her right arm was pinioned at her side. With her left hand she struck the barrel of the revolver upwards. Then she seized the hand which held the wea- pon. There was a desperate struggle. She screamed for help, but none of the other boarders in the house heard her.

A desperate effort she forced Ma- gurn to the door and hurled him against the wall of the hallway. Then she turned and dashed along the hall, threw open a door and fell into a room where several women were sit- ting. A young man who boards in the house heard the sound of the struggle in the hall and came running out. Magurn saw him, and he re- fused to assist her. Magurn he ar- rested. Detectives were sent out and found him after an hour's search in a saloon, somewhat the worse for liquor.

Mrs. Root says she met Magurn for the first time while she was a detec- tive in a Chicago department store. He became infatuated with her, and for a time his sentiments were re- ciprocated. He obtained a position with a house furnishing store in Chi- cago, and she followed him. They became engaged, and the wedding was set for the following year.

Soon after she had promised to be- come Magurn's wife, Mrs. Root says, he began to drink heavily. She re- sisted with him, but it did no good. The wedding date was postponed, and two years ago, because of his objec- tionable habits, she says she broke her engagement. He still was persistent in his attentions. Mrs. Root says, and to escape him she went to Riverside, Mich., and obtained employment in a store. He found out where she was and followed her. She went to Chi- cago, and he followed her there. Then she fled to Detroit, but could not shake off her shadow.

Not long ago she went to New York, believing that in that city she could lose him, but her belief was a delu- sion. In New York she was a store clerk. Magurn came to the store every day, and try as she would she could not shake him off, she says. At length his persistent attentions be- came objectionable to her employers, and she was discharged.

When she came here she again tried to shake him off her trail, but again he proved to be an even better detec- tive than herself.

Magurn is a Canadian, about thirty- eight years old. When searched at police headquarters he had in his pocket a ticket of membership in the Y. M. C. A., of Grand Rapids, Mich., and several papers which he pledged to produce enough to follow Mrs. Root about the country.
