A somewhat novel, not to say startling, proposition was made a day or two ago by a lady whose philanthropic zeal is boundless, and it only remains for two brave pioneers to begin the work, for one the ice was broken, the undoubted attractions offered, would induce others to take up the good cause, con amore. This lady, contending that causes which are espoused in concert by both sexes, flourish better than those undertaken by either sex alone, proposes that husbands and wives should go forth together on collecting tours. An amplification of the suggestion is that young men and maidens, who find constructive contact in their peace of mind, should undertake to collect in pairs for various deserving charities, and thus combine profit to philanthropy, with a pleasing sense of duty done. Now who will volunteer? Amusement for sweet charity's sake is the particular form of amusement which Mrs. Grundy is smiling most affably on just now, you know.

LETTER FROM MISS A. L.

General Weakness Cured by the Use of "BROMA."

To Dr. Ed. Morin, Quebec. I suffered a long time from general debility. Moderate exercise, remedies, good care of all kind, nothing seemed to restore my strength. I was advised by a friend to try Broma. I at once bought a bottle. The first doses showed me the superior value of this excellent tonic. I continued to take it for several weeks until it restored my health completely much to my joy and happiness. Since then, I have remained strong and vigorous, fearing neither work, nor fatigue. My digestion is splendid and my blood and nerves are full of vigor.

MISS A. L. I constantly recommend it to all suffering as I did, from general debility. It relieves immediately and cures completely in a short time. We always keep a bottle of this excellent tonic in the house in case of indisposition or sudden illness.

Always insist upon getting Broma and accept no substitute for it.

For sale everywhere.
