Physicians say nothing is so helpful for throat and lung troubles, whether acute or chronic, and for wasting diseases, as Angier's Petroleum Emulsion with Hypophosphites. It is pleasant to take and agrees with the stomach.

It relieves congestion and irritation, soothes and heals the bronchial tubes, makes breathing easy, changes the character of expectoration, and cures the cough. Its effects are rapid. It aids digestion, helps assimilate the food, and has a healthy action upon the bowels. Pills and aperients are unnecessary.

I was troubled with bronchitis for ten years, being frequently unable to work for months at a time. I tried many remedies with poor results. I used Angier's Petroleum Emulsion, and feel like a new man. I have not been so well for many years.—Robert Weir, Toronto, Canada.

Angier's Petroleum Emulsion is sold by druggists everywhere. Remember the name and insist on getting Angier's. Large size, $1.00. Small, 50c.

SMALL FARMERS WANTED IN CUBA.

Americans regard Cuba as being exclusively a sugar and tobacco country, venture the prophecy that within a very few years she will supply the United States with oranges, winter vegetables, winter strawberries, coffee, india rubber, indigo, bananas, corn and beef cattle—all of which can be cultivated much more economically than is possible in the United States or South America and without any danger or loss or destruction by frost, as Cuba is below the frost line, being protected by the gulf stream.

While all of the industries above mentioned may be gone into on a large scale, they are particularly attractive to the man with small capital. When it comes to the culture of sugar cane and tobacco more money is needed, which is also partially true of the pineapple industry, as pines are infinitely more profitable when cultivated on a large scale.

But Cuba to-day stands in great need of the small farmer, and the small farmer, if he but knew it, has been looking for Cuba all of his life.—Collier's Weekly.

KITSON WRONG

N CRITICISM OF ONTARIO'S DEFENCE.

There is Any Amount of Ammunition—To Establish a Railway Commission.

Ottawa, March 7.—Col. Kitson's strictures upon the defences of Canada are regarded at the department of militia as being the opinions of a military critic based upon insufficient acquaintance with his subject. "It is not the first time," said a well known staff officer, "that we have heard the charge made that Ontario is without an adequate supply of ammunition for an emergency. But you will remember that both last session and the session preceding it, the minister of militia met that charge by producing, for the private information of members, a statement showing the quantity and location of ammunition stores in this province. Of course it would not do to make the statement public. When Colonel Kitson was here the Dominion Cartridge works at Quebec were capable of turning out about one and a half million cartridges yearly. To-day their output is six millions, with a capacity, working overtime is eighteen to twenty millions."

It is said that the minister of railways has decided to adhere to his original plan of a railway commission of three members, a practical railway man, a lawyer and a business man, well posted upon transportation matters.

Dan Stewart, the well known and popular Klondyker, has arrived in the city and will be here for a few days on business with the interior department.

At the opening of parliament, on Thursday, the military part of the function will be unusually brilliant. A full quota of all the corps will do duty and all the officers of the headquarters' staff will, with Lord Dundonald, escort his excellency in the senate chamber.

Worse Off By $150.

There is more than one view point from which to regard the present aspect of the subway question. According to the reasoning in last night's Whig the city is better off by $350 than it was before the question was re-opened. There are many in the city, however, who look at the matter in another light. City Solicitor McIntyre asked for a re-opening of the case, and at Ottawa on Wednesday the appeal was heard. The representative of the Storrington Toll Road company was bound to be present in order to protect the company's interests, as it did not want to be saddled with any more expense. The deputation was before the committee only a few minutes when it was seen that there was no inclination to open the question. The application of the road company was accepted on condition that the case was not to be re-opened, so the company is just as well off as it was before. The road company asked for costs, whereupon J. Mc D. Mowat made the same request on behalf of the county, both requests being granted. The city was taxed for the cost of the deputations, $150, and is $150 worse off than before they went to Ottawa.

Reflections Of A Bachelor.

New York Press.

A woman can hate what a man does, yet love him for doing it.

There is nothing so humiliating to a woman as to faint when she isn't dressed for it.

A girl gets as much excitement out of an engagement as a man does out of a stock market panic.

Any woman would cheerfully wear shoes with holes in the soles to be able to print a fashionable street number on her visiting card.

Every wife has an idea that if she could induce her husband to sleep with a stocking around his throat it would be a sure cure for his cold.

Spring must surely be at hand. Bicycles were freely used to-day.

VEXED QUESTIONS.

Geese of the Golden Eggs, by Rachel Challice.

When I see how frequently the bread winner of a family dies or is disabled from want of forethought and care on the part of those dependent on him, I am forcibly reminded of the old couple in the fairy tale who killed the goose that laid the golden eggs. One of the first instances in which I recollect noticing this want of common sense, to say nothing of kindness, was in the case of a clergyman whose digestion was weak, and the constant want of consideration of this fact used to culminate on Sundays, when coffee and sausages were the staple food for breakfast. When the delicate man demurred at this fare, he was told that it was quantity, not quality which was injurious. As this was only one instance of the continual want of care which saps the life of geese whose golden eggs are only appreciated after death, it was not long before the rector became a martyr to constant dyspepsia, and had to resign his living through ill-health.

A lady I know, the wife of a chartered accountant, not content with amusements and holidays in accordance with her husband's income, rushed into the wild extravagances of a house-boat at Henley, a season at Scarborough, and seats at the opera, until, driven to speculation to meet these expenses, the breadwinner of the family went out of his mind, became bankrupt, and is now an inmate of a pauper lunatic asylum.

A canon of my acquaintance, solely dependent on his stipend, was after his wife's death so continually harrassed by his three daughters about every domestic detail and "sisterly" squabble, that, deprived of the quiet so necessary to his tendency to heart complaint, he soon succumbed to that disease, and his daughters, now in real distress in a tiny suburban villa, are expiating their want of consideration in a cathedral close.

News of the death of a friend of great medical repute, whose handsome establishment was dependent on his brain, has not surprised me, for instead of providing him a comfortable dinner after his hard day's work, his wife, whose sole exertion is to pay calls and drive in Hyde Park, only used to order for his dinner a rechauffe from her own substantial midday meal. Because she sought to increase her private savings from her housekeeping allowances, her husband was a victim to her penuriousness, and one feels no pity for her now that the golden eggs of carriage, house and income are no more.

Another instance of the sacrifice of the goose of the golden egg came under my notice when I heard last spring a great scholar, whom I much respected, and whose pen was the source of provision for his family, died from neglect during an attack of influenza. Left alone and unattended to in a cold upper room for hours, the poor man rose to get a light as the evening closed in. After turning the gas-tap, he was overcome with weakness, before he could put a match to it, and some hours later, he was found by the servant on the floor, half suffocated with the gas fumes, and half dead with the cold. The sister in the drawing room below had heard the noise of the fall above, but thinking that her "goose" of a student brother had merely let some books fall, she did not trouble to go up to him, although she had not seen him since the early morning, and had deputed no one to see after him.

Did not a brother whose work was the mainstay of the family deserve more care? The fever from the chill went to his brain, and after walking about the house, and talking wildly in Latin, Greek, and Russian, the poor man showed signs of becoming violent, and was soon taken off to an asylum, where he died a few days later in a strait-jacket.

In the last case I will now quote, the supply of the golden eggs was dependent on an old lady, so frail and fragile that nourishment and warmth were necessities to her, and yet fear of the servants on the part of the companion, resident with and dependent on her, used to make her try to prove that nourishment 'ensued best from weak beef-tea, and warmth from slaty coals. Now that the goose has departed this life, and the golden eggs of a liberal salary, etc., are no more, doubt may sometimes assail this lady as to whether she acted wisely. Doubtless the fabulist had reason in making a goose the subject of his story; and I refer advisedly to the same bird as an illustration of my idea. For much as we may deplore the want of foresight which leads to the death of a valuable person, we must acknowledge that, capable, as he is in many respects, he is certainly wanting in the wisdom which makes self-preservation a natural and rational course.

However, nobody can be wise all round, and as Achilles was left with a vulnerable spot when steeped in the river Styx, everybody has some weak side to his character. And as Mrs. Fitzgerald says in her "Rational Ideal of Morality," "the weekly yielding that comes of too impressible a nervous system may be quite as offensive to reason as the stubborn impassivity and resistance to the feelings of others that come of a stolidly phlegmatic or of a wilful disposition." All my readers can no doubt add from their own experience and cases, in which the supply of golden eggs has failed from neglect of the goose that laid them.

ISLAND INCIDENTS.

Leaving for Oregon—Appointed Fair Secretary.

Wolfe Island, March 7.—Thomas Pyke and Miss Minnie left last Monday for Oregon, U.S. A local agent built a bonfire on Main street last evening for the purpose of testing a fire extinguisher. A large number of onlookers witnessed it, and were well satisfied with the test. It estinguished the fire in short order. At a recent meeting of the fair directors, William Allinson was appointed secretary, which position the late Thomas Hogan filled so efficiently. Edward Briceland has been appointed district deputy for the C.M.B.A. for Frontenac. He is well fitted for the position, and we congratulate him as being the right man in the right place. A very pleasant social was held Tuesday night at the residence of Mrs. Cornelius Pyke. We learn that Romaine Mosier is in communication with the mayor of Watertown, and agrees to locate for the town an unlimited supply of water, gas and oil. His terms are very reasonable, as he agrees to locate gas at ten cents a thousand feet; oil, at half a cent a gallon; and coal, twenty-five cents per ton.

The many friends of Gregory Keevan, regret to hear of his serious illness. He has recently been removed to the Hotel Dieu. Robert Henderson is also ill in the General Hospital. Dr. McCarthy has workmen busily engaged remodelling a dwelling on his lot for renting purposes. Miss Mary Laird came near drowning a valuable team of horses in Big Bay. After being in the water for over an hour, the team was rescued minus the harness, which sank to the bottom. We understand a Watertown gentleman offered Mr. Mosier a handsome sum for his grey horses, but he declined the offer. Edward Cuff, Watertown, N.Y., was a recent visitor to the island. Mrs. Ward and Mrs. Thomas Briceland, of Watertown, N.Y., are spending a few days on the island. Mr. and Mrs. William Comer will leave for Oregon, U.S., the first week in April. Samuel Grier was appointed cheese maker for Wolfe Island factory, in place of the maker who was recently appointed, the latter declining to act.

Miss Lottie Spooner is the guest of her sister, Clergy street city. Rev. Mr. Moorhouse, Perth Road, called on friends one day this week. Miss Emma Caverly is quite poorly. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sherwood are spending a few days at Elgin. Miss Ella Shaw spent Saturday and Sunday at her home, Odessa. Noble Darling, Pittsburgh, has moved to the place lately occupied by G. W. Confide in a Woman

Women may write about their ills to Mrs. Pinkham, and avoid the questioning of a male physician. They can tell their story without reservation to her; she never breaks a confidence, and her advice is the best in the world.

The questions asked of a woman by a male physician are embarrassing, and often revolting to a sensitive nature. In consequence the whole truth is not told; this makes it difficult for female troubles to be successfully treated even by the best physicians, and is the reason so many women grow worse rather than better. A woman understands a woman better than a man,—there are symptoms which sick women have that a man cannot understand, simply because he is a man, but the whole truth may be told to Mrs. Pinkham, and her vast experience enables her to give advice which leads to a cure.

All women who suffer should secure Mrs. Pinkham's advice; it costs nothing but a letter addressed to her at Lynn, Mass. Female troubles are real troubles, and must be treated understandingly. For a quarter of a century Mrs. Pinkham's advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have been helping women to get strong and well, and her great file of letters prove that more than a million women have been restored to health and strength by her advice and her medicine when all other means have failed.

When you go to a druggist for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, do not let him persuade you to try something which he says is just as good; there is nothing just as good, because Mrs. Pinkham's medicine holds the record for the largest number of cures of any female medicine in the world.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Black Robed Persons.

Kingston, March 6.—(To the Editor) In reading the opinions of members of St. Andrew's church on the gown question, I see that one of them (I am sure a married member) says that it will result in a more impressive service. Will the people worship better when seeing a lot of black robed forms before them, or will it cure cracked voices? I am sorry for the man who makes the statement that the ladies of St. Andrew's choir are such a flashy lot. I always thought men admired something bright and pure, but it seems this member likes something different. Are we to understand that religion is such a gloomy thing that nothing but black gowns can illustrate our praise service? I asked one of those connected with this innovation, Why not have white gowns? The answer was, "Well, you know, white gowns will require washing." So we are left to the conclusion that the black gowns are to hide the dirt, forgetting that cleanliness is next to Godliness. This is a libel on our choir, and I do not think that the young ladies will like it. Will the knowledge that they have on black robes so solemnize our young ladies that they will refrain from whispering and smiling when on duty, and will keep eyes front all the time?—Yours, C. BANATYNE.

P.S.—I am afraid that with these black robes on, none of them will be able to sing "Angels, Ever Bright and Fair."

IN MEMORIAM.

The Late Matilda Aylsworth, Napanee.

Napanee Beaver.

The friends of Mrs. Matilda E. Aylsworth will hear with much sorrow of her demise on Wednesday evening. Although she had been ill but three months it was known that there was no hope of her recovery. Mrs. Aylsworth was the wife of Peter Aylsworth, who predeceased her about twenty-two years. Previous to the latter's death they resided in Odessa, Napanee and finally in Tamworth, from which place Mrs. Aylsworth removed to Napanee with her daughters, on her husband's death. Deceased was in her seventy-ninth year and had always been loved for her bright, cheerful disposition, which she retained up to the last. She was a member and worker in the Eastern Methodist church and by her life did much to help and cheer less hopeful ones. Mrs. Aylsworth leaves to mourn her loss, two brothers, James and Jacob Fralick, Picton, and two sisters, Mrs. S. Flagler, Toronto, and Mrs. C. B. Perry, of this town. Also two sons, James, Tamworth; Benjamin P., Picton, and three daughters, Mrs. A. F. Holmes and the Misses Lucinda and Kittie Aylsworth, the last two of whom resided with their mother. The bereaved family have the sincerest sympathy in the loss of a loving mother and sister.
