

BUSINESS STARTERS GOT IN SAFELY

A COLLISION ON WATERS OF THE SOUND.

The Company on the Big Steamer Was in Quite a Terrified State But All Were Landed at New London.

New London, Conn., March 20.—In the fog, which descended upon the waters of the Sound, last night, the big Fall River passenger steamer Plymouth, with 200 passengers and a crew of 200 men, was run down while passing through the Race by the steamer Taunton, of the same line. There were terror and dismay on the stricken ship but there was no panic. Men and women comported themselves with wonderful self-control. The Plymouth was immediately headed for the city company would have to take to the boats, but the closing of the collision bulk heads prevented the water from gaining and the vessel made the harbor and wharf unassisted.

There was no way of telling immediately how many persons were killed. Six were dead certainly, and in the mass of debris from the wrecked cabin and staterooms there may be several more bodies while in the staterooms these may be, and probably are bodies of others drowned besides those reported: John McCarthy, watchman; Snow Coleman, negro pantryman; Julius Dawson, negro messenger; John Bristol, negro waiter; John Williams, negro baker; Jonathan Thompson, Wilkesbarre, Pa., skull fractured.

FROM BOSTON.

Interesting Jottings From Our Own Correspondent.

Boston, Mass., March 17.—We write you this on the 17th of Ireland, and we hope you are well as it leaves us at present. We were at the Townline this morning, and had a good look at Gen. Nelson A. Miles as he drove away in his carriage to South Boston. He looks bronzed from his foreign trip, and his eye has the same eagle glance as ever, and his vigor marks him every inch still able to cope with Indians. He has not been subservient to the power of the day, so by the time limit of service, he soon retires. In looking up our history, connected with this Evacuation day and St. Patrick, we have been somewhat disappointed to find that there never was a St. Patrick in Ireland, and that St. Patrick was a Scotchman. Evacuation day is not a public holiday and its celebration belongs to South Boston solely as Bunker Hill or the Boston Fourth of July is memorialized by Charlestown. We mean that the rest of Boston leave these two particular places to do the honors on both these particular occasions. Another surprise is the monument erected on Bunker Hill, commemorates a victory over the British on Breed's Hill, which is half a mile away. The order was for the American army to retreat, against the British on Bunker Hill, but the general in command, deeming that Breed's Hill was more convenient, entrenched there, and hence the contradiction.

Thirty-five Obijway (Canadian) Indians are performing the spectacular production of the Indian musical play, "Hiawatha" at the Mechanic's building. They called on Miss Longfellow, last week in honor of her father. Miss Longfellow is about sixty years of age, and resides in the old home, at Cambridge, a suburb of Boston. The sale of tickets for grand opera began yesterday, and many people stayed in line over night in order to get desirable seats. The prices are, $2, $3 and $5.

The snows have disappeared from the hills, the rivers have risen and the high tides have driven thousands of muskrats from their haunts on the Mystic river and many of them found their way to Tufts Square. Numbers have been killed by electric cars and men and boys organize the weekly parties and get several hundred skins.

The Cambridge press, for thirty-seven years a local newspaper, is now owned and conducted exclusively by women. There are women editors, and even small girls are employed to sell the paper on the streets.

By the end of another year Boston will have the largest water supply in the world. The metropolitan water commission look the course of the Nashua river, and by damming its water will have the largest lake in the state. This is at Clinton, forty-six miles away. The area of water held drained by this water supply will be 210 square miles, and the daily supply capacity will be one hundred and seventy-three millions gallons, or about twice that of the new Croton reservoir, near New York city, and more than four times the capacity of all the existing Boston reservoirs combined. To prevent the pollution of the water in this artificial lake, the ground has been stripped to an average depth of one foot. This alone entails an expenditure of over three million dollars and there is a border of an average width of a hundred feet around the dam. For the protection of the water this strip of land will be thickly planted with pine trees. As a shoreline of the reservoir will be over thirty-five miles in length great provisions have been made for a supply of these pine trees, so three years ago the first plantings were made and there are now millions of little pines from an inch to a foot in height, which will be ready for transplanting by the time they are needed. After the dam is completed it is estimated it will take two years to fill it with water. The water is conducted from this reservoir by an aqueduct to the Sudbury reservoir. The first two miles of said aqueduct is tunnel through solid rock, then comes a masonry aqueduct seven miles long in an excavated trench. It is carried over a river by a seven-arch masonry bridge 200 feet long. This work will cost many millions, but being built of immense granite blocks, it will probably last for all time.

Grass is looking almost as green as Ireland itself to-day, and already the upper ten Bostonians is packing his goods preparatory to going to the sea shore.

WORK AT HOME.

How Women Are Swindled By Fake Offers.

The well-known desire of many women to work at home, and to do so at home is largely taken advantage of by sharpers who, through alluring advertisements leading off with "One hundred ladies wanted," hint at light, elegant, remunerative and speedy work which can be done at home and will bring from $5 to $25 per week.

The would-be applicant for an easy way to make money is requested to call or enquire for particulars, or currency for further particulars, etc. The ten cents is enclosed and the applicant forthwith furnished a glowing circular further dilating on the general employment which is to make her fortune; but an "outfit" must be procured or "instructions" must be given, and either the "company" will provide for $1 or $3 or some other specified sum.

Thousands of poor women are thus swindled, in many cases literally out of their last dollar, for it is needless to say that the useless "outfit," once procured, is never used, and the "instructions" once given, they hear, no more from the enterprising company. Women, as a rule—and young women more especially—should be exceedingly careful how they employ in person or by letter any of the plausible advertisements scattered among the want and other small advertisements in the daily papers. Too often they are but cunningly laid traps for the money or the virtue of the unwary.

Through innocence, rashness, or the desperation born of urgent need, thousands of poor creatures are victimized but the rascally advertisers, through their rogues who are detected and exposed in one place, generally elude the grip of the law, serenely pocket their ill-gotten gains and, experienced in the credulity of human nature—can begin their game again in new features and with new names and slightly varied programmes rejoice in the certainty of unabated success.

Biggest Elephant On Record.

There has lately arrived in one of the German ports the hide and skeleton and tusks of the largest elephant on record. The monster is stated to have measured sixteen feet nine inches in height from the forehead to the shoulder, which is no less than over three feet more than the tallest elephant hitherto known. Up to now the record has been held by Dr. Donelson's African explorer, who during his first trip to Lake Rudolph, shot an elephant which stood thirteen feet four inches in height. The present giant is also of the African species, and if the measurements are correctly stated, he equals in size the huge mammoth of pre-historic times. The tusks, strange to say, are in no way remarkable.

Gold Brick Vibration.

Baltimore American.

"As a so-called member, with every indication of being greatly excited, 'the brick's solid gold, is it?'"

"Indeed it is," replied the inquirer.

"How much was it only $2,000 for it?"

"That's all you need pay me—if I wasn't hard up I wouldn't even look at less than $5,000."

"I'll take it," said Reuben, with suppressed excitement, and he counted out the nice, crisp bills.

Half an hour later, as Reuben having thrown the brick into a dark alley, was driving rapidly homeward, he soliloquized:

"Gee, but I'm lucky. I was feared some of the ossifiers would ketch me 'tish them green goods on me 'at I'd jist bought from them sharpers. I reckon that gold brick man thinks he skun me. Gee, ap, Mollie!"

Importance of Advertising.

Philadelphia Record.

The importance of advertising is suggested by Lord Rosebery, who changes the loss of British trade to the failure of the manufacturers to properly advertise their business.

"Authors, actors, statesmen and others are all engaged in a great war of advertisement," he says, "and it does seem hard that we should fall short in doing for our goods what we do so successfully for ourselves."
