

3 Specials Tomorrow Morning (SATURDAY) for TO-MORROW good things, and it is a woman to take... C. Yard. W & SON. QUEENSLAND (LAINES).

See Our Iron and Brass BEDS. Ranging from $3.50 to $25. Also our all Iron Springs to fit Sanitary Mattress.

ROBT. J. REID, THE LEADING UNDERTAKER, PHINEAS ST. AMBULANCE 577. PRELIMINARY NOTICE - PICTURE SALE.

NOT HOW CHEAP BUT HOW WELL. Parker's Dye Works and Laundry. 7 E. HAWLEY, Manager.

AUCTION SALES. J. A. SALTER, Auctioneer, 58 Brock St. Experienced, reliable and prompt. Sales catalogues required.

TO LET. HOME HOUSE "MODERN" BROWN and brick. No. 114 Stewart Street at present occupied by Dr. J. E. Fry.

FOR SALE OR TO RENT. FURNISHED CUT STONE HOUSE. No. 87 George Street. Immediate possession.

WANTED. GIRLS TO SPLIT MICA. APPLY AT Kent Bros. mica works, Princess St. A GENERAL SERVANT. NO WASHING or ironing. Apply at 55 George Street.

YOUR REAL ESTATE FOR CASH. J. S. H. McLean, 51 Brock Street, ground floor. A GOOD GENERAL SERVANT. WELL recommended. Apply in evening to Mrs. Uglio, 142 Johnston Street.

A SUITE OF 3 OR 4 UNFURNISHED rooms in good house near City Park; for several months. Box 21, Kingston. A GOOD COOK. MUST HAVE REFERRENCES. Apply to Miss Hora, 45 King Street, after seven o'clock in the evening.

YOUNG WOMAN-DESIRES GENERAL office work. Good pay. Apply to experienced, references. Apply box 3, Whig Office. CIRCULAR AND SAMPLE DISTRIBUTORS wanted everywhere. No canvassing. Man make form. Write to Marshall & Co., London, Ont.

WE INDEPENDENT EMPLOY YOURSelves. Establish a business. Our goods are used everywhere by everybody. Man make form. Write to Marshall & Co., London, Ont. SALESMEN. TRAVELLING OR LOCAL. Nice line 25 per cent commission. Goods new, sell in every house. Stand by. Stand by. Stand by. Address: L. N. Co., 112 E. 125th St., New York.

MEN TO LEARN BARBER TRADE. Special offer for fifteen days in April. Tools, tuition, board, everything included. Time saved by our method. Catalogue and particulars mailed free. Willie Miller Barber College, Chicago, Ill. PERSON TO CALL ON RETAIL trade and agents for manufacturing local territory. Salary $10.70, paid weekly, and expense money. Previous experience unnecessary. Successful. Include self-addressed envelope. Standard House, Canton Hill, Chicago.

FAITHFUL PERSON TO TRAVEL for well established business. Good salary. Call on retail merchants and agents. Local territory. Salary $1.00 a week and expenses, payable $10.70 a week in cash and expenses advanced. Position permanent. Business received and routing. Excellent self-addressed envelope. Standard House, 300 Canton Hill, Chicago.

LOCAL MEMORANDA. The Daily Note Book For Whig Readers to Post Themselves by. Jenkins my letter. Queen's Alma Mater Society meets, 3 p.m. Tomorrow will be the fifth Sunday in Lent. G. E. Starr will speak in Convocation hall, Sunday, three o'clock. There will be twelve hours and thirty-three minutes of sunlight to-morrow. March 28th in history: Canada ceded to France, 1682; Raphael, artist, died, 1520. The more imagination there is in our makeup, the more prone are we to asseration. Death is so common that we sometimes wonder why we make plans, why we ever toil or spin. It is the exhausted emotions of age which men call prudence that are ever warning youth of its follies. The sun rises Sunday at 5:50 a.m. and sets at 6:22 p.m. Monday at 5:48 a.m. and sets at 6:23 p.m. A taste for reading is a more important factor in a nation's literary life than the birth of a second Shakespeare.

LANGLEY WARE. English Fire-proof Ware. See our display in Jugs, Teapots, Sugars and Creams, Vases, Coffee Filters, etc. ROBERTSON BROS. GRAND OPERA HOUSE. Tuesday, March 31st. The Big Melodramatic feat, a New and Modern Stage Story. "JAMES BOYS IN MISSOURI." A Romantic love tale, a marvel in scenic splendor, a Cast of Sterling worth with GLENN, KILM and ALMA HEARN in the leading roles. Popular Prices, 25c., 50c., 50c. Seats on sale at HAWLEY, 50c. THURSDAY, April 2nd. "HUNTING FOR HAWKINS."

Found! At No. 332 King St. The best place in the city to get your meals. Special rates to table boarders. Short order work a specialty. "WE NEVER CLOSE." CONGRESS RESTAURANT. CON. MILAN, FRED WILLIAMS, Proprietor, Manager.

IN THE BALANCE. We want you to weigh well our promises. We want you to see the value of these pieces of property. We believe they are worth all we ask for them. We believe your best interests will result your buying. In price, terms and success, we are here to please you. D. A. CAYS, 346 KING STREET. AUCTION SALE OF FURNITURE, HANDSOME CABINET GRAND PIANO, On Thursday, April 2nd. I have received instructions from Mr. George Gild to sell at his residence, No. 161 Harris Street, all of his fine furniture, viz.: Handicraft Cabinet, Grand Piano, Drawing Room Suite, Grand Pictures, Brussels Carpet, B.F. Mirror, Centre Table, Brno-Brno, P.W. Sideboard, B.W. Extension Table, Handicraft Rocker, Bureau, Couch, Hair-seater, Toilet Sets, Chestier, Gold and other Chairs, Dinner Set, Silver Tea Set, Glassware, China, Sewing Machine, Refrigerator, Kitchen Utensils, Lawn Mower, Gasoline Tools, and many more. Piano at one o'clock. JOHN H. MILLS, Auctioneer.

AUCTION SALE! HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE. I HAVE BEEN INSTRUCTED BY Mr. Gild to sell on TUESDAY, March 31st, at his residence, south end of Stuart Street, his household furniture, consisting of Tapestry and other Carpets, Plate Glass Mirror, Gilt Stair Chair, Rocker, Bureau, Couch, Feather Bed, Pillows, Bedding, Linoleum, Washstand, Heating Stove, Curtains, Oil Cloth, Crochets, Ladies' High Lamp, Oil Churn, Toilet Sets, Clothing, Garden and Stable Tools. Sale at 10:30. Terms cash. ALLEN, the auctioneer. MEDICAL. LADIES - USE OLD HARMLESS remedy for ovarian or suppressed Menstruation. It cannot fail. Trial free. Paris Chemical Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

STIRRING HIT. Grappled With Opposition With Force. PREMIER ROSS. MADE A MOST EFFECTIVE SPEECH. The Modes of Trial Discussed - New Toryism Ruthlessly Condemns a Man Before He is Tried - Whitney's Reply and the Division. Toronto, March 27.-The house yesterday, as Whig reports have shown, began with electrical discharges, and thus it ended also, but in a happier vein, one of which the reports in the morning papers gave no inkling; for he who spoke chiefly at the midnight hour receives short commons at the hands of the press, from pressure of time. Mr. St. John spoke for three hours and a half after Dr. Pyne had thus far received his share of the press. The former has an effective delivery, clear and impressive voice, uncommon in industry in compiling arguments, and an imperturbable manner, but he is so self confident as to be drawn out to weary lengths, far beyond the range of the effectiveness he imagines. The liberal members sought the smoking room in batches, and Mr. St. John charged away in a ranting and raving manner to the press, though the latter had a poor ear trumpet that day. The Globe, usually magnanimous to opponents, compressed the speech to three and a half hours into thirty lines.

Mr. Smythe, Algoma, followed with another of those surprises which madden speakers or serving out those days; he charged furiously on liberal reputations, making wholesale aspersions tolerated in none save a beginner. A greater surprise ensued, served by Mr. Rickard, of East Durham, winding up a dreary night with material for convulsions. In lighter vein but in dead earnest, he grappled with the opposition with a force all staggers would have hesitated to assume, and ending at the end of each discharge with the ringing proclamation: "What are we at, and why are we at it?" He expressed utter disgust at the weary repetition of speeches in opposition, at the apparent insincerity of the conservatives, who would have stormed twice as furiously against a committee, and who had no regard or respect for the fair name of his province, but were sinking in its quietude in their greed for office after thirty years of deprivation. He scored on the four Toronto members, as oratorical windmills, and charged a thesis and their associated return to the fray, decency and dignified action. Throughout he hit hard, in quaint fashion, electrifying the liberals, entertained even his opponents, and establishing a record as a speaker of heavy fire. The galleries were still filled, and listeners went away, so charged with memories of Rickard and his original delivery that the three ponderous conservatives apishly acquiesced. Cobourg's member, the acknowledged wit of the house, is said to have immediately surrendered the sceptre. Rickard, according to the quietest member of the group, has made a stirring hit.

Friday's Session. In the legislature to-day, Mr. Pease presented the petition of the Loughboro railway company for an act of incorporation. In reply to the speaker, Mr. Pease stated that Frank Sullivan had been engaged as an extra clerk in the accountant's department for a brief time this year, and left of his own accord in 1901, and had been a seasonal clerk in 1901 and in 1902, part of the time. The attorney-general's bill to facilitate evidence in the Ganney charges was again offered, but was both brief and unconvincing. Mr. Pease had objections and the government put the responsibility of its non-acceptance on the opposition. Dr. Jessop resumed the seemingly endless debate, but was both brief and unconvincing. He had been too excited already, and courteous, save for a personal allusion to the premier, because of a feature of his campaigning speech in Lincoln. The end appeared nearer when the premier arose to close the discussion on one side. He was in excellent form, and spoke with notable calmness and dignity. The honor of the house was as much the care of the opposition as of the government, but he was convinced of the propriety of taking the investigation out of the hands of legislators, who had spoken violently and thoughtlessly, by who acted as if the political ruin of a minister to ride to office. He had been taunted with shaking hands with the member for Manitowish, but it was an invariable rule of his to be on good terms with members on both sides; he could remember only one member during thirty years with whom he was not on terms of courtesy. The premier weighed the three modes of trial, by committee on privileges, by select committee, and by royal commission. He showed by numerous instances how committees had almost invariably failed on party lines and left an opening for whitewashing institutions, which an enquiry by judges would not afford. Trial by committee had passed out of usefulness; and even judges were not called in so often as they formerly were at Ottawa; during some years, he had been called in so often that the government were not taking the case out of the house, although they could do so constitutionally. The house as a whole is choosing the commission; at Ottawa in conservative days the government, not the house, chose the judges. The people's representatives were not then consulted, but in this case they were. In the Caron case judges eliminated charges; in this case all of the charges remain. The commission is a body that was in the commission in 1884, for trial of conservative members in this legislature, and yet complaint is made of restrictive enquiry. In 1884, Mr. Meredith, conservative leader, took strong grounds for formal charges. One conservative member asked for a free hand for speculative and irresponsible charges. Analogy was pointed out in many ways by British, Dominion, Ontario and Manitoba precedents. A minister of crown deserved in this case as in these others as fair a trial as was given the least criminal. Where the interests of the public interest? The opposition, with worthy critics of West Elgin and Waterloo, desired a new set of rules which a predatory committee trial might be used to give the charges a new form. He was charged with charges for which he well was it that he could. The opposition's first impulse was to plead strongly for judges. Both sides could not try and read the consistent with their records. Greater confidence in the new leaders had abandoned trial by committee; and this was not a new record for liberalism; Ottawa reached and the charges were accepted in 1884. Conservatives adopted liberalism had to drag them behind in their chariots or they would be left behind. The liberal members sought the smoking room in batches, and Mr. St. John charged away in a ranting and raving manner to the press, though the latter had a poor ear trumpet that day. The Globe, usually magnanimous to opponents, compressed the speech to three and a half hours into thirty lines.

Mr. Smythe, Algoma, followed with another of those surprises which madden speakers or serving out those days; he charged furiously on liberal reputations, making wholesale aspersions tolerated in none save a beginner. A greater surprise ensued, served by Mr. Rickard, of East Durham, winding up a dreary night with material for convulsions. In lighter vein but in dead earnest, he grappled with the opposition with a force all staggers would have hesitated to assume, and ending at the end of each discharge with the ringing proclamation: "What are we at, and why are we at it?" He expressed utter disgust at the weary repetition of speeches in opposition, at the apparent insincerity of the conservatives, who would have stormed twice as furiously against a committee, and who had no regard or respect for the fair name of his province, but were sinking in its quietude in their greed for office after thirty years of deprivation. He scored on the four Toronto members, as oratorical windmills, and charged a thesis and their associated return to the fray, decency and dignified action. Throughout he hit hard, in quaint fashion, electrifying the liberals, entertained even his opponents, and establishing a record as a speaker of heavy fire. The galleries were still filled, and listeners went away, so charged with memories of Rickard and his original delivery that the three ponderous conservatives apishly acquiesced. Cobourg's member, the acknowledged wit of the house, is said to have immediately surrendered the sceptre. Rickard, according to the quietest member of the group, has made a stirring hit.

Friday's Session. In the legislature to-day, Mr. Pease presented the petition of the Loughboro railway company for an act of incorporation. In reply to the speaker, Mr. Pease stated that Frank Sullivan had been engaged as an extra clerk in the accountant's department for a brief time this year, and left of his own accord in 1901, and had been a seasonal clerk in 1901 and in 1902, part of the time. The attorney-general's bill to facilitate evidence in the Ganney charges was again offered, but was both brief and unconvincing. Mr. Pease had objections and the government put the responsibility of its non-acceptance on the opposition. Dr. Jessop resumed the seemingly endless debate, but was both brief and unconvincing. He had been too excited already, and courteous, save for a personal allusion to the premier, because of a feature of his campaigning speech in Lincoln. The end appeared nearer when the premier arose to close the discussion on one side. He was in excellent form, and spoke with notable calmness and dignity. The honor of the house was as much the care of the opposition as of the government, but he was convinced of the propriety of taking the investigation out of the hands of legislators, who had spoken violently and thoughtlessly, by who acted as if the political ruin of a minister to ride to office. He had been taunted with shaking hands with the member for Manitowish, but it was an invariable rule of his to be on good terms with members on both sides; he could remember only one member during thirty years with whom he was not on terms of courtesy. The premier weighed the three modes of trial, by committee on privileges, by select committee, and by royal commission. He showed by numerous instances how committees had almost invariably failed on party lines and left an opening for whitewashing institutions, which an enquiry by judges would not afford. Trial by committee had passed out of usefulness; and even judges were not called in so often as they formerly were at Ottawa; during some years, he had been called in so often that the government were not taking the case out of the house, although they could do so constitutionally. The house as a whole is choosing the commission; at Ottawa in conservative days the government, not the house, chose the judges. The people's representatives were not then consulted, but in this case they were. In the Caron case judges eliminated charges; in this case all of the charges remain. The commission is a body that was in the commission in 1884, for trial of conservative members in this legislature, and yet complaint is made of restrictive enquiry. In 1884, Mr. Meredith, conservative leader, took strong grounds for formal charges. One conservative member asked for a free hand for speculative and irresponsible charges. Analogy was pointed out in many ways by British, Dominion, Ontario and Manitoba precedents. A minister of crown deserved in this case as in these others as fair a trial as was given the least criminal. Where the interests of the public interest? The opposition, with worthy critics of West Elgin and Waterloo, desired a new set of rules which a predatory committee trial might be used to give the charges a new form. He was charged with charges for which he well was it that he could. The opposition's first impulse was to plead strongly for judges. Both sides could not try and read the consistent with their records. Greater confidence in the new leaders had abandoned trial by committee; and this was not a new record for liberalism; Ottawa reached and the charges were accepted in 1884. Conservatives adopted liberalism had to drag them behind in their chariots or they would be left behind. The liberal members sought the smoking room in batches, and Mr. St. John charged away in a ranting and raving manner to the press, though the latter had a poor ear trumpet that day. The Globe, usually magnanimous to opponents, compressed the speech to three and a half hours into thirty lines.

Friday's Session. In the legislature to-day, Mr. Pease presented the petition of the Loughboro railway company for an act of incorporation. In reply to the speaker, Mr. Pease stated that Frank Sullivan had been engaged as an extra clerk in the accountant's department for a brief time this year, and left of his own accord in 1901, and had been a seasonal clerk in 1901 and in 1902, part of the time. The attorney-general's bill to facilitate evidence in the Ganney charges was again offered, but was both brief and unconvincing. Mr. Pease had objections and the government put the responsibility of its non-acceptance on the opposition. Dr. Jessop resumed the seemingly endless debate, but was both brief and unconvincing. He had been too excited already, and courteous, save for a personal allusion to the premier, because of a feature of his campaigning speech in Lincoln. The end appeared nearer when the premier arose to close the discussion on one side. He was in excellent form, and spoke with notable calmness and dignity. The honor of the house was as much the care of the opposition as of the government, but he was convinced of the propriety of taking the investigation out of the hands of legislators, who had spoken violently and thoughtlessly, by who acted as if the political ruin of a minister to ride to office. He had been taunted with shaking hands with the member for Manitowish, but it was an invariable rule of his to be on good terms with members on both sides; he could remember only one member during thirty years with whom he was not on terms of courtesy. The premier weighed the three modes of trial, by committee on privileges, by select committee, and by royal commission. He showed by numerous instances how committees had almost invariably failed on party lines and left an opening for whitewashing institutions, which an enquiry by judges would not afford. Trial by committee had passed out of usefulness; and even judges were not called in so often as they formerly were at Ottawa; during some years, he had been called in so often that the government were not taking the case out of the house, although they could do so constitutionally. The house as a whole is choosing the commission; at Ottawa in conservative days the government, not the house, chose the judges. The people's representatives were not then consulted, but in this case they were. In the Caron case judges eliminated charges; in this case all of the charges remain. The commission is a body that was in the commission in 1884, for trial of conservative members in this legislature, and yet complaint is made of restrictive enquiry. In 1884, Mr. Meredith, conservative leader, took strong grounds for formal charges. One conservative member asked for a free hand for speculative and irresponsible charges. Analogy was pointed out in many ways by British, Dominion, Ontario and Manitoba precedents. A minister of crown deserved in this case as in these others as fair a trial as was given the least criminal. Where the interests of the public interest? The opposition, with worthy critics of West Elgin and Waterloo, desired a new set of rules which a predatory committee trial might be used to give the charges a new form. He was charged with charges for which he well was it that he could. The opposition's first impulse was to plead strongly for judges. Both sides could not try and read the consistent with their records. Greater confidence in the new leaders had abandoned trial by committee; and this was not a new record for liberalism; Ottawa reached and the charges were accepted in 1884. Conservatives adopted liberalism had to drag them behind in their chariots or they would be left behind. The liberal members sought the smoking room in batches, and Mr. St. John charged away in a ranting and raving manner to the press, though the latter had a poor ear trumpet that day. The Globe, usually magnanimous to opponents, compressed the speech to three and a half hours into thirty lines.

the commission; at Ottawa in conservative days the government, not the house, chose the judges. The people's representatives were not then consulted, but in this case they were. In the Caron case judges eliminated charges; in this case all of the charges remain. The commission is a body that was in the commission in 1884, for trial of conservative members in this legislature, and yet complaint is made of restrictive enquiry. In 1884, Mr. Meredith, conservative leader, took strong grounds for formal charges. One conservative member asked for a free hand for speculative and irresponsible charges. Analogy was pointed out in many ways by British, Dominion, Ontario and Manitoba precedents. A minister of crown deserved in this case as in these others as fair a trial as was given the least criminal. Where the interests of the public interest? The opposition, with worthy critics of West Elgin and Waterloo, desired a new set of rules which a predatory committee trial might be used to give the charges a new form. He was charged with charges for which he well was it that he could. The opposition's first impulse was to plead strongly for judges. Both sides could not try and read the consistent with their records. Greater confidence in the new leaders had abandoned trial by committee; and this was not a new record for liberalism; Ottawa reached and the charges were accepted in 1884. Conservatives adopted liberalism had to drag them behind in their chariots or they would be left behind. The liberal members sought the smoking room in batches, and Mr. St. John charged away in a ranting and raving manner to the press, though the latter had a poor ear trumpet that day. The Globe, usually magnanimous to opponents, compressed the speech to three and a half hours into thirty lines.

the commission; at Ottawa in conservative days the government, not the house, chose the judges. The people's representatives were not then consulted, but in this case they were. In the Caron case judges eliminated charges; in this case all of the charges remain. The commission is a body that was in the commission in 1884, for trial of conservative members in this legislature, and yet complaint is made of restrictive enquiry. In 1884, Mr. Meredith, conservative leader, took strong grounds for formal charges. One conservative member asked for a free hand for speculative and irresponsible charges. Analogy was pointed out in many ways by British, Dominion, Ontario and Manitoba precedents. A minister of crown deserved in this case as in these others as fair a trial as was given the least criminal. Where the interests of the public interest? The opposition, with worthy critics of West Elgin and Waterloo, desired a new set of rules which a predatory committee trial might be used to give the charges a new form. He was charged with charges for which he well was it that he could. The opposition's first impulse was to plead strongly for judges. Both sides could not try and read the consistent with their records. Greater confidence in the new leaders had abandoned trial by committee; and this was not a new record for liberalism; Ottawa reached and the charges were accepted in 1884. Conservatives adopted liberalism had to drag them behind in their chariots or they would be left behind. The liberal members sought the smoking room in batches, and Mr. St. John charged away in a ranting and raving manner to the press, though the latter had a poor ear trumpet that day. The Globe, usually magnanimous to opponents, compressed the speech to three and a half hours into thirty lines.

the commission; at Ottawa in conservative days the government, not the house, chose the judges. The people's representatives were not then consulted, but in this case they were. In the Caron case judges eliminated charges; in this case all of the charges remain. The commission is a body that was in the commission in 1884, for trial of conservative members in this legislature, and yet complaint is made of restrictive enquiry. In 1884, Mr. Meredith, conservative leader, took strong grounds for formal charges. One conservative member asked for a free hand for speculative and irresponsible charges. Analogy was pointed out in many ways by British, Dominion, Ontario and Manitoba precedents. A minister of crown deserved in this case as in these others as fair a trial as was given the least criminal. Where the interests of the public interest? The opposition, with worthy critics of West Elgin and Waterloo, desired a new set of rules which a predatory committee trial might be used to give the charges a new form. He was charged with charges for which he well was it that he could. The opposition's first impulse was to plead strongly for judges. Both sides could not try and read the consistent with their records. Greater confidence in the new leaders had abandoned trial by committee; and this was not a new record for liberalism; Ottawa reached and the charges were accepted in 1884. Conservatives adopted liberalism had to drag them behind in their chariots or they would be left behind. The liberal members sought the smoking room in batches, and Mr. St. John charged away in a ranting and raving manner to the press, though the latter had a poor ear trumpet that day. The Globe, usually magnanimous to opponents, compressed the speech to three and a half hours into thirty lines.

the commission; at Ottawa in conservative days the government, not the house, chose the judges. The people's representatives were not then consulted, but in this case they were. In the Caron case judges eliminated charges; in this case all of the charges remain. The commission is a body that was in the commission in 1884, for trial of conservative members in this legislature, and yet complaint is made of restrictive enquiry. In 1884, Mr. Meredith, conservative leader, took strong grounds for formal charges. One conservative member asked for a free hand for speculative and irresponsible charges. Analogy was pointed out in many ways by British, Dominion, Ontario and Manitoba precedents. A minister of crown deserved in this case as in these others as fair a trial as was given the least criminal. Where the interests of the public interest? The opposition, with worthy critics of West Elgin and Waterloo, desired a new set of rules which a predatory committee trial might be used to give the charges a new form. He was charged with charges for which he well was it that he could. The opposition's first impulse was to plead strongly for judges. Both sides could not try and read the consistent with their records. Greater confidence in the new leaders had abandoned trial by committee; and this was not a new record for liberalism; Ottawa reached and the charges were accepted in 1884. Conservatives adopted liberalism had to drag them behind in their chariots or they would be left behind. The liberal members sought the smoking room in batches, and Mr. St. John charged away in a ranting and raving manner to the press, though the latter had a poor ear trumpet that day. The Globe, usually magnanimous to opponents, compressed the speech to three and a half hours into thirty lines.

the commission; at Ottawa in conservative days the government, not the house, chose the judges. The people's representatives were not then consulted, but in this case they were. In the Caron case judges eliminated charges; in this case all of the charges remain. The commission is a body that was in the commission in 1884, for trial of conservative members in this legislature, and yet complaint is made of restrictive enquiry. In 1884, Mr. Meredith, conservative leader, took strong grounds for formal charges. One conservative member asked for a free hand for speculative and irresponsible charges. Analogy was pointed out in many ways by British, Dominion, Ontario and Manitoba precedents. A minister of crown deserved in this case as in these others as fair a trial as was given the least criminal. Where the interests of the public interest? The opposition, with worthy critics of West Elgin and Waterloo, desired a new set of rules which a predatory committee trial might be used to give the charges a new form. He was charged with charges for which he well was it that he could. The opposition's first impulse was to plead strongly for judges. Both sides could not try and read the consistent with their records. Greater confidence in the new leaders had abandoned trial by committee; and this was not a new record for liberalism; Ottawa reached and the charges were accepted in 1884. Conservatives adopted liberalism had to drag them behind in their chariots or they would be left behind. The liberal members sought the smoking room in batches, and Mr. St. John charged away in a ranting and raving manner to the press, though the latter had a poor ear trumpet that day. The Globe, usually magnanimous to opponents, compressed the speech to three and a half hours into thirty lines.

the commission; at Ottawa in conservative days the government, not the house, chose the judges. The people's representatives were not then consulted, but in this case they were. In the Caron case judges eliminated charges; in this case all of the charges remain. The commission is a body that was in the commission in 1884, for trial of conservative members in this legislature, and yet complaint is made of restrictive enquiry. In 1884, Mr. Meredith, conservative leader, took strong grounds for formal charges. One conservative member asked for a free hand for speculative and irresponsible charges. Analogy was pointed out in many ways by British, Dominion, Ontario and Manitoba precedents. A minister of crown deserved in this case as in these others as fair a trial as was given the least criminal. Where the interests of the public interest? The opposition, with worthy critics of West Elgin and Waterloo, desired a new set of rules which a predatory committee trial might be used to give the charges a new form. He was charged with charges for which he well was it that he could. The opposition's first impulse was to plead strongly for judges. Both sides could not try and read the consistent with their records. Greater confidence in the new leaders had abandoned trial by committee; and this was not a new record for liberalism; Ottawa reached and the charges were accepted in 1884. Conservatives adopted liberalism had to drag them behind in their chariots or they would be left behind. The liberal members sought the smoking room in batches, and Mr. St. John charged away in a ranting and raving manner to the press, though the latter had a poor ear trumpet that day. The Globe, usually magnanimous to opponents, compressed the speech to three and a half hours into thirty lines.

HE WAS FAIR. In His Presentation of Land Bill Scheme. RESIST CLAUSE WHICH WILL PUT ON THE SCREWS. Compulsory Purchase is Suggested - How Sales Will be Effected and the Peasant Proprietors Come into Existence - Bill Silent on One Point. London, March 28.-The text of the Irish land bill, which is now published, shows how scrupulously fair and clear Mr. Wyndham's introductory speech was in regard to all the main features of the scheme. Several remarks, but important, points had, however, to be omitted by the Irish secretary in considering his speech within reasonable limits. The nationalists will be glad to see that evicted tenants are not excluded from the scope of the bill for persons who may purchase holdings and obtain the necessary loans are not only the present tenants but any persons who may have been tenants within twenty years. Section seventeen will, however, in all probability, be resisted to the utmost by the Irish party. It provides that where one-fourth of the tenants, or in certain cases just under half, refuse to purchase the estate, the right to have fair rents fixed under Glendene's act is to be taken away from them. This is evidently to put the screw on the tenant who is desirous to purchase. In a sense, this function makes the bill one for the compulsory purchase of land in the case of a tenant who is desirous to buy. The machinery by which the peasant proprietors are to come into existence is simple. The landlord first asks the estates commission to inquire into the circumstances of his estate with a view to a sale. Then the price of the estate is estimated and within a prescribed time, to be fixed by the estates commission, the owner must agree to sell at the estimated price, or the bill is, however, silent as to the means by which the purchase money is to be collected from the new peasant owners.

THE CHURCH IN FRANCE. London, March 28.-The Times' Paris correspondent, says: The Duke of Orleans has followed up a recent letter of protest from the duchess deploring the lack of piety of the republican regime with a letter to Senator de la Moriniere, declaring that the time is now ripe when the church in France, recalled by persecution to a just appreciation of our historic tradition, will realize that for her there is no independence and no safety outside a monarchy. TAP RICH COUNTRY. "Soe" Lins May Go Up Red River Valley. Winnipeg, Man., March 28.-A St. Paul dispatch discloses another railway scheme, by which the "Soe" line may build up the Red River valley about 150 or 200 miles, and connect with the C.P.R. at Grand Forks. This would give the C.P.R. a much-needed cut-off, and at the same time tap a rich country at present without railway facilities. LOST. THURSDAY NIGHT ON BROCK HANGERS at Montreal street. A BLACK LEATHER WALLET, containing money, coupons, key, etc. Reward on returning to the office of St. Mark's street. TO RENT. A NEW YORK SQUARE PIANO, $2 per month. Apply at this office.

THE CHURCH IN FRANCE. London, March 28.-The Times' Paris correspondent, says: The Duke of Orleans has followed up a recent letter of protest from the duchess deploring the lack of piety of the republican regime with a letter to Senator de la Moriniere, declaring that the time is now ripe when the church in France, recalled by persecution to a just appreciation of our historic tradition, will realize that for her there is no independence and no safety outside a monarchy. TAP RICH COUNTRY. "Soe" Lins May Go Up Red River Valley. Winnipeg, Man., March 28.-A St. Paul dispatch discloses another railway scheme, by which the "Soe" line may build up the Red River valley about 150 or 200 miles, and connect with the C.P.R. at Grand Forks. This would give the C.P.R. a much-needed cut-off, and at the same time tap a rich country at present without railway facilities. LOST. THURSDAY NIGHT ON BROCK HANGERS at Montreal street. A BLACK LEATHER WALLET, containing money, coupons, key, etc. Reward on returning to the office of St. Mark's street. TO RENT. A NEW YORK SQUARE PIANO, $2 per month. Apply at this office.

THE CHURCH IN FRANCE. London, March 28.-The Times' Paris correspondent, says: The Duke of Orleans has followed up a recent letter of protest from the duchess deploring the lack of piety of the republican regime with a letter to Senator de la Moriniere, declaring that the time is now ripe when the church in France, recalled by persecution to a just appreciation of our historic tradition, will realize that for her there is no independence and no safety outside a monarchy. TAP RICH COUNTRY. "Soe" Lins May Go Up Red River Valley. Winnipeg, Man., March 28.-A St. Paul dispatch discloses another railway scheme, by which the "Soe" line may build up the Red River valley about 150 or 200 miles, and connect with the C.P.R. at Grand Forks. This would give the C.P.R. a much-needed cut-off, and at the same time tap a rich country at present without railway facilities. LOST. THURSDAY NIGHT ON BROCK HANGERS at Montreal street. A BLACK LEATHER WALLET, containing money, coupons, key, etc. Reward on returning to the office of St. Mark's street. TO RENT. A NEW YORK SQUARE PIANO, $2 per month. Apply at this office.

THE CHURCH IN FRANCE. London, March 28.-The Times' Paris correspondent, says: The Duke of Orleans has followed up a recent letter of protest from the duchess deploring the lack of piety of the republican regime with a letter to Senator de la Moriniere, declaring that the time is now ripe when the church in France, recalled by persecution to a just appreciation of our historic tradition, will realize that for her there is no independence and no safety outside a monarchy. TAP RICH COUNTRY. "Soe" Lins May Go Up Red River Valley. Winnipeg, Man., March 28.-A St. Paul dispatch discloses another railway scheme, by which the "Soe" line may build up the Red River valley about 150 or 200 miles, and connect with the C.P.R. at Grand Forks. This would give the C.P.R. a much-needed cut-off, and at the same time tap a rich country at present without railway facilities. LOST. THURSDAY NIGHT ON BROCK HANGERS at Montreal street. A BLACK LEATHER WALLET, containing money, coupons, key, etc. Reward on returning to the office of St. Mark's street. TO RENT. A NEW YORK SQUARE PIANO, $2 per month. Apply at this office.

THE CHURCH IN FRANCE. London, March 28.-The Times' Paris correspondent, says: The Duke of Orleans has followed up a recent letter of protest from the duchess deploring the lack of piety of the republican regime with a letter to Senator de la Moriniere, declaring that the time is now ripe when the church in France, recalled by persecution to a just appreciation of our historic tradition, will realize that for her there is no independence and no safety outside a monarchy. TAP RICH COUNTRY. "Soe" Lins May Go Up Red River Valley. Winnipeg, Man., March 28.-A St. Paul dispatch discloses another railway scheme, by which the "Soe" line may build up the Red River valley about 150 or 200 miles, and connect with the C.P.R. at Grand Forks. This would give the C.P.R. a much-needed cut-off, and at the same time tap a rich country at present without railway facilities. LOST. THURSDAY NIGHT ON BROCK HANGERS at Montreal street. A BLACK LEATHER WALLET, containing money, coupons, key, etc. Reward on returning to the office of St. Mark's street. TO RENT. A NEW YORK SQUARE PIANO, $2 per month. Apply at this office.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES. Toronto, March 28th, 11 a.m. - North wind, no snow, or wind, moderate, clearing to-day and on Sunday. Sharp freezing night.

Stacey's "The Store That Sets the Pace". "Kingston does not need reminding that it is a different business store, offering new every day, and attractive things here and there, and that we make more than at home. The inspiration of the business course of having everything in stock. The strong way in trade is to get the best goods of every kind, and to have them put in a few weeks what constitutes our claim on your attention, we should say that the store opens to you, and we serve you best wishes. We try to have nothing but the best goods, and we are sure that you will find our goods come about in the most natural way. We have special attention in the following departments:-

Spring Millinery, Dress Goods, Silks, Spring Jackets and Caps, Separate Skirts, Ready-to-Wear Suits, Dress Trimmings, Laces.

OUR SMALL HAND COLORED PICTURES. (OUR OWN COLORING) Are particularly suitable for Wedding and Birthday Gifts. It will be a pleasure to show them to you. KIRKPATRICK'S ART STORE. Exclusive Patterns. In all the Latest Novelties for Spring Suitings and Trouserings. Full line Genuine BEL-WARP Serges and Coatings. JOHN TWEDDELL, Tailor and Importer.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE MONDAY, MARCH 30th, 1903. WATKIN MILLS, EDOUARD PARLOVITZ. Admission - 25c., 50c., 75c., $1.

REAL ESTATE. VIRGINIA HOMES. GRANT ABOUT Virginia lands, soil, water, climate, products, fruits, berries, cultivation, prices, etc., by sending the Virginia Farmer, 10c. for three months subscription. C. Farmer Co., Emporia, Va.

AGENTS WANTED. $75 Weekly and Expenses no experience necessary. Position permanent, self-supporting. Write to the Virginia Farmer, 10c. for three months subscription. C. Farmer Co., Emporia, Va. 2 Days More 2 FOR BARGAINS. Everything sold at a sacrifice till Thursday. Last chance to get High Class Goods for low Cash Prices. A. C. Johnston & Bro.